

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

BANZAI NIPPON!

From TOKIO Through MANCHURIA WITH THE JAPANESE

PORT ARTHUR, which Major Louis Livingston Seaman, late of the U. S. Army, risked his life to enter three months ago, fell before the fierce assaults of the Japanese a week ago. This book is a straightforward untrammelled account of some of the operations immediately preceding the fall. Major Seaman is a trained observer and a practised writer. He studied the famous Chinese bandits of Manchuria, and even lived with them for a time. He made three attempts to enter Port Arthur, and was frequently under fire. He took many photographs of the army and of scenes connected with the war.

SUCCESSFUL McCLURG BOOKS

SEVERAL TITLES ON OUR FALL LIST WERE POPULAR TO A REMARKABLE DEGREE, AS THE FOLLOWING PARAGRAPHS INDICATE

5 Editions

MY LADY OF THE NORTH

IT was predicted that Mr. Randall Parrish's second romance would be even more successful than his first, "When Wilderness Was King," and this statement has been amply verified. The five editions were all large editions. Towards Christmas it was impossible to keep up with the orders that came pouring in.

3 Editions of

THE ILLINI

FOR a book of this character and price ($2.00 net) this record is scarcely less remarkable than that of "My Lady of the North" Colonel Carr's "Story of the Prairies" was so distinguished, and made such a strong appeal to all sons of Illinois, that a wave of popularity started almost upon publication day (December 1).

3 Editions of

WHEN LITTLE BOYS SING

THE popularity of this charming juvenile was in its way no less sensational than the two above. It is a song and picture book (a class which is notably very hard to sell in any quantity), yet large numbers were bought with the greatest eagerness, and it would seem to prove that there is always a demand for a book which is really inspired, and absolutely different from anything of the kind previously brought out.

2 Editions of

FARMINGTON

THE quiet charm of Clarence Darrow's idyl of boyhood made itself felt in spite of all the holiday clamor and the demand for more striking or spectacular works. Its success is of the kind that lasts, and it is expected that many more editions will be required in the years to come.

And finally it may be noted that we have just ordered the SIXTH EDITION of "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING."

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in preparation, for early issue, a new novel by Miss Murfree, ("Charles Egbert Craddock,"") entitled "The Storm Center," which is said to be a return to the manner of "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountain."

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will bring out at once the second of the new two-volume edition of the "Poems of Dante Gabriel Rossetti," edited by W. M. Rossetti, who has provided full explanatory notes. Among the new poems are three never before published and one which was withdrawn soon after its appearance. The edition, as already noted, has been limited to 1000 sets for England and America.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish next month Professor George Santayana's work, "Life of Reason," in two volumes. The author's general view of the universe and its problems is said to be a variant of the most recent and popular phase of philosophy known as "pragmatism," but it is described as "an original and brilliant statement of this general view and the most important recent work in philosophy by an American scholar."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published "Electricity Control," a treatise on electric switchgear and systems of electric transmission, by Leonard Andrews, member of the Institution of Civil Engineers. The volume is illustrated with two plates and 204 figures in the text. They have also just published the fourteenth edition of "Steam and Steam Engines," by Andrew Jamieson, a work which has become a standard in its field, and in its present form is practically a new book, the contents having been rewritten and the entire volume reindexed. The volume is illustrated with 400 figures, including 11 special plates, and deals specifically with turbines and boilers. New editions of "Fever Nursing," by Dr. J. C. Wilson, and of a "Text-Book of Horseshoeing," by Professor A. Lungwitz and John W. Adams, are also just ready.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in press the sixth volume of John Bach McMaster's "History of the People of the United States," which deals with the period of Jackson, the nullification and the war of the United States banks; a work on "The Life Insurance Company," by William Alexander, secretary of the Equitable Life Insurance Company and brother of James W. Alexander, president of that company; "The House of Hawley," a touching story of an iron willed old grandfather and the young granddaughter whom he really loves, but from whom he is estranged for a year on account of his disapproval of the man she marries; also, "The Fire of Spring," a story by Margaret Potter, of Chicago, whose first book, written when she was very young and impulsive was so intense in spots that her father bought up the entire edition and suppressed it.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish this month a new book by Booth Tarkington, entitled "In the Arena." The book will contain the magazine stories that have grown out of the author's experiences, dealing chiefly with political characters and political situations in a small Middle West community. The simple Hoosier people and the humorous and pathetic figures that rise out of the rural population into political prominence are specially sympathetically shown in Mr. Tarkington's stories. They will bring out in February "The Return of Sherlock Holmes." The book will contain thirteen stories, and will be illustrated by Charles Raymond Macaulay. In these thirteen new tales Sherlock Holmes is even more astute, brilliant and astounding than ever before. He has kept pace with his readers, and offers them far more complex problems than of yore, which he unravels with even greater deftness. The same mystery, the same impending perils, the same hair-breadth escapes that thrilled in former volumes are present in this new one.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 7, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

AMERICAN BOOK AUCTION SALES.

THE American book auction season from September, 1903, to September, 1904, like that in England for the same period, was by no means brilliant. According to Luther S. Livingston's carefully prepared "American Book Prices Current, 1903-1904," just brought out by Dodd, Mead & Co., the 80,000 lots offered in the 119 sales show a considerable falling off even in numbers from the record of the season of 1903.

The most characteristic feature of the season was the unusual number of expensive subscription books, (so-called,) that were thrown upon the market—"thrown," we agree with Mr. Livingston, is the proper word to use. The greatest collection of this sort ever sold was the library of Howard T. Goodwin, of Philadelphia, disposed of in 1903 by Stan V. Henkels, the remarkable consignment of subscription limited editions from the library of Jacob Ruppert, Jr., of New York, sold by Anderson, and the library of Jonas H. French, of Boston, sold by Libbie & Co. The Goodwin collection, commented upon in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in December 5, 1903, failed to realize much more than fifteen cents on the dollar originally invested in the books, and the fate of the other two collections was not much more enviable, emphasizing the fact that no inherently worthless thing acquires value simply because it is found in only a few examples. Most of the pretentious reprints represented in these sales were not worth even the so-called cost of manufacture, as is proven by the fact that the sets of Scott and Dumas in the Goodwin collection, for example, that had cost nominally $100 a volume, sold for less than ten dollars the volume.

The Chubbuck and Hurst collection were the most notable, if not the only notable ones that were put up for sale during the last season. The items of Americana in the Chubbuck collection, Mr. Livingston considers the best books sold during the season. These included such items as: Budd's "Good Order Established in Pennsylvania and New Jersey," 1685; Castell's "Discoverie of the Coasts and Continent of America," 1644; the second edition of Eliot's "Indian Bible," 1680-'85; Foxe's "Northwest Fox," 1635; James's "Strange and Dangerous Voyage," 1633; Johnson's "Nova Britannia," 1609, and his "New Life of Virginia," 1612; Lescarbot's "Nouvelle France," 1609 and 1618, also, Eron-delle's translation, 1609; Thomas Morton's "New English Canaan," 1637; Nathaniel Morton's "New England's Memorial," 1669; Mourt's "Relation, or, Journall of the Beginning and Proceedings of the Plantation at Plimouth in New England," 1622; Simcoe's "Journal of Operations of the Queen's Rangers," 1787, etc. The collection included also some first editions of great rarity and value, among them being a Hawthorne item, "The Sister Years," for the first time offered at auction. There were three privately printed Holmes items, being the same copies which were disposed of in the Livermore sale in 1894, a perfectly clean and spotless set of the three numbers of Lowell's short-lived literary monthly, The Pioneer, Hawthorne's "Fanshawe," etc.

The first portion of the library of the late Bishop John F. Hurst, of Washington, was sold at Anderson's on May 2 and 3. This included his Washington and Franklin collections, among them a number of books from Washington's library. The few which were authenticated by having Washington's own autograph on the title-page brought, generally, high prices. One of two copies sent to Washington by the editor of Washington's "Official Letters to the Honorable American Congress," London, 1795, is considered by Mr. Livingston the most interesting and valuable piece in the collection. This brought $2810. The other copy sold in Philadelphia in 1895 for $1650. The books printed by Franklin, of which the series was a long one, with numerous duplicates, sold, with a few exceptions, at moderate prices. The collection of Poor Richard Almanacks was the most numerous ever offered at auction. The earliest of these, the Almanac for 1739, brought $565.

A small but very choice collection of literary manuscripts and autograph letters belonging to George M. Williamson, (including the original manuscripts of Hawthorne's "The Ancestral Footsteps" and "Feathertop," and Poe's "System of Dr. Tarr and Professor Fether,") and a selection from the collection of the late John H. V. Arnold came up for sale during the season; also, two portions of the great collection of American prints belonging to Hampton L. Carson, of Philadelphia. The first portion of the Carson collection, the engraved photographs of Washington, was the finest and most extensive series ever offered at auction; the second portion comprised the portraits of Jefferson, Franklin and Lafayette. The sale of the collection of John Howard Payne's manuscripts and letters, including Payne's love letters to and from Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, sold in Philadelphia in April, 1904, created but a mild sensation, and sold for $860.

As to prices, the average, while slightly higher than that realized during the English book auction season—being roughly about $14.15 in this country as against £2 9s. in England—is less than it was a year ago, when the average reached quite $16 the volume.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE ANNUAL MEETING.

The regular annual meeting of the Stationers' Board of Trade was held on the afternoon of the 3d inst., at the rooms of the Board, 97 Nassau Street, New York City, the president, Henry C. Bainbridge, presiding. There were present or represented by proxy forty-six members.

The president read the following address that was unanimously approved.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Another year has passed and we are again assembled at the annual meeting to hear the reports of our officers, and have them render an account of their stewardship. Our organization is now in its thirtieth year, and while its growth in membership has not been as great as we would desire, it has grown in honor, and has earned the confidence of its members and the respect of everybody with whom it has business dealings. I am pleased to say, however, that our list of members shows an increase of seven over last year, a growth which I hope will continue—and I believe it will, so long as we continue to give our members what I believe we are giving them now, better service for less money than they can get elsewhere.

The treasurer's report shows an increase of cash assets over last year of nearly $1500.

The various departments show large increase of business with satisfactory results which have inured to the benefit of the members and the increase of the balance sheet.

The Information Department has been used to a larger extent than in previous years, and very few of the members have used it in excess of the two hundred limit; yet quite a number have used it to about the limit, and we are in position to-day to give just as good, if not better, reports than some of the larger agencies, as comparison will show. In addition to the "Weekly Circular" sent to members we have issued over 1400 "Special Circulars," mainly in failure and bankruptcy cases directly upon receipt of the information.

In the Collection Department the draft system has been quite generally used with successful results at an expense of only 2 per cent. fee to the member on the amount collected by payment direct to the bank, and we cannot recommend it too highly as being a first-class method of collecting past due claims. The amount of claims collected in dollars and cents is far in excess of last year—say at least $19,000 or $20,000; of course, the fees received upon same have increased accordingly, so that there has been more business done in this department than ever before.

The Bankruptcy Department, like the Collection Department, shows a most successful year; that is, it has collected more money and paid the same to creditors, and received more fees for services than in any previous year, as shown by the treasurer's report. In February last it handled the largest case in bankruptcy that has ever come into this office, thereby controlling $35,000 in claims, and by this combined action elected a trustee of its own choice. Thus it has produced good results, which of course is largely due to the good management of the office and its attorneys in handling the matter. In this case the secretary made his initial trip to Chicago in behalf of the creditors. Therefore, I would respectfully suggest that when members are interested in such matters they immediately send their claims to this office and do not listen to the solicitations of outside collection agencies or lawyers who may desire to control their claims.

To our secretary, Mr. Condit, I want to say that his work during the year has earned our commendation, and I am sure that perseverance along the lines which he has been working will continue to show good results and inure to the profit of the office which he so successfully fills.

During the past year there was organized in Chicago a National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers. Our organization was honored by that body in the election of your president to the office of first vice-president. While he recognized that it was an honor paid to the organization which he was sent to Chicago to represent, he also recognizes and appreciates the personal honor conferred, and hopes he will always retain the high position in the respect of the stationers of America, which their treatment of him leads him to think he has attained.

In closing I want to thank the officers and employees of the Board for their uniform courtesy during the past year. The unanimity which has existed in the general conduct of every branch of our duties has done very much toward making the result which we show to-day.

The following reports were then read and approved, and ordered to be entered in full upon the minutes:

BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' DINNER.

THE twentieth annual dinner of the Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers was given on Friday evening, December 30, in the College Room of the Hotel Astor, New York City. It was first intended to give the dinner in the Yacht Room, but that room being found too small the Brotherhood and its friends were seated in the larger College Room. This room, decorated with exquisite frescoes symbolic of various phases of college life, college arms and insignias, etc., was brilliantly lighted and gayly festooned with flowers and holly. Upwards of fifty persons were present, and presided over by Charles Walton, affectionately known to his many friends in the trade as "Pop" Walton. After the coffee had been served William J. Kelly, in behalf of the souvenir committee, with a brief appropriate address, presented to the retiring president the badge of his office, an ivory gavel suspended from a scarlet watered silk ribbon. Mr. Walton thanked the Brotherhood warmly for the many tokens of affection received by him throughout his connection with the fraternity of travelling men, and trusted that the bond of sympathy that held the organization of the B. C. T. together for nearly a generation would grow stronger and endure for another generation and beyond. With a touching reference to the brethren who had been called to rest during the past year Mr. Walton closed his remarks. Mr. Tibbits, an old friend of the Brotherhood, then favored the company with a number of vocal selections and some well-told stories. A. Growoll, John H. Black, William B. Walker, Jonas Langfeld and John Hoven-don were among the speakers.

Letters of regret were received from Stanley Harris, of Baltimore, H. M. and Clarence Caldwell and others. Telegrams were also read from a number of prominent statesmen and others who were prevented from attending by previous engagements or pressing public business.

As the dinner was opened by singing "Auld Lang Syne," so was it closed by singing "Vive la Compagnie," Brother William J. Kelly leading.

ARREST OF THE OFFICERS OF THE ABBEY PRESS.

THE REV. DR. CARLOS MARTYN, formerly president of the bankrupt Abbey Press, was arrested on January 3, at his home, No. 125 East Twenty-eighth Street, New York City, on a warrant charging him with alleged grand larceny in connection with the same acts upon which his partner, Charles F. Rideal, was indicted by the grand jury last week. Dr. Martyn was taken before Justice McMahon in the General Sessions and was remanded to the Tombs, but gave bail.

The Abbey Press was incorporated in 1902 by Dr. Martyn and Rideal, with a capital of $10,000, under the laws of New York and New Jersey. The firm occupied a portion of the fourth floor of the building at No. 114 Fifth Avenue, New York City. It began to publish books at the expense of their authors.

In December, 1902, when Max Hart became identified with the Abbey Press, he caused to be hired a room on the second floor of the building for the ostensible manufacture of schoolbags, although it is claimed by the stores who supplied the material that only two or three were manufactured. Instead of devoting the silks to the manufacture of bags, the plaintiffs allege that they were sent to a public auctioneer and sold at about fifty cents on the dollar.

The insurance companies, becoming suspicious as to the origin of the fire that destroyed the premises occupied by the Abbey Press, refused to pay, and John J. Kirkpatrick, of Patchogue, brought suit against the Germania Fire Insurance Company for $860, seven other suits, aggregating $10,000, depending on the result of this suit. It was decided March 15, 1904, in favor of the insurance company.

While Assistant District Attorney Garvan was investigating the fire two creditors got judgments, aggregating $2500, against the Abbey Press, and levied on the property. The concern failed in May, 1903. A little later it was announced that the New York Abbey Press had been sold out to the Abbey Press of New Jersey, which, in turn, had been absorbed by the Abbey Press Consolidated.

Dr. Martyn and Rideal were once associated with F. Tennyson Neely as his "literary advisers." When Neely went into bankruptcy they founded the Abbey Press and carried on business along the old lines. Dr. Martyn was head of the concern for a while, and then Rideal succeeded him. Dr. Martyn retained his interests in the firm, however, and served as a director.

BRITISH AUTHORS ON AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.

THE London Standard having opened its columns to a discussion of the alleged injustice done to British authors by the American copyright law, numerous prominent writers are airing their opinions without, however, displaying any unanimity regarding the remedy. Sir Conan Doyle is strongly for retaliation and Hall Caine as strongly against it. Andrew Lang confesses that the whole question of protection is too metaphysical for him.

The single point upon which there is a semblance of agreement is in a suggestion by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, approved by Hall Caine and others, that a clause be inserted in the American law giving British and other foreign authors the privilege of copyright within one year.

SPAIN TO IMPORT BOOKS FREE.

UNITED STATES MINISTER HARDY, at Madrid, has informed the State Department that a royal order has been issued by the ministry of finance permitting the free entry into Spain of books from the following countries (printed in the language of the country of origin), in reciprocation of the free entry into said countries of books printed in Spain: Denmark, the Netherlands, Sweden and the United States. American books imported into Spain were heretofore subject to a duty of 13 pesetas per 2.2 pounds ($1.14 per pound).

JAMES MACDONALD'S 25TH ANNIVERSARY.

THE year 1905 marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of James Macdonald, of New York City as a master bookbinder. As one of the most successful of the craft in New York, and occupying singly a place in this country which in England is shared by Riviere and Zaehnsdorf, a brief notice of his career, "pour encourager les autres," will at this time be appropriate. Mr. Macdonald served his apprenticeship in Glasgow, and upon coming out of his time secured a position in Manchester, England. He soon realized that the opportunities for a working man in England were few and far between, and resolved to emigrate to the United States. At the age of twenty-three years he set out and landed in New York with little more than a thorough knowledge—such as is taught in Scotland—of his business. This was in 1873, when William Matthews was at the zenith of his fame, and Macdonald at once secured a position with him. This turned out to be a second apprenticeship, for he remained in the place for seven years. At the end of this period Mr. Macdonald had saved enough money to start business in a small way, which he did in conjunction with two other journeymen friends under the firm name of Fitzpatrick, Macdonald & Riley. The partners remained together for a few years, when Messrs. Fitzpatrick and Riley were bought out by Macdonald. After continuing in business for a time he found that his plant and its location in Williamsburgh were respectively too small and too inconveniently situated for a business which was growing by leaps and bounds. Just about this time he made the acquaintance of William Launder, and in conjunction with him formed the well-known firm of Launder & Macdonald, which continued for ten years. Both partners then decided to continue alone, and the partnership above-mentioned is the last one in which Mr. Macdonald was interested.

Successively occupying shops on South Fifth Avenue, Lafayette Place and West Twenty-seventh Street—each move marking a growth in business—Mr. Macdonald to-day, by dint of saving, industry and business capacity is the largest "custom" bookbinder in the United States. He has made several trips to Europe in order to secure the finest levant moroccos that are allowed to leave France, and, in addition, has imported a great many novelties which have rendered his bindings distinctive. Mr. Macdonald's reward has been according to his work and character—prosperity and a host of friends whom we join in wishing him many happy returns of the day.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. RICHARD LOVETT, secretary of the Religious Tract Society since 1899, and a well-known writer on religious subjects, died on December 29, in London, aged fifty-three years.

EDWARD M. BARNES, a son of the late A. S. Barnes, died at his home in Ridgefield Park, N. J., December 29. Mr. Barnes, who was for a time connected with A. S. Barnes & Co., was in recent years president and director of the Barnes Real Estate Association, secretary and director of the Eclectic Press, and director in Braunworth & Co.

FRANCIS HENRY NICHOLS, author of "Through Hidden Shensi," is reported to have died in Tibet. Mr. Nichols was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 31, 1868. After graduating from a Chicago High School he became a newspaper correspondent, representing several newspapers in Cuba during the Spanish-American War. In 1901, as correspondent of the Christian Herald, he went to China, riding 750 miles from Peking to Sian in the province of Shensi, thence 700 miles in canoes to Han Kow. At the time of his death he was heading for Lhasa in the company of a few Chinese.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JAMES JEFFREY ROCHE, poet, novelist and the editor of The Boston Pilot, has been appointed by the President consul to Genoa, and expects to sail for his post this month.

ELMER DOVER, private secretary to the late Senator Hanna, at the request of the Hanna family, is collecting data to be used in the official biography of "the advance agent of prosperity."

A. CAHAN is completing a novel of striking character which he has been engaged upon for a long time, picturing the actual inner life of Russia and the strange adventures of the revolutionists. Mr. Cahan was a member of the revolutionary party, and was forced to fly from Russia to avoid Siberia.

O. HENRY, the name on the title-page of the amusing novel of Central American politics, "Cabbages and Kings," is a pseudonym. The incognito of the author is preserved by him as far as possible. O. Henry, after many years of wandering through the West, has settled in New York, with his "eyes wide open," as he says, and it is to be expected that the oddities of New York life will have as amusing treatment from his hand in the near future as the oddities of Western life have in the past.

ANNA M. STODDART is preparing a biography of Isabella Bird Bishop. Mrs. Bishop deserves to be commemorated as probably the most widely travelled woman of the last century, and her many discoveries and books demand for her a place among the names of men and women who have contributed to the world's knowledge. "Korea and Her Neighbors," one of her latest publications, was brought into prominence by the course that events in the East have taken. Miss Stoddart was the chosen biographer of John Stuart Blackie, and has published many books that attest her ability to perform successfully her present task.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE rumor, widely circulated last week, that Everybody's Magazine had been purchased by representatives of the Standard Oil Company's interests, and that Lawson's further chapters of "Frenzied Finance" would be discontinued, is emphatically denied by Ridgeway, Thayer & Co., and by Mr. Lawson.

THOMAS E. WATSON, of Thomson, Ga., the candidate of the People's Party for President at the last election, incorporated with the Secretary of State at Albany, N. Y., on December 27, a stock company called Tom Watson's Magazine, for the purpose of publishing and circulating a monthly literary periodical of that name. The corporation is capitalized at $125,000, divided into 12,500 shares. It begins business with $3000 capital. The directors are Thomas E. Watson and John H. Girdner, William L. Daniels, Richard Duffy and Edward S. Green, of New York. The principal office is in New York City.

"THE History of the Standard Oil Company," by Ida M. Tarbell, recently brought out by McClure, Phillips & Co. in two handsome volumes, contains all the facts relative to the Standard that Miss Tarbell was able to gather, but not all the facts that she was able to collect about the career and personality of John D. Rockefeller. In her investigations she ran across a whole mass of material about the great organizer of the biggest "trust" the world has ever seen, which did not belong in her history. She is now at work on this material, and there will shortly appear in McClure's Magazine an extended sketch of this remarkable financier, showing his character, his endowments, his opportunities, and what he made of them.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Publishers' and Printers' Engraving Co. is reported to have gone into involuntary bankruptcy.

NEW YORK CITY.—Judge Edward B. Thomas in the United States Circuit Court, according to the New York Sun, appointed the Manhattan Trust Company receiver for the assets of Merrill & Baker, at 9-11 East Sixteenth Street. Judge Thomas is reported to have said that the receivers had been appointed in a suit in equity, and that no contention had been made that the concern was insolvent. He understands that the company had trouble in collecting its debts and that there were plenty of assets, but not available. The receiver was appointed at the instance of two stockholders, who are also creditors. Merrill & Baker is a New York corporation and is capitalized at $1,250,000. Daniel D. Merrill is president.

NEW YORK CITY.—Solomon Zickel, who has been in the book business in this city for upwards of forty-seven years, has sold out his importing business to the International News Company. Mr. Zickel for the present will retain his publishing business, including the Novellen-Schatz, "Familien Kalender," Eben's "Sprachmeister," etc., and a portion of his antiquarian stock. The International News Company will have the exclusive agency of the Novellen-Schatz.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

McCLURE PHILLIPS & Co. are publishing a third edition of their "Walter Pater," in the Contemporary Men of Letters Series.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish next spring a new novel by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, the title of which has not yet been determined upon.

THE well-received Christian Science novel, "Talitha Cumi," published by Lee & Shepard, on November 15, is already in its second edition, and a third printing will soon be required.

DOWLEDAV, PAGE & Co. have begun to publish "The Gallery of Masterpieces," the series of reproductions from paintings by the old masters, fully described by us about a month ago.

GEORGE F. FOSTER, who has been for many years the treasurer and advertising manager of Frederick A. Stokes Company, has retired from business because of ill health. Mr. Foster intends to enjoy his well-earned rest at his country home or in travel.

EXACTLY half of the novels printed by the Appletons this fall were written by women. Elinor Macartney Lane, the author of "Nancy Stair," heads the list as the most successful, and it also includes Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler, Frances Davidge and Anna Y. Condict.

THE BROADWAY PUBLISHING COMPANY, 835 Broadway, New York City, announce for immediate publication "A Dictionary Gentleman and His Family," by Caroline Mortimer Gilbert; "A Submarine Tour," by Frank Balch; also, "The Renewal," by Mary Tarver Carroll.

FRANK PERGANDE, 320 Maple Street, Milwaukee, Wis., has published an instruction book on United States Civil Service examinations, covering upwards of one hundred different examinations. The book has been favorably recommended by government officials.

CUPPLES & LEON, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City, have become sole agents in the United States for Edward B. Lent's "Being Done Good," an amusing account of a rheumatic's experiences with doctors and specialists who promised to do him good. A new illustrated edition is now ready and is being rapidly taken up.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY, Akron, O., has just ready a boys' book entitled "A Gallant Grenadier," by Captain F. S. Brereton, with illustrations by Wal Paget. This is a tale of the Crimean war, in the course of which is given a description of how the "Gallant Six Hundred" met their fate, the hero being among them.

THE WA-WAN PRESS, organized in 1901, at Newton Centre, Mass., by Arthur Farwell, a pupil of Humperdink, for the purpose of producing new music by American composers that should make its appeal wholly on grounds of artistic excellence, announces that a feature of the 1905 series will be in the instrumental part, developments of the music of the Indians of the Southwest, Navajos, Tiguas, Cahuillas and others, and in the vocal part, some of the best Spanish-American songs of California.

GINN & Co. have published in their Standard English Classics a collection of the poems by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, edited by Elizabeth Lee, sister of Sidney Lee, the distinguished Shakespearian scholar. Miss Lee's work consists of selecting the pieces and in editing the text, with biographical and critical introduction and bibliographical and explanatory notes. There are twenty-three shorter poems given in complete form, all of which, as well as the extracts, are supposed to indicate some mental phase of the poet.

THE ANGLER'S ANNUAL, 1905, edited by Charles Bradford, and published by the Nassau Press, Jamaica, N. Y., is mostly composed of an alphabetical enumeration of American fishes, a popular key by which the fishes may be instantly identified. It is a sort of dictionary of the fresh water and salt water species—their appellations, colors, haunts, habits, habitats, foods, baits, weights, ranges, tides, seasons, sizes, shapes and similes, with a practical account of the popular rods, baits and tackle used in their capture. There is an index of fifteen hundred local names, and a summary of the fishing resorts.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just published "The Student's Chronological New Testament," by Archibald T. Robertson, professor in the Louisville Theological Seminary, a volume of peculiar attraction to those who are interested in early church history and New Testament study. They have in press a new book dealing with the questions and problems of the everyday man, by Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," to be entitled "The Heart of the World;" also, a novel dealing with the Quakers and their trials, entitled "For a Free Conscience," by L. C. Wood, a "member of meeting."

THE RANDOLPH-FREEMAN COMPANY 24-26 East 21st Street, New York, have in preparation for early publication "The Parliamentarian," by Cora Welles Trow, a timely little volume which will be of great service to the average chairman of assemblies and the members of societies wishing to conduct their gatherings in a strictly parliamentary manner. The book is so arranged as to make it an easy matter to turn to all given points, and can be readily carried and easily consulted. A special feature of the book treats of the proper methods to be employed in the preparation for an extemporaneous speech, and the rules which govern informal debate.

E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY will publish at once George Gissing's last book, "Veranilda." At the time of Mr. Gissing's death the book was finished with the exception of two or three chapters. Frederick Harrison, his friend, read the proof and contributes an introduction to the book, leaving the story exactly as the author had written it. The story itself deals with the subject which was nearest the author's heart—Rome, Central and Southern Italy, where the author had spent his last and his happiest years. Mr. Harrison believes that it is in this field, rather than in the trials and tragedies of middle class life, that Mr. Gissing had at last found his true sphere.

WILLIAM WOOD & Co., New York, have published for private circulation an interesting sketch of their firm, entitled "One Hundred Years of Publishing, [1804-1904,] a brief historical account of the house of William Wood and Company." The booklet is an amplification of the sketch printed in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, August 30, 1902, and is illustrated with portraits, views of the different premises occupied by the firm and a facsimile of the first book printed by Samuel Wood, the founder of the firm, and one of a steamboat ticket with an advertisement of William Wood's on the reverse. The firm of William Wood & Co., with the single exception of the Methodist Book Concern, is the oldest publishing house in New York City.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce a new volume from the pen of the author of "Letters to a Son from His Self-Made Father." It will be entitled "A Self-Made Man's Wife: Her Letters to Her Son." The author, Charles Eustace Merriam, says that although he has tried to please those readers who were primarily attracted to the first book by its humor, he has also striven to make the second a more serious piece of literature by showing what the self-made father and son owed to the homely, old-fashioned wife and mother, with all her goodness and kindness, not unmingled with shrewdness and a keen knowledge of human nature. They will publish shortly "England Under the Stuarts," by George M. Trevelyan; "The Governance of England," by Sidney Low; "Constantine the Great," by J. B. Firth; "Thomas Cranmer and the English Reformation," by Albert F. Pollard; also, the first part of "The History of Furniture," by Percy MacQuoid.

PICK-UPS.

"I want a letter writer with love letters."

"Here is a fine one in five volumes—the last volume will appear in three months."

"I'm afraid it will be all off by that time."—Fliegende Blätter.

BUSINESS WISDOM FROM "OLD GORGON GRAHAM."

"In business as well as in war the regret-to-report man gets a gloomy welcome at headquarters."

"It isn't what a man's got in the bank, but what he's got in his head, that makes him a great merchant."

"Look in a man's eyes for honesty; around his mouth for weakness; at his chin for strength; at his hands for temperament; at his nails for cleanliness."

"WHEN a man makes a specialty of knowing how the other fellow ought to spend his money he usually thinks in millions and works for hundreds."

"It's better to see ten bores than to miss one buyer. A house never gets so big that it can afford to sniff at a hundred pound sausage order, or to feel that any customer is so small that it can afford not to bother with him. You've got to open a good many oysters to find a pearl."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 20 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

IN answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name, the word [Cash].

WRITE your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

While in no way connected, it is a companion story to Mr. Dixon's "epoch-making" book, "The Leopard's Spots."

A dramatic love story, showing Lincoln as the true friend of the South, and revealing for the first time the truth about the mysterious Ku Klux Klan.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE of books in print and for sale July 1, 1876, compiled under the direction of F. LEVY, and its supplements, 1876-84, 1884-90, 1890-95, and 1895-1900, compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER, aims to present all the bibliographical features of the books in the American market, arranged in the first part alphabetically by both authors and titles, and in the second part alphabetically by subjects.

The Catalogue and its supplementary volumes form the only approximately complete guide in existence to the American books of the day, so arranged as to make reference easy from whatever direction the inquiry may come, whether from that of the author, or the title, or the subject. It not only furnishes the desired information about any particular book of which the consumer is in search, but shows what others there are by the same author or on the same subject in which he is interested. To the bookseller, therefore, it is valuable both in filling orders and in stimulating business; to the librarian, in supplying gaps and proportioning his collection; and to all who are practically concerned with books, in furnishing information by a convenient method.

The author-and-title volume of the 1876 volume is out of print. A limited number of the subject volume may be had in half leather binding at $15.

The volumes covering the periods 1876-84 and 1884-90 are also out of print.

HERE, in condensed form, for ready instruction, is the essence of "Jiu-Jitsu"—the methods of attack and self-defense which enable the weak to overcome the strong. Much has been written about "Jiu-Jitsu" of late, but no book has treated the subject in a manner which enables the reader so thoroughly to grasp the knack of the combat tricks as this book.

"JIU-JITSU" is a perfect defense against the use of fists and all the ordinary forms of wrestling. An expert in this art can successfully meet an armed adversary or a man of greatly superior fighting skill. Every man should have some understanding of "Jiu-Jitsu."

A.D. 1806

IN that year Noah Webster issued his first dictionary. The law covering copyrights then was 14 years with a 14 year renewal—so that in 1834 (1806 plus the two terms of 14 years each—28 years in all) even Noah Webster himself had no exclusive right to his own name as applied to a dictionary, editorial work on which he had done.

NINE YEARS LATER—in 1843—he died and G. & C. Merriam bought from his executors—what? The estate's right to an unexpired term of copyright in a dictionary he published subsequent to the 1806 book, and they bought nothing else because the executors had nothing else to sell them.

Could his executors sell a right that was not part of his estate? Certainly not—and if they could not—where do G. & C. Merriam's successors, the G. & C. Merriam Co., get sufficient assurance to claim rights that were not the property of their predecessors? I believe it will be granted that such a degree of assurance is a valuable asset in some occupations, (notably brass foundries,) but it is not worth much in the publishing business.

The plain truth of the matter is G. & C. Merriam Co. are so much afraid of G. W. Ogilvie's new Webster's Imperial Dictionary that they are acting in a most unbusinesslike manner, going about with bully, bluster and brag, threatening everybody with suits for damages if they dare to sell Webster Dictionaries not issued by G. & C. Merriam Co. Why don't they come to Chicago and get an injunction restraining me from publishing my book if I am doing that which is wrong? As they don't do it—do you need to fear them? Not much. If I've made it too hot for them—why don't they shut off the furnace instead of threatening to open the front gate—the first method is safe—the second is apt to result in a bad cold. Bear in mind, 1806 to 1905, 99 years. A copyright never lasted over 42 years, and here is the constitutional provision under which they are granted at all—see Constitution of the United States, Section VIII., Article 8:

"To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing, for limited times, to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries."

Do you notice that "for limited times?" That doesn't mean 99 years; it means just what the law says—42 years now, and meant 28 years in 1806. G. & C. Merriam Co.'s actions make me think of that politician who upon requesting a Governor to do something for him was met by the objection that what he wanted done was unconstitutional, and who replied "What's the Constitution between friends?" Only they go that remark one better and say, in effect, that they guess the Constitution doesn't apply to them at all in connection with Webster's Dictionaries. Well now doesn't it? We've all heard of the fellow that had "one more guess coming." What is this fuss all about anyway?

IT'S A SHORT STORY

Geo. W. Ogilvie publishes the best Webster's Dictionary ever issued, Webster's Imperial Dictionary, which is being sold at $5.00 retail, just one half the price of the Merriam International that appeared in 1890, 15 years ago. That's where the shoe pinches—it is the strong competition of a better book, a newer book, a book on which a living discount is allowed to the trade, a book at half their retail price, thumb index thrown in without extra cost to the purchaser—a book with 1956 pages from A to Z in place of 1681 pages as the nearest competitor has, that's what's worrying them. Good reason did you say? Yes I agree with you perfectly.

GEO. W. OGILVIE, Publisher, Chicago, Ill.

Had Harold MacGrath's story of a Washington escapade, "THE MAN ON THE BOX," been written for the stage and well acted, it would have been voted a clean, spirited and clever society comedy, and in book form it deserves no less complimentary a rating. The author seems to have been in the best of humor with himself, his characters and his audience; and takes us into his confidence with an engaging unconventionality which almost goes to the point of winking at us over the lovers' shoulders.

have the pleasure of announcing

THEODORE THOMAS

A MUSICAL AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Edited by GEORGE P. UPTON

THE death of the great orchestral director last week closed the most remarkable musical life of modern times.

When his long activity in the cause of musical culture in America is considered, as well as his unequalled eminence in his calling, the importance and authority of this work, arranged by his life-long friend and companion, will be appreciated. It will furthermore be absolutely complete, as Mr. Thomas stated some weeks ago that no additions to his autobiography would be made—he had said all that he would ever care to.

The work will be published in two volumes—the first devoted to the Autobiography, with a preface by Mr. Upton (himself the dean of American writers on music). The second volume will consist principally of programmes (a record of inestimable value) and an essay by Mr. Thomas of great interest to followers of orchestral music. Both volumes will be copiously illustrated.

In every respect this will be the most important publication in musical literature brought out in many years.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WYCLIFF & Co., 83 Nassau Street, New York, will publish on February 1 the fourth edition of Eleanor A. Tenant's "A B C of Bridge," which has been revised and greatly enlarged.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish shortly a cheap edition of "The American Revolution," by the Right Hon. Sir George O. Trevelyan. It will be issued in three volumes. Vol. 1, which was originally published as part 1, has been largely rearranged, carefully revised, and in places rewritten. A new preface and a portrait of the author will also appear in this edition.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just brought out a new detective story by Anna

Katharine Green, entitled "The Millionaire Baby." A young lawyer in despondent mood from ill success sees two advertisements, one offering $5000, the other $50,000 for information about an abducted child, stolen from a beautiful Hudson River estate. The lawyer recognizes the description, knows it is a child he has met as "the millionaire baby." When the story opens she is six years old. He plans to find her, and during his skilful arrangements he meets men, women and events that work into one of this expert author's most exciting stories, which has been greatly changed and improved since it appeared in serial form.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will publish in April Theodore Thomas's autobiography originally announced for the fall. The book is to be entitled "Theodore Thomas: a Musical Autobiography," and will consist of two large volumes—the first devoted to his life work—an autobiography written expressly for this work by Mr. Thomas during the summer of 1904 at Felsengarten, his New Hampshire summer home—and the second almost entirely to programmes from 1855 to 1905. The entire work has been edited by Mr. Thomas's lifelong friend, George P. Upton, who is known as an authoritative writer on musical subjects, and it will undoubtedly form one of the most important contributions to musical literature brought out in many years.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish next month "Castel del Monte," by Nathan Galizier, a romance of the 13th century, dealing with the Ghibelline wars and the overthrow of Manfred; "The Black Barque," a new sea story by T. Jenkins Hains, author of "The Wind Jammers," etc.; "The Winged Helmet," a new story by Harold Steele MacKaye, author of "The Panchronicon;" also, "Lady Penelope," by Morley Roberts, whose "Rachel Marr" created such a stir in literary circles. They have in preparation a fine edition of Disraeli's "Vivian Grey," "Sybil," "Coningsby" and "Tancred," with photogravure frontispieces, forewords and critical essays. The publication at this time, in a new dress, of these volumes is especially opportune, owing to the widespread interest in the hundredth anniversary of the birth of the author.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will bring out on February 2 H. B. Marriott Watson's new book, "Hurricane Island," said to be the best adventurous romance since Stevenson's "Treasure Island." It is a rattling story of a meeting on board the yacht of a German Prince, and there is a thrilling contest for the treasure on a lonely island. They will bring out early next month "The Lion's Skin," by John S. Wise. It is a novel of Southern history, and tells the story of a couple who go to Virginia after the Civil War and have a part in the course of dramatic reconstruction events. Mr. Wise is the son of the Hon. Henry Wise, the famous war governor and general of Virginia, and is himself widely known as author and raconteur. He is an ex-Confederate Republican Congressman from Virginia. In "The Lion's Skin" fact and fiction are ingeniously interwoven.

Corbyn, Mrs. Clara A. B. La Gran Quibira, a musical mystery, opera historique: a romanza in five acts; with overture, prelude and interlude. Author's ed. [Los Angeles, Cal., Clara A. B. Corbyn, 1904.] c. 533 p. por. D. cl., $2.50.

La Gran Quibira, the scene of the fanciful novel, was, according to the traditions of the North American Indians, the principal city of the Cibola (a group of seven cities), occupied in 1539 by the Zunis. The remarkable history of the ruins of La Gran Quibira, lost for a time, later occupied by Franciscan monks, lost again and rediscovered by Lewis and Clark, is told by the author in her efforts to supply the connecting link in Aztec history. The incidents are unusual and tragic. The characters are some real, others mythical. The writer's home was built on a government claim believed to be the site of the buried city.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY R. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 14, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

INVENTORIES AND VALUATION OF ASSETS.

WITH the beginning of a new year, publishers, and booksellers as well, naturally turn their attention to inventories and the valuation of their assets. The publisher with his plates and sheet-stock and remainders, the bookseller with his shelf-stock standing over after, let us hope, a gratifying depletion through the holiday season, both have to face the same problem—a vital question, to which the wrong answer may mean ruin in the future. Many a publisher, many a bookseller, who has credited himself with large profits in prosperous years, by disregarding the steady lessening of value on old stock has found himself in a tight place in seasons of poor trade, and has gone to the wall because he did not in times of prosperity discount losses and prepare for times of adversity.

Of course, there is nothing more valuable in a publisher's stock in trade than the plates of a live book, particularly a copyright work, which has many seasons of sale before it, and which, as a "big seller," has already paid for the plates, leaving a handsome profit on each edition printed and on each additional copy sold. But such plates are the exception rather than the rule. It is perhaps the most serious trap laid for unwary publishers that they are justified by the general practice of the publishing trade in valuing plates at nearly their cost rather than their actual selling value as old metal. An industrial corporation owning machinery makes the most serious of mistakes when it fails to write off from year to year a liberal percentage for wear and tear and depreciation; and the same is more true in the case of publishers. There are few plates which are worth so much as 50 per cent. of their cost as plates, and the safe course in cases of doubt is to value them at the lower rather than at the higher figure. It were well for every manufacturer to face the facts, and not be deluded into paying from one pocket into another imaginary profits which leave capital depleted and invite danger in the future.

The like is true of booksellers' valuations. Books deteriorate on the shelves, sometimes the "big sellers" most of all. The wise bookseller will take this fact into account and not consider that even last year's purchases are worth what he paid for them. This is, of course, no reason for not taking full credit for standard books which are of permanent value; and inventory at close valuation brings out, as nothing else will, the importance of investing a large part of the bookseller's capital in works and editions which are of steady sale from year to year.

The inventory, with a fair valuation, is the chart of safety of the booktrade throughout all its departments; and he who fails to take account of stock, fully and justly, either because he does so well that he thinks this unnecessary, or because he is doing so ill that he fears to face the facts, invites consequences which must be sooner or later disastrous. A word to the wise when wisdom and good resolutions are in fashion!

SIMEON IDE

A PIONEER AMERICAN BOOKTRADE BIBLIOGRAPHER—SIMEON IDE.

A LITTLE over half a century ago the American booktrade was favored with a trade tool which, though indifferently received at the time, was to be the forerunner of a series of trade helps that, until this day, has proved of the greatest service to all who have to do with books, be they publisher, bookseller or librarian. We have reference to "The American Booksellers' Complete Reference Trade List," compiled by Alexander V. Blake, of New York City, and published in 1847 by Simeon Ide, of Claremont, N. H. Though this work, and the supplement published a year later, contained but 355 quarto pages, few of the present generation of the trade can have any idea of the nerve required to undertake the publishing of so novel a work, requiring so considerable an outlay of labor and capital. Up to the second half of the nineteenth century the booktrade had practically no means of keeping informed of the current publications, except through the announcements made by publishers in the daily papers and in the magazines. Among the latter, the North American Review gave the most comprehensive, as also the most reliable, lists of new books; but, at the best, reference to these lists was inconvenient, and required considerable labor. The lists published by Evert Duyckinck, and continued for a time by his former clerk, Orville A. Roobach, in a rather uncertain way filled the gap until the enterprise of Mr. Ide put within the reach of the bookseller the best bibliographical aid that had up to that day been published, not excepting the "Catalogue of all the Books Printed in the United States," published by the Booksellers in Boston in 1804, and the first booktrade journal, The Library, or, The Philadelphia Literary Reporter, published by the Philadelphia Company of Booksellers from March 24, 1804, to about 1809 or 1810.

"The American Booksellers' Complete Reference Trade List" contained the lists of 234 publishers. Of the firms represented, there now remain but eighteen, most of them with changed firm names. The lists, which were set up from copy furnished by the contributors, were arranged alphabetically by publishers, an alphabetical index, by author and title, and a list of books arranged in classes being appended. The "Laws of the United States relating to Copyrights," with notes and references to adjudged cases, by Peter T. Washburn, was also included. Nothing could have been more welcome to the bookseller of the time, so far as an authoritative and complete list of the books in print and for sale, arranged for quick and convenient reference was concerned; yet the work could not be continued beyond a single supplement, so inadequate was its support—a fate, by the way, that befell almost all of its successors.

The originator of the work, Mr. Simeon Ide, was a descendant of one of the two brothers Ide—Josiah and Daniel—who came from England in 1630, and settled at Rehoboth, Mass., making their purchase of land of the famous Indian chief, Massasoit. Simeon Ide was born in Shrewsbury, Mass., September 28, 1794. His father, Lemuel, in the early part of the nineteenth century removed to Newfane, in the lower section of Vermont, and Simeon at the age of fifteen entered as an apprentice the printing office of the Vermont Republican at Windsor, where he remained until, in his eighteenth year, he "bought his time till of age." He then commenced work in the office of The Washingtonian, printed in the same place, but after a year he left to engage in teaching. One winter term of pedagogical labors sufficed his ambition, and he returned to his trade, taking a position in the office of William Farnsworth, at Brattleboro, then one of the largest and best-appointed printing offices in New England. He next worked on the Rutland Herald. In 1814 he went home to New Ipswich, N. H., where his father had settled. There he fitted up a printing office in his father's disused blacksmith shop, and began the printing of the New Testament, one of the first brought out in New Hampshire. This was a most extraordinary undertaking for a young man of twenty, with but limited means, and no help excepting such as his small sister of nine could give him. The book was set in bourgeois type and was done on a two-pull Ramage (wooden frame and screen) press. It took over two years to bring the book out. In 1817 young Ide established himself at Brattleboro, and published The American Yeoman, which was so successful that he was induced to purchase the Vermont Republican, on which he had worked at Windsor when a boy not yet "out of his teens." He accepted the offer, removed to Windsor, and in 1818 published his paper under the title of The Vermont Republican and American Yeoman. While publishing this paper he also became the publisher of the "Laws of the United States." In 1821 he added bookbinding and bookselling to his newspaper business, and removed to larger quarters in Petter's Block, now the Vermont Journal building. He also undertook to manufacture school books for a number of Boston and New York publishers. In 1830 he absorbed the Vermont Journal, his paper having reached a circulation of over two thousand copies, which were chiefly distributed by post riders.

Up to 1824 he had but one wood frame two-pull Ramage press. In that year he was obliged to buy a Wells' iron hand press to enable him to fulfill a contract with the State of Vermont which he signed February 11, 1824, binding him to print, bind and deliver at Montpelier three thousand copies of the Vermont laws, a volume of 756 large octavo pages, (containing of course much table work,) on or before the 25th of the following October. All this type had to be set, the proof read and corrected and ninety-four and a half forms of eight pages each run off on one hand press and a Wells iron press, the books all bound in full sheep and delivered in eight months, under a bond of five thousand dollars. The work was so well done, and the books so promptly delivered, that the State paid Mr. Ide $500 extra. The contract price was $1.60 per volume.

In 1827 Mr. Ide responded to an advertisement sent out by John Quincy Adams, assistant postmaster-general, asking for bids to supply the U. S. Government with wrapping paper and twine, and all the printed blanks for the use of the post offices in all the New England States and New York State. Mr. Ide went to Washington by the most expeditious mode of travel of that time, requiring five days each way. He put in his bid and left the matter with some representative friend. The contract was awarded to him and he filled it for four years, receiving only two complaints for shorts or failure for the whole time.

In 1828 Mr. Ide added to his office a Haskell power press, and this and the Wells press named above were the first of their kind ever used in Vermont. At first the motive power for this press was an old blind horse. Later the press was removed to a building on Mill Brook, Windsor, and run by water power. At this time Mr. Ide's printing-office force consisted of his brother-in-law, N. W. Goddard, foreman, his brother, Truman, pressman, and four or five apprentice boys and two girls as typesetters. The apprentices lived in his family and were cared for as his own children. As a father, also, he cared for his six brothers and sisters during their minority, his three brothers-in-law and two sisters-in-law, finding them employment in permanent situations. His mother and his wife's mother both made his house their home a large part of their lives.

Quite a number of Mr. Ide's apprentices became prominent men. The Rev. Asa D. Smith, D.D., late president of Dartmouth College, served three years, and then bought his "time." He was Mr. Ide's lifelong friend. Preston C. Ruggles, the inventor of the raised letters for the blind, and the Ruggles printing presses, also served his time in his office.

In 1832 the Claremont Manufacturing Co. was incorporated with a charter allowing them with a capital of $500,000 to manufacture goods of cotton and wool and paper, and to do any business connected with the same. At about this time Claremont was wild with speculation. Mills of all kinds were being built, and the town was to be a second Lowell. The Claremont Company, about the time it obtained its charter, prevailed upon Mr. Ide to remove his business from Windsor to Claremont, and having sold their woollen machinery, they commenced making paper, and engaged in the printing, binding and publishing business. This was the first, and for a long time the only, concern which had a paper mill, printing office, bindery, publishing and bookselling business all under one roof.

Mr. Ide was made agent, treasurer and manager of the business. He carried the company through the panic of 1837, and built up a very large book manufacturing business for New York, Boston and Hartford publishers. In 1845, after the death of Noah Webster, Mr. Ide made a contract with Webster's son to print and publish Webster's large two-volume dictionary in one volume—the first edition to be in one volume. Mr. Ide brought the contract home, but the directors of the company would not make the venture, and so that contract went to the Merriams.

In 1858 Simeon Ide sold out to his sons, George G. and Lemuel N. His brother-in-law, Edward L. Goddard, succeeded him as agent and treasurer, and managed the business successfully for quite a number of years. Mr. Goddard in time sold out his interest in the company to George G. and L. N. Ide and Samuel L. Farman, who, in 1872, edited a monthly periodical, The Wide Awake, then published by the company, George G. Ide becoming agent and treasurer. Later Mr. Farman sold out, and George G. Ide died in 1883. Lemuel N. Ide then became agent and treasurer and sole active member, and conducted the business for four years. The paper mill having been burnt out twice and not being rebuilt the second time, the machinery needing renewal and the business having fallen off, it was concluded to sell the plant and close up the business. The company having lived through fifty-two years, always successful and never failing to pay all demands, Lemuel N. Ide, in 1886-7, sold out the property, collected all the accounts due them and paid every dollar of indebtedness. In 1889 Lemuel N. Ide went to Boston and for twelve years was connected with the Old Corner Bookstore. On January 5, 1902, Lemuel N. Ide resigned his position there, and having been a bookseller more than sixty years he retired from business, and now resides at Newton Centre, Mass., with one of his five sons, Henry J., who is vice-president of the Mercantile Fire and Marine Insurance Co., the oldest fire insurance company in Boston, incorporated in 1823.

Mr. Ide, the founder of the business, after his retirement in 1858, being then sixty-four years of age, soon chafed at inactivity, and started to build the Round Building, so-called at the time. When completed he stocked it with a lot of up-to-date machinery for the manufacturing of books, and obtained a number of large contracts from New York and other publishers. However, difficulties with a large Ruggles press, the failure of the Ruggles Company and the panicky condition of the times obliged Mr. Ide to close out the business at a heavy loss. He then came to New York City, and under the patronage of the General Protestant Episcopal Sunday-School Union Publishing Company engaged in stereotyping for three years. In 1863 he returned to Claremont and bought out The National Eagle, a weekly newspaper published by John S. Walker, which Mr. Ide continued successfully for three years, when he sold out to Arthur Chase, and determined again to retire. But his training was inimical to loafing, and one more he set up a printing office in the house he had just built and set up type for the Claremont Manufacturing Company. There, at the age of eighty-five, he wrote and set up the type of a 240-page sixteenmo book entitled "A Biographical Sketch of the Life of William B. Ide . . . and what is claimed as the most authentic and reliable account of the virtual conquest of California, in June, 1846, by the Bear Flag Party, as given by its leader, the late Hon. William Brown Ide." He also wrote and set up a book entitled "Grandfather's Story," chiefly an account of his boyhood, intended for his grandchildren, but afterwards published by William L. Mott, of the Church Book Depository at Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Ide was a very earnest, but not a noisy politician. He voted for James Monroe in 1816, and at each of the presidential elections down to Benjamin Harrison in 1888. He was a zealous churchman, often a vestryman, many times member of diocesan conventions of Vermont and New Hampshire, and twice a member of the General Convention of the church, once from Vermont and once from New Hampshire. He married Evelina P. Goddard, daughter of Nicholas Goddard, at Rutland, Vt., March 12, 1818, and had two sons and eight daughters, all but one of whom lived to maturity.

At his death, on June 22, 1889, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wilson Dibblee, in Boston, one of his associates said of him: "Siméon Ide was held in the highest estimation by the printing fraternity throughout New England. His personnel was quiet and unobtrusive. Educated in the school of trials and adversities incident to his day and generation, he became, under its severe discipline, the full and complete man that we knew. All his years have been marked with great industry and much business enterprise and energy. Self-educated in the printing office, he was a writer of acknowledged ability, careful and considerate and painstaking—always effective." He was 94 years and 8 months old, and the oldest printer in New England.

Mr. Ide's associate in preparing the "Reference Trade List," Alexander Viets Blake, was born in 1815, in Hartford, Conn., and there bred to the book business. His father was the Rev. John L. Blake, of the Episcopal Church, a well-known preacher, and author of a number of school books and theological works. Mr. Blake came to New York in 1842 and opened a bookstore on the north side of Fulton Street, just below Nassau Street. He published a number of juvenile and miscellaneous books, including his father's "Biographical Dictionary," Byron's "Complete Works," etc. We have been unable to trace his whereabouts after the "Reference Trade List" was published.

THE BOOK OF THE PRESIDENTS.

"THE Book of the Presidents and Representative Americans," with which General Grosvenor, of Ohio, was connected, was concerned in a suit in equity filed in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia on January 11 by Robert E. Dean, of New York City. He names as defendants the Trow Printing and Bookbinding Company of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Abram P. T. Elder, Lucy S. Bahnsen and Irene L. Faust and the National Biographical Society of New York City, and asks for the appointment of a receiver for the latter concern.

Mr. Dean alleges that on February 1, 1904, Elder, being interested in the publication, represented that 1000 books then at the Trow building would be sold unless an indebtedness of $2500 was paid. An agreement was made whereby General Grosvenor furnished the necessary funds to be used as a trust and repaid with interest by Elder and the National Biographical Society. Elder, he charges, has not kept the agreement, and Dean therefore asks the court to order an accounting by Elder, Bahnsen and Faust of all subscriptions to the book; that Elder be required to deliver to General Grosvenor certain securities mentioned in the agreement; that the copyright of the book be transferred to the Society; that the Trow company be restrained from disposing of the 1000 volumes, and that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the Society's affairs.

THE ITALIAN TAX ON BOUND BOOKS.

THE Council of the English Publishers' Association, requested by the Società Tipografica, of Florence, to support their efforts with the Italian Government in regard to the tax recently levied on bound books, have passed the following resolution:

The Publishers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland hereby expresses its regret at the recent application of the Luzzatti Act to printed books imported into Italy, and its complete sympathy with the Chamber of Commerce of Florence in the efforts it is making with the Italian Minister of Finance to obtain the removal of all restrictions on imported books, and the observation, in the fullest sense of the word, of the provisions of the Universal Postal Union.

The above resolution has been forwarded to the Postmaster-General and the Foreign Office of England, the Chamber of Commerce in Florence, and the Permanent Copyright Bureau at Berne.

In connection with this action of the Publishers' Association the London Publishers' Circular prints the following translation of an address recently delivered by Signor Bemporad before the Chamber of Commerce in Florence:

"There is at present an import duty on all bound books, printed in Italian or in any other language, at the rate of twenty lire per hundred weight.

"It is hardly necessary to show that this duty, purely fiscal in its nature, is directly opposed to that modern conception accepted by the conscience of all civilized people—I mean, that it is the duty of the State to forward the diffusion of knowledge by every means in its power. To impose a check upon popular culture is always reprehensible, and doubly so in a country like Italy, where scientific and technical books are not produced in any quantity. The duty strikes at nearly all foreign books indiscriminately, for in Germany, England and America in particular the books that are put upon the market are almost exclusively bound books. And, on the other hand, the products of light literature (unbound novels) are allowed free ingress to our country, and we are inundated by a flood of such works from France, which certainly do not contribute to the intellectual improvement of the Italians.

"The import duty on bound books is one of the crimes of fiscalism, and as the eminent Professor Dalla Volta has justly said, 'a fresh obstacle added to those already existing—such as high prices and a foreign language—to impede the free ingress of knowledge in our country.'

"Wise statesmen would cancel this item of the fiscal programme. But instead of so doing, modern statesmen do their utmost to aggravate it.

"In fact, a recent ministerial enactment imposes a further alarming restriction on the circulation of printed matter sent from abroad by book post. This restriction emanated from the Customs (Luzzatti Act), and the post-office (poor Cinderella!) submitted to the exactions of the Customs, regardless of the fact that it was thereby contravening the conditions of the Postal Union. The Ministry of Finance has, accordingly, cut off three categories of articles (sources of profit) from the post-office: Category A, comprising articles it is absolutely forbidden to send by book post at all; such articles may either be summarily confiscated or sent back to the offices whence they were transmitted; Categories B and C, comprising articles of no value, bound books, printed matter, and kindred objects; if such articles, sent by book post, exceed the regulation weight in each class they are returned to the senders by the post-office without further parley.

"It is not enough to pay the customs dues; it is further necessary to transmit in the manner most convenient to the Minister of Finance.

"Booksellers habitually make a liberal use of book post (i.e., packets sent sotto fascia or in open wrappers) for their consignments from abroad, firstly, because such commerce is in its nature retail; secondly, because in the feverish activity of modern science and industry it is indispensable that students should be promptly informed of the progress made by other nations, and a packet sent by book post takes only about a quarter of the time required for a postal parcel from London, Paris, Berlin, or Vienna; thirdly, because in the majority of cases book post is by far the most economical means of transport.

"The recent Ministerial regulation prohibits the transmission from foreign countries to Italy of any sort of bound book weighing more than 400 grammes (recently increased to 500 grammes). When it exceeds this the sender is consequently forced to make use of the Parcels Post, and so, for a book costing 3 lire a copy and weighing 501 grammes, he would have to pay (instead of 50 centesimi) from Germany 1 lira 75 c., from France 1 lira 25 c., from England 2 lire 75 c. In addition to this, the book would take about three times longer to reach its destination.

"But is this just? Is it even legal, in view of the International Postal Convention? Assuredly not.

"In the case of lithographs, maps, and illustrated cards the consequences are even more disastrous, for the maximum weight allowed for these by book post, in the Luzzatti Act, is 100 grammes.

"The International Postal Convention prescribes a limit of 2 kilogrammes for book packages sent to or from foreign countries.

"The Minister of Finance is guilty of an unworthy action when he orders that book packages containing bound books and exceeding the regulation weight should be sent back without more ado to the transmitters. Why? If they are determined to uphold this odious tax, worthy of the executive of the ancient Papal States, where education was a crime, they ought to order that all book packages containing bound books should be forwarded to their destinations by the Customs Department, as are postal parcels, rather than returned to their transmitters.

"It was with this suggestion that the Associazione Tipografico-Libreria Italiana concluded the petition addressed by it to the minister. Failing this, it urged that there should at least be some modification of certain illogical regulations highly prejudicial to the bookseller's trade.

"The Cercle de la Librairie, of Paris—in other words, the association of all French publishers and booksellers—petitioned their own Government to protest to the Italian Government against such arbitrary and inequitable measures.

"The Fourth Commission therefore concluded that it would be well if our Chamber of Commerce took part in this general protest, and gave it additional weight by its vote. I therefore propose the following resolution for adoption by the chamber:

"The Chamber of Commerce of Florence is convinced that the restrictions recently imposed by the Minister of Finance on the circulation of book packets from abroad containing bound books constitute not only a violation of the International Postal Convention, but also a serious menace to the bookselling trade, and, further, a grave impediment to the diffusion of knowledge."

A SHAKESPEARE DISCOVERY.

THE London Morning Leader's Copenhagen correspondent reports the discovery at Lund, Sweden, of a book containing the text of Shakespeare's "Titus Andronicus," said to be printed in London in 1594. The oldest edition hitherto known is the 1600 quarto.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WARREN F. DRAPER, one of the oldest New England publishers, died at Andover, Mass., January 9. Mr. Draper was born in East Deadham, Mass., December 12, 1818. He was graduated from Phillips-Andover Academy and Amherst College, and in 1849 started in the publishing business at Andover by purchasing the interests of Flagg & Wardwell in the Andover Publishing House. This publishing concern was established in 1809, one year after the opening of the Andover Theological Seminary, by Mark Newman, who for fourteen years had been the principal (the third in office) of Phillips Academy. Mr. Newman continued till near the close of his long life of nearly eighty-seven years. He died in 1859. Four years after Mr. Newman opened his bookstore Flagg & Gould began a printing business, at first printing for Mr. Newman and others, but soon for themselves as publishers. The firm of Flagg & Gould remained unchanged for twenty years. In 1833 they admitted as partner Mark H. Newman, son of Mark Newman. Mr. Flagg died the same year and Gould & Newman continued the business till 1841. They were succeeded by Allen, Morrill & Wardwell in 1841, W. H. Wardwell in 1847, Flagg & Wardwell in 1848, and by Warren F. Draper in 1849. Mr. Draper published the writings of a number of noted theologians, among whom Drs. Edwards and Park are probably the best known, and under his management the Bibliotheca Sacra was established and maintained for many years before it was transferred to Oberlin. In August, 1889, Mr. Draper sold his retail book business to John N. Cole, and in June, 1903, he incorporated his business as Warren F. Draper & Company.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

WILLIAM F. G. SHANKS is in Hamilton, Bermuda, partly for his health and also to complete his "Journalistic Reminiscences of the Last Half of the Nineteenth Century" In his preface he points out that this is no autobiography. He has tried to eliminate, as far as possible, his own personality. He writes about such persons as George D. Prentice, Henry J. Raymond, Horace Greeley, all the Presidents of the United States since 1840, and celebrated actors, actresses, and many literary men and women, all of whom he knew personally.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Thought, an advocate of Psycho-Therapy, is the title of a new monthly magazine, the first number of which has just been published by the Magnum Bonum Company, 4665 Lakeside Avenue, Chicago.

WITH the February issue the periodical published for the past two years by Charles Scribner's Sons under the title of The Lamp will again resume its old name of The Book Buyer. It will also assume its old function, namely, of being "a periodical that shall be devoted exclusively to the interests of the various departments of the publishing firm of Charles Scribner's Sons." It will be distributed gratuitously, and nothing will be left undone to make the periodical entertaining.

BEGINNING with the issue for January 14, Collier's Weekly will contain a new department entitled "What the World is Doing," a review of current history. In it will be discussed events that have to do with human progress. Things of future interest, which the newspapers almost ignore, will be made prominent, while those that inspire big headlines will be passed over. In short, it is announced that the essential things that go to make up the history of the time will be extracted from the mass of facts made public from day to day.

THE first number of Doubleday, Page & Company's new Garden Magazine is not only a beautiful periodical dealing with the most fascinating and refreshing of all subjects for busy people, but it is the logical working out of a very real growing interest in flower, vegetable and fruit gardening in all their phases. A dozen articles contributed by competent writers treat of indoor and outdoor gardening, plants, flowers, shrubs, etc., how to nurse and protect them, etc., while some twenty or more departments cover all branches of flower and vegetable gardening, garden trees and shrubs, hothouse and cold frame growing, indoor plants and window boxes in the various parts of the country. Altogether it is a magazine of general interest for people who find a new fascination in the things of the soil. It is one of the few ten-cent magazines that is printed with the best coated paper and the superb illustrations that really illustrate.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE municipality of Venice will unveil on January 26 a tablet marking the house occupied by John Ruskin while residing in that city.

W. A. WILDE COMPANY have just put to press the sixty-fifth thousand of Peloubet's "Select Notes" on the International Sunday School lessons for the year 1905.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will add to their Cambridge edition of English and American poets a volume on Chaucer, edited by F. Norris Robinson, assistant professor of English in Harvard.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have purchased the stock and publication rights of Andrew Carnegie's "The Gospel of Wealth." This makes a companion book to "The Empire of Business," published several years ago, which had a sale of over 10,000 copies.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish early next month Abraham Cahan's new novel of "inner Russia," "The White Terror and the Red," originally announced under the title of "The Chasm." The story, although dealing with events that occurred in Russia before the author came to America in 1882, including the assassination of Alexander II. and the exciting episodes of that time, may be expected to throw light on little known political conditions in Russia at the present day.

THE exhibit of A. C. McClurg & Co.'s publications at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition has been awarded a gold medal, which seems to be a deserved recognition of the distinction and excellence in book making that is attracting attention to the McClurg imprint. A number of their books of 1904 have been notably successful, as they report five editions of "My Lady of the North," six editions of "When Wilderness Was King," three editions of "The Illini," three editions of "When Little Boys Sing," and two editions of "Farmington."

THE recent debate between President Schurman, of Cornell, and Bourke Cochran as regards religious training in education has been followed by other discussions which indicate the widespread feeling that some practical guidance to a right life is needed beyond that ordinarily furnished in schools. It is understood that many prominent men have been interested in the subject, and that one result may be the publication of a book of a distinctive and practical character wholly different from the ordinary manuals of ethics designed to meet this need.

BRENTANO's announce under the title of The Music of the Masters a new series of handbooks for the music-lover, edited by Wakeling Dry. Each volume will deal solely with the music of the composer of whom it treats, and will enable the plain man to listen to the works he hears in the concert-room with the interest that is deepened and extended by understanding. Numerous musical quotations will illustrate the text, and in the production of the volumes every effort has been made to render the series attractive and acceptable as regards type, paper and binding. "Wagner," by Ernest Newman, and "Tchaikovsky," by E. Markham Lee, the first two volumes, are about ready, and others will be issued at short intervals. "Practical Poker," "Bridge Maxims," "Call-the-Euchre," three new manuals for card-players, by R. F. Foster, the card editor of the New York Sun, are just ready.

RALPH RANDOLPH ADAMS, 256 W. Twenty-third Street, New York, is taking orders for a sumptuous work on eighteenth century furniture, by Luke Vincent Lockwood, being a description of the famous Pendleton Collection brought out by The Rhode Island School of Design, of Providence, R. I. The collection of English and colonial furniture and of Chinese and English porcelains, presented by Charles L. Pendleton, of Providence, to the Rhode Island School of Design, is representative of the famous period of artistic furniture in England from the time of Froman-tell and Clark, about 1690 to a century later, taking in the choicest creations of Sheraton and Hepplewhite. The Dutch style, known as the Queen Anne style, and the Chippendale school, with its French provenance, form the greater part of the collection. The work is a folio, 11 x 14 inches, and is very fully illustrated with full-page and decorative drawings, etc.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish this month a new volume in the Expansion of Republic series, entitled "Steps in the Expansion of Our Territory," by Oscar P. Austin, chief of the Bureau of Statistics in Washington, who aims to point out by means of an extensive series of maps the complete chain of circumstances by which the United States has grown into its present domain; "The Story of Extinct Civilization in the West," by Robert E. Anderson, a new volume in the Useful Stories series, who, beginning with Plato's "Atlantis," has gathered into a few brief chapters the gist of all that has been brought to light to support the theory of a pre-Columbian discovery of America, and gives an account of Aztec civilization down to the conquest of Mexico and Peru by Cortez and Pizarro; also, a novel by Frank H. Spearman, (who leaves the railways and their romance to write a story of the stage,) entitled "The Close of Day," the heroine of which is an actress loved by a man of wealth.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a "History of English Furniture," by Percy MacQuoid, to be in twenty folio parts, fully illustrated; the first volume of Adolf Harnack's work on "The Expansion of Christianity in the First Three Centuries," translated by the Rev. Dr. G. W. Moffett, to be complete in two volumes, forming the sixth issue in the Theological Translation Library; "Biblical Problems and the New Material for Their Solution," by the Rev. Thomas Cheyne, Oriel Professor of the Interpretation of Scripture in Oxford; "The Doctrine of the Atonement and Religion and Religion and Modern Culture," by Auguste Sabatier, the eighth and ninth issues in the Crown Theological Library; "Constantine the Great, the reorganization of the Empire and the triumph of the church," by J. B. Firth, a new volume in the Heroes of the Nations series; also, "Thomas Cranmer and the English Reformation, 1489-1556," by Albert F. Pollard, the latest addition to the Heroes of the Reformation series.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY announce a new book by the Rev. Dr. M. P. Talling, entitled "Inter-Communion with God," in which the author of "Extempore Prayer" exhibits and emphasizes "God's communion with men as the element in our spiritual intercourse which makes it reciprocal." They will publish early in the spring, in book form, under the title "The Evangelistic Note," the sermons preached in Plymouth Church by the celebrated English lecturer and preacher, W. J. Dawson. Mr. Dawson is known as a man of the highest culture, a connoisseur and collector of works of art, a writer of the first rank and a popular lecturer. He prefaces this volume with a description of the experiences that led him to revolutionize his methods of work and enter on an evangelistic campaign in his own easy-going, prosperous church at Highbury Quadrant, and to lead an evangelizing movement that brought him to the United States. They are bringing out this week a new book by Rev. F. B. Meyer, entitled "The Directory of the Devout Life," in which the author gives a running commentary on the Beatitudes and the Sermon on the Mount, laying stress on the primary importance to the Christian of consistency in everyday life.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. announce a new novel by F. Montresor, author of "The Alien," etc., entitled "The Celestial Surgeon," the action of which takes place in England and on the Continent; "A Handbook to Agra and the Taj," by E. B. Havell, principal of the Government School of Art, Calcutta, illustrated with fourteen full-page plates from photographs of the Taj, and other notable specimens of Indian architecture; the long-promised "Text-Book of Medical Practice," edited by William Bain, M.D., the special features of which are that the anatomy and physiology of each organ or system precede the description of its diseases, and that the various sections are contributed by general physicians and specialists, among whom may be mentioned Arthur Robinson, Sidney H. C. Martin, Percy Kidd, W. P. Herringham and C. Powell White; "The Last Letters of Aubrey Beardsley," for which Father Gray has provided an introduction; Montague James's "Ghost Stories of an Antiquary," which has received most ecstatic praise from critics of most widely different points of view; "Principles of Education," by T. Raymond Hill, professor in the University College of South Wales, a new volume in the Pedagogical Series; also, the report of the Director of Education of the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, covering the period November, 1900, to February, 1904.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

IN THE NAME OF LIBERTY

A STORY OF

By OWEN JOHNSON, Author of
"ARROWS OF THE ALMIGHTY"

This story deals with the time of the most picturesque and wildest tragedy in all history, the French Revolution. The heroine is an orphan girl, a seller of cockades, Nicole; and whether the story is dealing with the horror and violence incident to the Revolution and famine, with its vivid pictures of the storming of the Tuileries, the massacre of the Abbaye, the execution of the Girondist, or the exquisite tenderness of Nicole's love and devotion and sacrifice, the reader's attention is firmly gripped from beginning to end. It is a distinct advance over the author's previous book, which Joel Chandler Harris called "the strongest first book that has been produced in this country for many years." Frontispiece by Castaigne printed in tints. 12mo, 406 pages, $1.50

JIU-JITSU

A Comprehensive and Copiously Illustrated Account of the Wonderful

JAPANESE METHOD OF ATTACK AND SELF-DEFENSE

By Captain HARRY H. SKINNER
of New York

Poses by B. H. KUWASHIMA
Columbia University, N. Y.

Copiously Illustrated, Cloth, net, $1.00. (Postage 14 cents)

HERE, in condensed form, for ready instruction, is the essence of "Jiu-Jitsu"—the methods of attack and self-defense which enable the weak to overcome the strong. Much has been written about "Jiu-Jitsu" of late, but no book has treated the subject in a manner which enables the reader so thoroughly to grasp the knack of the combat tricks as this book.

"JIU-JITSU" is a perfect defense against the use of fists and all the ordinary forms of wrestling. An expert in this art can successfully meet an armed adversary or a man of greatly superior fighting skill. Every man should have some understanding of "Jiu-Jitsu."

PROGRESS vs. OBSTRUCTION

IN 1890—15 YEARS AGO—was published a so-called Webster's Dictionary. It was "so materially altered," and was so great a departure in many particulars from the principles laid down by Noah Webster that its publishers felt an apology was due for placing Webster's name on it, and not following his well established and highly commended plan for making a dictionary. See the last part of page 1 of "Publisher's Statement," following supplement in Webster's International Dictionary for the apology—Webster's International being the so-called Webster referred to.

In 1904, 14 years later, another Webster—a genuine Webster—G. W. Ogilvie's WEBSTER'S IMPERIAL DICTIONARY, made its appearance, and to prevent its sale the publishers of the International have been paddling around in and stirring up the murky waters of misdirected endeavor by threatening the trade with suits for damages if they dare to sell WEBSTER'S IMPERIAL—the best Webster ever made—instead of the now 15-year-old International or some of the other Websters the Merriam Co. issue.

IT WAS EVER THUS

Can you recall a single instance of a man who had gumption enough to hew his own way through the forest of cynicism, prejudice and old-fogyism that was not assailed as soon as he emerged with charges of having gone around instead of through it?

To-day he who suffers in silence is permitted to continue to suffer and I, therefore, do not purpose following the "silent suffering" plan. I sued G. & C. Merriam Co., asking for an injunction to restrain them from interfering with my business and from making further attempts to induce anyone to steal my property. They have issued a circular in which they say that they have denied all my charges, etc., etc. That is not true. They went into court and asked that all reference to the steal charges be stricken out of my bill of complaint, as it had no bearing on the question at issue. Very properly on that ground it was stricken out—but it was not denied—and could not very well be, for I produced photographs of the letters sent by their attorney in which proposals were made to get possession of my property—accompanied by the statement that he should think it would not be missed.

The Price of Success is high—but not more than it is worth. I am going through just what might have been expected by one who does something new that interferes with that which is old. All the negative virtues are useless when you come in conflict with unscrupulous people. You must simply get up and fight back. Get the most modern weapons, with the largest bore and the heaviest ammunition.

To-day the man who succeeds isn't the one who obeys the precepts of a past generation; rather, he who goes ahead and does things.

"It can't be done," says Conservatism, who has never seen it done.

"It can be done," says Modern Progress.

The whole world will stop to listen if you have a new idea and the will power to back it.

I have the necessary will power, and the other necessary facts and qualities are all combined in WEBSTER'S IMPERIAL DICTIONARY, and that's what's the matter with those people who seem to think they have letters of marque, the possession of which would permit them to capture other people's property and appropriate it to themselves.

If you have not seen or had WEBSTER'S IMPERIAL DICTIONARY, order it from us now. We can supply you. Some jobbers have been frightened out of filling orders for it, but we will supply you if they will not.

WEBSTER'S IMPERIAL DICTIONARY IS OF TO-DAY

It is Not of Yesterday, Nor Does it Claim to be of To-morrow

WEBSTER'S IMPERIAL DICTIONARY excels all others in those features which make a dictionary most desirable, for the reason that good judgment and unlimited common sense have been used throughout in its preparation both editorially and from the mechanical standpoint.

This work is handsomely and substantially bound with the best materials that can be selected for durability, with flexible back which opens perfectly flat and makes the book easy to handle. This Dictionary is so new that you need to look in but one place for a word, and that is in its alphabetic order. The entire work being absolutely new has no supplement—because it needs none, for it is complete, unabridged and up-to-date from every possible standpoint.

Mr. Hancock's four volumes, thoroughly covering the subject, are based on Kano, the official Jiu-Jitsu of Japan, and the only system recognized by the Japanese government.

Mr. Hancock writes from a practical standpoint, having studied for more than seven years under such men as Inouye San, Instructor in the Police Department of Nagasaki; Matsuda San, who is unquestionably the Japanese Instructor who is best versed in the anatomical principles of training the muscular body; and Yako San, who, at the age of seventy-five, was a magnificent exponent of what one may acquire through the life-long practice of Jiu-Jitsu.

THE GARDEN OF ALLAH

By ROBERT HICHENS

Author of "The Woman with the Fan," "Felix," etc.

SOME EARLY ENTHUSIASTIC COMMENTS:

"A powerful, fascinating novel. We are SPELLBOUND TO KNOW THE ISSUE."—Punch.

"Never in these modern years has such a remarkable novel as this been presented to us. Never once does it—big though it is—offend the artistic taste because it is unsymmetrical. The strength of the book is overpowering almost, yet beauty is never outraged. It is TRULY A GREAT AND DISTINCT NOVEL."—Echo.

"We have waited for this book a long time. We have felt that Mr. Hichens must some day find himself; that then he would give us something for which every lover of literature might thank him from their hearts. Now he has justified that hope in full measure, pressed down and running over. The book LIFTS US RIGHT OUT OF THE RUCK OF LITTLE TALES about little people which pass muster for the best fiction in these lean times. A novel in which there are great qualities, as I believe, which belong to literature of the highest class."—Daily Mail.

Eden Phillpotts' new novel

The Secret Woman

By the author of "The American Prisoner," "My Devon Year," etc. Cloth, $1.50

Its interest is so concentrated upon vital and essential elements as to make the story fascinating in its dramatic intensity. It draws a tremendous power from the utter simplicity with which it lays bare the depths of love and passion. And its atmosphere is such as no other novelist now creates—from the first chapter aglow with the light and fragrance of young May in the heart of Devon woods to the close of the book in the majesty of the Christmas dawn on Dartmoor.

From

Mr. Morley Roberts has again written a book which, though totally dissimilar to any of his previous work, will excite comment for its striking originality, and arouse, as did "Rachel Marr," the admiration of all for his genius and versatility.

HAROLD STEELE MACKAYE*(Ready February 15)Author of "The Panchronicon," etc.THE WINGED HELMET

Illustrated by Harry C. Edwards. $1.50

Mr. Mackaye's previous work has shown much promise. His new volume is an exceptionally strong romance of love and war. Its theme is original, and the situations are unusual in conception and vivid in treatment.

T. JENKINS HAINS*(Ready February 25)Author of "The Wind Jammers," etc.THE BLACK BARQUE

Illustrated by C. Herbert Dunton. $1.50

A story of Slavery and Piracy on the High Seas by an author who speaks from his experience as a deep-water sailor, and who ranks at the top of those who write of our merchant marine. This is Mr. Hains's first long sea story, and in it he has done better than merely to live up to his reputation.

NATHAN GALLIZIER*(Ready February 25)CASTEL DEL MONTE

Illustrated by Harry C. Edwards. $1.50

Mr. Gallizier has chosen for his theme the weird mysticism and fatalism of the thirteenth century; and has written a powerful romance around the tragic incidents of the Ghitelline Wars. It is a love story of old Palermo, and the famous castle which gives its name to the book plays a striking part in its recital.

NOTES IN SEASON.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish on January 28 a new novel by Robert Hichens, entitled "The Garden of Allah," which has been highly commended by such fastidious critics as the London Daily Mail, the Echo and Punch.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have just ready a new book on "Petrol Motors and Motor Cars," by T. Hyler White, which is written entirely from the designer's point of view, and furnishes reliable formulæ and information in a readily accessible form; also, the lectures on the History of Astronomical Discovery, which were delivered last August at the University of Chicago by Dr. Herbert Hall Turner, Professor of Astronomy in the University of Oxford.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY will publish shortly a new John Henry book bearing the title "You Can Search Me," illustrated by Gordon H. Grant. The first edition will be 25,000, and those who want early copies should order in advance of publication. They have also in press two detective stories—"Doctor Nicholas Stone," by E. Spence De Pue, illustrated; and "The Mandarin's Fan," by Fergus Hume; also, "Reuben Larkmead," described as "a story of worldlings," by Edward W. Townsend, the author of "Chimmie Fadden," with illustrations by Wallace Morgan.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish next month Mrs. Sara Andrew Shafer's new book, the title of which has finally been fixed as "Beyond Chance of Change." Mrs. Shafer will be remembered as the author of "The Day Before Yesterday," which won many friends last year through its picture of village life in the middle west in the late sixties. They will also publish in February an important book on "The Bahama Islands." This represents the combined work of twenty-five scientists composing the expedition sent out in 1903 under the auspices of the Geographical Society of Baltimore. Dr. George B. Shattuck, of Johns Hopkins, was in charge of the expedition.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish early in February "The Color Line," by Professor W. B. Smith, which should have a wide circle of readers because of the intense timeliness of its subject. The book is a scientific study of the race problem, and takes up the questions of miscegenation, social, political and commercial equality for the negro from a thoroughly scientific standpoint. The author is a professor in Tulane University, at New Orleans. He brings to bear upon the subject a wide familiarity with many varied branches of science, and he investigates the claims made by both sides of the discussion from anthropological, ethnological and biological standpoints. His temper is always that of the scientist, with no attempt to force any conclusion other than that directly indicated by the facts in hand.

FOX, DUFFIELD & Co. will publish on February 1, by arrangement with the Genealogical Society, "Virginia County Records—Spotsylvania County," a reprint of valuable American documents containing abstracts of wills, deeds, marriage licenses, lists of Revolutionary soldiers, etc., with an exhaustive index. These volumes make accessible, for the first time, material of the greatest importance to lawyers, students, genealogists, members of patriotic societies, etc. They will publish on the 15th of next month "Old Masters and New," by Kenyon Cox, who in this volume has collected for the first time a series of striking papers and addresses on art and artists, new and old, special attention being given to such celebrated American masters as St. Gaudens, John La Farge and others equally well known. Mr. Cox enjoys a high rank as an art critic, and has the peculiar advantage of standing well not only with the critics, but with the artists, too.

The Kloster was founded by Johann Conrad Beissel, in 1728, at Ephrata, a little German town about 18 miles from Reading, Pa., in the Valley of Cocalico, Lancaster County. In less than a decade after its founding it became a semi-monastic community, later it developed into a religious, educational, commercial and industrial settlement, and set up the third printing press in the colony. This press was the first to print English and German type in Colonial Pennsylvania. The brothers and sisters of the Kloster were celibates. Their religion as expounded by the mystic founder resembles the beliefs of the Seventh Day Baptists. The scenes and incidents supposed to have occurred in the early history of the settlement are interwoven in a romance.

Combines some of the modern developments of higher algebra with the subjects usually included in works on the theory of equations. Of the two volumes into which the work is now divided, the first eleven chapters of volume one contain all the propositions ordinarily found in elementary treatises on the subject. In this edition a new chapter on the theory of substitutions of groups is added.

The clansman is second in succession of a series of novels which deal with the Reconstruction period in the South. In his latest story Mr. Dixon pictures the condition of the South after Lee's surrender, dwelling particularly on the stand taken by Thaddeus Stevens against President Andrew Johnson which led to his impeachment. He also endeavors to prove that Lincoln's assassination was a great blow to the South, and that Andrew Johnson's efforts for peaceful Reconstruction were frustrated by the partisanship of this great Republican fanatic. Many real personages are introduced and there is a romance interwoven with the historic incident.

A critical and historical study of the career of Napoleon Buonaparte, made for the purpose of sifting the facts; also of dissipating the myths that have been credited by biographers of Napoleon I. as real incidents. In an endeavor to find Buonaparte's level, Mr. Evans compares what he believes to be popular misapprehensions and depicts the little Frenchman as an admixture of madman, criminal and genius. Includes besides Dr. Carus' introduction, giving comparisons and quoting as confirmatory evidence Whately's pamphlet of 1819, denying the existence of Napoleon, a satire by Pérès, also on the non-existence of Buonaparte, published in 1827.

Of ancient Agra, the author says. little except traces of its foundation remains. The history is lost in the legends of Krishna and of the heroes of the Mahabharata. The modern city was founded by Akbar, 1558. Among Muhammadans it still retains its name of Akbarabad, which is intimately associated with romance of Great Moguls and known throughout the world as the city of Taj. The author's purpose in describing the archaeological and artistic wonders of the historic city is to incite in travellers a proper understanding and appreciation of one of the greatest epochs of Indian art.

Although the novel is founded on dramatic scenes of the French Revolution, these only form a background for the romantic story. The heroine is supposed to be a flower girl of Paris, who lived and sold cockades in the Reign of Terror. This girl is caught in the whirl of events and forced to sacrifice her own feelings in the cause of liberty. The author's purpose seems to be to show the effects of the Revolution on the social life of Paris, especially on that of the common people.

The present translation was undertaken about 1880, the date of republication of List's works in Germany. It consists of four parts—the history, the theory, the systems and the politics of national economy. "In translating the work," says Mr. Lloyd, "my aim has been to render the original as literally as possible, and to afford English readers the opportunity of testing List's political theories. The German economist's views were first published before 1844, previous to the repeal of the corn and navigation laws of Great Britain, hence some of the political situations considered are obsolete.

The title of the novel was taken, says Miss Montrésor in the preface, from R. L. Stevenson's poem. She likewise intimates that the part of the doctor who figures in her story under the same name was suggested by a refrain of this poem. The scene is Durham, in Yorkshire. The characters are De Growchy, the impetuous scion of the Yellow House, Emma, his religious and self-sufficient wife, Mr. Knight, a middle class Englishman, Mademoiselle Du Clos, a clever French woman, Fenronime, an adopted daughter, Miss MacIlvert, a lachrymose lady, and last but not least, Doctor MacIlvert, who, like Shakespeare's hero, plays many parts.

"The millionaire baby," Mrs. Rohlf's latest detective story, is apparently founded on an incident of real life. The scenes are the suburbs of New York City and in adjacent towns on the Hudson. The principal characters are evidently living and well-known people whose identities are concealed under fictitious names. The plot is a deep one, involving a case of child abduction, also the honor and reputations of the men and women who play prominent parts.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 21, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

MARK TWAIN'S VIEWS ON COPYRIGHT.

UNDER the title "Concerning Copyright: An Open Letter to the Register of Copyrights," whom he addresses as Thorwald Stolberg, Mark Twain contributes to the January North American Review a vigorous discussion of what he calls the crime of the present copyright system of the United States. By means of the Socratic question-and-answer method, admirably aided and abetted by an underlying vein of characteristic satire, he shows the old copyright question in a new light and proposes a most original remedy. Taking as a starting-point the statistics showing that 250,000 books have been copyrighted in the United States in the past 104 years, and over 100,000 of these in the last twenty-five years, and that five or six thousand are now copyrighted annually, and, assuming as a conservative estimate that not over ten a year survive the forty-two-year limit, he argues that the forty-two-year limit accomplishes nothing useful whatever, but instead "takes the bread out of the mouths of ten authors per year—usually the ten poorest and most distinguished literary servants of the nation." "It does seem a small business for a big nation," Mr. Clemens argues. "It is the assassination of the fittest. When a soldier retires from the wars," he continues, "the government spends $150,000,000 [sic] a year upon him and his, and the pension is continued to his widow and orphans. But when it retires a distinguished author's book at the end of forty-two years it takes the book's subsequent profits away from the widow and orphans and gives them—to whom? Not to the public, but to the publishers. The publisher goes on publishing, and he takes all the profit, both the author's and his own. It is a crime—a crime perpetrated by a great country upon ten poor devils a year. One book apiece. The profits on "Uncle Tom's Cabin" continue to-day; nobody but the publishers get them. Mrs. Stowe's share ceased seven years before she died; her daughters receive nothing from the book. Years ago they found themselves no longer able to live in their modest home, and had to move out and find humbler quarters,* Washington Irving's adopted daughters fared likewise."

To remedy this condition of things, Mr. Clemens makes the following suggestion: "In making a forty-two-year limit, the government's intention was to be fair all around. It meant that the ten authors, (it supposed the number was greater,) should enjoy the profit of their labors a fair and reasonable time; then extinguish the copyright and thus make the book cheap—this for the benefit of the public. I repeat, to insure cheap editions for the public. . . . That intention has often been defeated. In many a case the publisher has not lowered the price; in other cases so many publishers issued editions of the unprotected book that they clogged the market and killed the book. And often it was a book that could have survived but for this misfortune. The remedy that I would suggest is this: That, during the forty-second year of the copyright limit, the owner of the copy-

[* Regarding this statement, Houghton, Mifflin & Co. wrote to the New York Times on the 14th inst. as follows: "Lest the readers of Mr. Clemens's article should draw a wrong inference from the above statement, it is only fair to ourselves, as the authorized publishers of all of Mrs. Stowe's writings, to say that while the copyright on 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' expired three (not seven) years before Mrs. Stowe's death, this caused no termination of our payments of royalty to her on the sales of all our editions of that book. Naturally the cheap reprints with which the market was flooded the moment the copyright expired affected very materially the sales of the authorized editions, so that Mrs. Stowe's income was very greatly reduced at a time when she most needed it; a fact which we have often cited as an illustration of the great injustice of the copyright term not being extended to cover the life of the author. Mrs. Stowe's daughters, however, were promptly assured that whatever sums were needed for their mother's support and comfort would be supplied by us. This was carried into effect by a business arrangement satisfactory to all parties. We may further add that Mrs. Stowe's daughters have had the benefit of such value as the cheap reprints of 'Uncle Tom' have left in the authorized editions."—Ed. P. W.]

right shall be obliged to issue an edition of the book at these following rates, to wit: Twenty-five cents for each 100,000 words or less of its contents, and keep said edition on sale always thereafter, year after year, indefinitely. And if in any year he shall fail to keep such edition on sale during a space of three months, the copyright shall then perish."

On this cheap edition, Mr. Clemens says, the profits "of both publisher and author would be very small; but high commercial prosperity would result to both, first, because the book would remain the possession and support of the author's children, instead of being confiscated by various publishers and issued in cheap form or dear, as they chose, for the support of their children; and, secondly, because the cheap edition would advertise the higher-priced editions that would still be issued by the original publisher. The publisher and the author's orphans "would live on canvasback duck and Cape Cod oysters—not on ham-and-not-enough-of-it, the way certain government-robbed orphans of my acquaintance are doing now."

The practicability of this suggestion Mr. Clemens maintains in the closing sentences:

"Q. Are you guessing at cheap-edition possibilities, or are you speaking from knowledge?"

"A. From knowledge. Knowledge and experience. I know what it costs to make a book and what it costs to sell it.

"Q. If your figures on cheap editions should be challenged by the trade—how then?"

"A. I could prove my case, and would do it."

LEATHER BINDINGS.

THE London Daily News has recently interviewed the bookbinding and leather trades as to the durability of the leathers used in the binding of books, the result of which is concentrated in the following two opinions, one from a prominent bookbinder, the other from a leading tanner:

The bookbinder referred to said to the interviewer, "Look at this book. It is three centuries old, and yet the leather is as sound as on the day it was cut from the hide. I could not guarantee that even the leather which I put on my best work will last as this has done, and carry my name down the ages. I do not make my own leather. We do not tan to-day as they tanned in olden days; and the trouble comes partly from the tanning, partly from the acid dyeing, and partly from the altered conditions under which books live.

"No leather, however good, will stand years of exposure to the fumes of gas. The atmosphere of towns is generally bad for leather-bound books, especially when they are left undisturbed on the bookshelves. The fumes act chemically on the leather, and set up sulphuric acid. Naturally, where there is already sulphuric acid in the leather the process of decay is much more rapid.

"I know of only one firm which professes to sell leather absolutely innocent of acid. They all use acid; some more, some less. Some colors, such as the greens, require more acid than other colors. Some leathers, before they can be dyed at all evenly, so as to be dyed profitably, have first to be bleached nearly white with acid. Some processes seem to require more acid.

"Russia leather is so charged with acid that I have entirely given up using it, except when customers insist on having it after I have told them what the result must be. It is so bad that it perishes even before I can use it."

The binder showed the interviewer a number of pleasantly smelling hides of "Russia" leather tanned in London. The perfume was still there, but the leather was so rotten that it would tear like paper, and its surface would break up beneath the thumb-nail.

"That," continued the bookbinder, "has not been on my premises more than a year. I suppose it has not been tanned for longer than fifteen months at the outside. It cost me close upon 2s. a square foot—and it is useless.

"Here," and he picked up a pretty volume of a series specially addressed to 'book lovers.' It was bound in what appeared to be natural undyed pigskin. Beautiful to look at, isn't it? It is sheepskin into which that pigskin pattern has been rolled.

"Sheepskin is utterly useless as a book cover. But almost all the cheap leather bindings are made out of sheepskin. Some of them—'roans,' as they are called—are such excellent imitations in appearance of genuine goat that after they are made up I could not myself say positively that they were imitation. A hide of 'roan' costs about one-sixth of the price of a genuine goat hide. You can therefore guess how much real goat is used."

The leather-seller informed the interviewer that he could not guarantee hides free from acid, and did not believe that dyed leather was produced without acid. He was so certain of it that he would not pretend to attempt to procure a hide which could be guaranteed.

After a little chat he readily produced a number of hides for inspection. He was rather proud of his imitation pigskin, made from sheepskin, and, comparing it with a real hide, pointed out that it was the more natural looking, and its grain a better "pattern" than that from the genuine pig. He explained that an especially choice sample was always chosen as the model for the machine rollers. He showed almost every kind of skin made out of sheep hides, and also morocco made from pigskin. Among the imitations was a thin sheepskin leather that would tear like tissue paper. "That," he said, "is used for linings, and, at any rate, it enables the dealer honestly to say that the article is 'all leather.' It certainly is leather. It is a surface split by machinery off a sheepskin. Imitation pigskin is largely used for cheap furniture as well as for books; so also in large quantities is imitation morocco."

ARGUMENTS HEARD IN THE SUITS AGAINST MACY'S.

ARGUMENT was heard before Judge Ray, of the United States Circuit Court in New York City, on the 16th and 17th inst., in the suit brought against Macy's by Charles Scribner's Sons for infringing their copyright by cutting prices on their copyright books, and in the suit brought by the Bobbs-Merrill Company, also for infringing their copyright by cutting the price on their copyright novel, "The Castaway." An enormous amount of evidence was presented, owing to which, and the well-known care with which Judge Ray reviews every case brought before him, it is not likely that an early decision will be handed down. Colonel Stephen H. Olin appeared for Charles Scribner's Sons and ex-Attorney-General Miller represented Boardman, Platt & Soley in behalf of the Bobbs-Merrill Company. John D. Carlisle, representing Spiegelberg & Wise, argued the case for Macy's.

UNITED BOX BOARD AND PAPER CO. REORGANIZED.

It was announced on the 13th inst. that the first step toward the reorganization of the United Box Board and Paper Company had been taken successfully, and that the company would shortly be in possession of $1,000,000 new working capital as the result of it.

E. R. Stettinius, chairman of the committee in charge of the plan, is reported to have said that the Box Board Company's stockholders had subscribed to a very large proportion of the 57,883 shares of American Strawboard stock and 14,500 shares of Box Board preferred, and that the underwriting syndicate would be called upon to take up a smaller amount of these stocks than had been expected.

It was also stated on official authority that the trust had paid the January, 1905, sinking fund instalment on its bonded debt, amounting to $35,000, besides the interest on the bonded debt for the half year, amounting to more than $40,000, and had remaining a surplus of approximately $100,000. The remaining funded debt is $1,300,000.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION held its annual meeting on the 11th inst., thirty-five members being present. The petition of the American Booksellers' Association asking that all copyright books be placed on the net list, that the period of protection should be increased to two years, etc., came up for discussion, but was laid aside for further consideration. The project of giving an annual dinner was also discussed, but no action was taken. Messrs. Scribner, Scott and Dodd were re-elected as members of the Board of Directors to serve for the ensuing three years.

THE AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

IN his first circular to the members of the American Booksellers' Association Harry F. Davis, the new secretary of the Association, says:

"I would welcome personal suggestions of measures to be proposed for the consideration of the Executive Committee and Advisory Board. We are working out difficult problems, and the combined wisdom and advice of all members will serve to make the Association more successful and efficient. Let us all pull together for our mutual benefit, bearing in mind the fact that the interests of every publisher and every bookseller in this great country of ours, are identical, and that we must move along together. While we may differ on minor points we stand for one great principle, and our one aim must be to make the bookselling business honest, dignified and profitable. To accomplish these ends I pledge you my best efforts, and I would earnestly ask the support of every publisher and every bookseller."

The office of the Association will be continued at 30-32 East Twenty-first Street, New York. Private communications to the secretary should be addressed to his office at 346 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE first dinner of the year was given by The Booksellers' League at the Aldine Association on the evening of January 17. The dinner was attended by upwards of sixty persons and was presided over by Theodore E. Schulte.

After the dinner had been discussed the president welcomed the members of the League and their guests, wishing them a prosperous Happy New Year. He made the gratifying announcement that the League was steadily adding to its membership, and that it was in a prosperous condition, which statement was fortified by the reading of the following names of the members who had been admitted since March, 1904:

Gold buttons were distributed to Samuel Reis, J. B. Pratt and W. H. Parker for having proposed the required five new members.

It was proposed and unanimously adopted that The Booksellers' League should send a delegate to take part in the annual dinner of the Pittsburgh Booksellers' and Stationers' Association, to be held on the 24th inst., and to extend to the members of the trade there fraternal greetings and best wishes for their success. Cass Richardson, the vice-president of the League, was chosen delegate.

The president then referred to the death of James S. Baker, and asked the secretary to read the following minute from the records of the meeting of the Board of Trustees held on January 10:

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Booksellers' League, held at the office of the President, at the American Baptist Publication Society, New York City, on January 10, 1905, a motion was offered and unanimously adopted that it is the sense of The Booksellers' League that

In the death of James S. Baker, the League as well as the book trade at large has lost one of its best friends, and one of the staunchest supporters of the best traditions of the profession of book-selling—a man of integrity and justice, who was imbued with the instinct that made for true trade fellowship and public spirit.

It was further resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the family of the late Mr. Baker and to his business associates.

This minute and also a resolution of regret at the death of Colonel John H. Ammon was adopted by the League, the members rising from their seats to pay their respect to the departed.

Announcement was also made of the annual dinner which is to be given on the evening of February 8, at the Aldine Association. Tickets at $2 each may be obtained of W. G. Preston, 372 Fifth Avenue, of the president, Mr. Schulte, at the American Baptist Publication Society, Twenty-third Street and Lexington Avenue, or of any other officer or member of the League.

The speaker of the evening was Sidney L. Gulick, author of "The Evolution of the Japanese," who has lived in Japan for seventeen years, and who spoke of the real meaning of the war in the East, on which subject, by the way, he is now preparing a small volume. Mr. Gulick held the attention of his hearers for nearly an hour, and was frequently applauded. Among other things he informed the League that the Japanese Government has just prohibited the sale in Japan of a book entitled "Russian Cruelties," on the ground that it will inflame the prejudice of the people against Russia. He also said that the Japanese Government is constantly circulating literature impressing on the people that this is not a war of the Japanese people against the Russian people, but of the Japanese Government against the Russian Government. Asked to corroborate the statement made some time ago by Mr. Kennan that in Tokyo there is a bookstore on almost every block, Mr. Gulick said that that was very likely so; but he did not think it remarkable considering that Tokyo is the principal educational centre of Japan, with a student population aggregating possibly 30,000.

H. H. Jackson, the well-known bookseller of Bridgeport, Conn., also entertained the League with a good-natured talk on the shortcomings of the trade, its ambitions and hopes, and on the advantages of combination and association.

THE MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION OF THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY.

THE MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION OF THE EMPLOYEES OF THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY and its branches held its annual meeting and election on the 7th inst. The treasurer's report showed the Association to be in a strong financial condition.

The officers chosen to serve for the ensuing year are as follows: President, John Downs; vice-president, Harry Donnelly; treasurer, Joseph H. Farrell; financial secretary, John Gillis; recording secretary, William Tracey.

NEW YORK NEWSDEALERS' AND STATIONERS' PROTECTIVE AND BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.

ON Wednesday evening, February 8, at 8 P.M., the New York Newsdealers' and Stationers' Protective and Benevolent Association will give its annual smoker at its meeting rooms, at No. 8 Union Square, where an enjoyable evening will be spent. Tickets, price 25 cents. Special invitation is extended to all newsdealers and stationers.

THE NEW YORK TYPOTHETAE.

THE annual Franklin banquet of the Typothetæ of the city of New York was held on the 17th inst. in the St. Regis. About 150 master printers and publishers were present. The toastmaster was William M. Green, and one of the speakers was George H. Ellis, of Boston, president of the United Typothetæ of America. Mr. Ellis said that just one question was important to printers at this time, and that was the proposal to shorten the working day to eight hours.

Within a year, he declared, this question would become vital, because employing printers could not afford such a reduction in their output, and then customers would have either to pay for it or back up the employers in resisting demand.

"The question is," said Mr. Ellis, "whether our customers are going to help us to succor ourselves or whether we are going to be a lot of suckers for the typographical union."

Simeon Ford (whose announced retirement from the after-dinner speaking game was evidently a hoax), Job E. Hedges, the Rev. W. W. Giles, Theodore L. De Vinne, Luke D. Stapleton and Colonel William L. Visscher were among the speakers of the evening.

WARREN F. DRAPER.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN HENRY LOCK, a member of the firm of Ward, Lock & Co., died December 29 at the age of sixty-two. Mr. Lock was a member of an old Dorsetshire family, which for two generations has been identified with various interests of the publishing world. He was the younger brother of the late George Lock, who, in conjunction with Ebenezer Ward, started the publishing business of Ward, Lock & Co. in 1854. Originally established in Fleet Street, London, the firm moved via Amen Corner to its present quarters at Warwick House, Salisbury Square, in 1878, having in the meantime acquired the chief copyrights of older firms as varied as Edward Moxon, William Tegg, and, at a somewhat later date, the versatile S. O. Beeton. Moxon's famous editions of all the older poets of the nineteenth century incidentally became the property of the firm, which has since reissued them in various forms; and at a subsequent date the acquirement of "The Select Library of Fiction" concentrated in its hands the bulk of the works of such Victorian novelists as Trollope, Henry Kingsley, Whyte Melville, Lever, Mrs. Oliphant, Hawley Smart and others. The firm was happy in a beginning which fell in a period of real demand for educational books in a popular form, and soon took a prominent place among the pioneers of such standard works as "Webster's Dictionary," "The Webster Spelling Book," and other reference books. John Henry Lock spent his entire business life in the one firm, of which he managed the financial department, becoming junior partner in it in 1879, and a director in 1893, when it was made a private limited liability company.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Newsdealer, the official organ of the National Association of Newsdealers, Book-sellers and Stationers of America, will hereafter be issued monthly.

The New York Times in its issue of January 22 will print the first instalment of an unpublished novel by the late Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield. The fact that the famous statesman-novelist had left an unfinished work of fiction has only recently been made known by his literary executors. A special interest will be found in the fact that Lord Beaconsfield has chosen to depict as the leading figure of his novel his inveterate political enemy and rival, William E. Gladstone, whose advent into an early career in political life he describes in his uniquely brilliant and satirical style. The price paid for the manuscript equals the rate of one dollar a word. It will appear in three instalments, the second and third coming out in the issues for January 29 and February 5. This will be the only form in which this work will appear in this country for three years.

WITH the issue for January 7 The Week's Progress, formerly The Great Round World, has definitely assumed the title of The Search Light, and changed its size to a folio, (9¼ x 12¼ inches.) Beginning with this issue the periodical is to be steadily developed along the lines upon which it was first to be published, namely, to be a condensed history of the progress and changes of the world and to form a continuous supplement to all encyclopædias, keeping them ever up to date; even in the cases where no full information is given of an occurrence the date, at least, will be fixed, making the original record in the daily newspapers easily accessible. A specially valuable feature of the periodical will be its system of continuous cumulative indexing. The index will not only be week by week, but also year by year, so that a subscriber to The Search Light may five years hence by a single reference be guided to information given in the first issue. Certain simple, clever, practical methods have been devised to keep the index from becoming cumbersome, and these will be brought into use as occasion demands. The information is admirably condensed and clean cut, the editors giving the very essence of the news of the world in a most readable form. The Search Light, it seems to us, fills a want in every library, school, editorial office and counting room as well as in the home.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

FRANKFORT MOORE is writing a romance in which Byron is to figure as the principal character. "Love Alone is Lord" is to be the title of the book.

MRS. H. E. V. STANNARD, better known as John Strange Winter, sends out a pamphlet entitled "Comely Woman," which is a puff of her toilet preparations, and a letter in which she refers to "the storm of comment for and against my action, the latter from those who think that an author degrades herself by mixing in trade." She says: "To my mind it seems to me that if our great nobles are not degraded by selling coals, milk, beer and other commodities a poor scribe need not be scarified for taking a similar course." This leads the London Literary World to say: "We should think that Mrs. Stannard has taken a leaf out of the book of another popular lady novelist who has made immense capital with her public out of her alleged unfair treatment by the critics. There is nothing seemingly that goes straighter to the heart of a British citizen than the plea of persecution. Every sensible novelist should labor hard to be persecuted. It pays."

BUSINESS NOTES.

CINCINNATI, O.—A co-operative bookstore along the lines of that run by the Harvard Co-operative Society, at Cambridge, Mass., is to be established at the University of Cincinnati. Books and stationery will be sold to the students at current rates, and at the end of the year the profits will be divided among the shareholders.

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.—The Acme Bookstore of Clarksburg has changed hands, A. S. Law & Co. becoming owners of the establishment. This change brings about a consolidation of Clarksburg's most energetic and up-to-date stationery stores. The James-Shepherd Co. and the A. S. Law Co. will combine their efforts under the name of The James & Law Co., with a paid-up capital stock of $9000. The new concern will, as quickly as possible, be located in their handsome quarters in the Louchery Building. These changes will enable the Fuel City of the Fuel State to boast of the handsomest store of its nature in West Virginia. E. D. Shepherd, the retiring member of the old concern, will probably embark in the book business in another field.

COTTAGE GROVE, ORE.—The Eagle Bookstore has sold out to T. Gill.

GUELPH, ONT.—T. J. Day, the well-known bookseller, has sold out to Scott & Tierney.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.—W. B. Darrach has removed from Ambler to this city, and has opened a bookstore in the Van Cleff Building, at Broadway and Grand Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—Bonnell, Silver & Bowers have incorporated in New York to handle books and stationery. Capital stock $20,000. The directors are Charles E. Bonnell, Elmer B. Silver and Henry M. Bowers, all of New York City.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Booklovers' Exchange, 28 East Twenty-third Street, would be pleased to receive publishers' catalogues, circulars, etc.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—J. E. Barr and J. W. Shellenberger, both formerly with Henry T. Coates & Co., under the firm name of J. E. Barr & Co., have established themselves at 1107 Walnut Street, to deal in old prints, engravings, autographs and scarce books. They would be pleased to receive catalogues, etc.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—David McKay has taken possession of his new quarters at 610 South Washington Square. As already noted, he purchased the building last summer, and has had it thoroughly renovated, installing a steam-heating plant, an electric elevator, etc. Mr. McKay will occupy the entire building of four stories and a basement, with a shipping entrance on the side street.

TAMPA, FLA.—Julian Barreda, bookseller, it is reported, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

P. K. FOLEY, the well-known Boston dealer in old and rare books, is reading the proofs of "The Bibliography of Hawthorne," prepared by Miss Nina E. Browne, and issued by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and as he is one of the best-informed men in New England as to the contents of magazines and newspapers, this will add materially to the authority of the work, although Miss Browne's industry and energy of research are extraordinary.

MARGARET BUDINGTON, of the State Historical Society of Iowa, contributes to the January issue of The Iowa Journal of History and Politics a third instalment of the "Bibliography of Iowa State Publications," the first and second instalments of which appeared in the Journal for July, 1903, and July, 1904, respectively. Two hundred and fifty titles are recorded, the line being drawn to include only such documents as are published by the State with State money. (45 p. 8°.)

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS has published a "Check List of Foreign Newspapers in the Library of Congress," compiled under the direction of Allan Bedient Slauson, chief of the Periodical Division. The list is arranged geographically and lists periodicals published in Great Britain, Europe, Asia, Africa, West Indies, Mexico, South America, and our Pacific possessions—the Hawaiian Islands and the Philippine Islands. The issues of the press are given alphabetically, by cities, under each country or province. (71 p. F.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JOHN LANE will publish shortly a new "Life of Cervantes," by Albert F. Calvert, fully illustrated.

JOHN H. MAY, for many years with Henry T. Coates & Co., has connected himself with the firm of Hurst & Co., of New York.

E. J. CLODE will publish on the 25th inst. Gordon Holmes's detective story, entitled "A Mysterious Disappearance." Mr. Clode will bring out, in May, Louis Tracy's new story, "The Great Mogul."

DANIEL T. MALLETT, of New York City, is bringing out the "Historical Wholesale Hardware Directory of the United States and Canada, 1905." The book contains a list of all wholesale hardware houses of this country and the Dominion, with particulars concerning their business.

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY will publish shortly a volume that will probably be more welcomed by teachers than by students. It has been prepared by Edward R. Robbins and F. H. Somerville, of the William Penn Charter School, Philadelphia, and its sole contents are 4000 examples in algebra, "to supplement those contained in the standard textbooks."

METHUEN & Co. have just brought out a biography of Winston Spencer Churchill, by A. M. Scott, which is described as "an appreciative record of the somewhat adventurous career of a new and powerful force in English politics." It deals mainly with Churchill's adventures as a war correspondent in South Africa and with his recent change of base in British politics.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just brought out in uniform bindings four of the late Lafcadio Hearn's best books of Japanese stories and sketches, including "In Ghostly Japan," "Exotics and Retrospectives," "Shadowings," and "A Japanese Miscellany." In future they will be the American publishers of E. Phillips Oppenheim, whose "Prince of Sinners" they issued in 1903. The first novel issued under the new arrangement will be "Mysterious Mr. Sabin."

SEVERAL publishing firms, including Harper & Bros. and Charles Scribner's Sons, of New York, united with the Holdaway Publishing Company, of St. Louis, Mo., according to a special dispatch to the New York Tribune, in prosecuting L. C. Devaney, alias La Bar, a book agent, who was found guilty on the 13th inst in the St. Louis Circuit Court of obtaining books worth $2000 under false pretenses and sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. His wife, Mrs. Harriet Isles Devaney was acquitted of a similar charge.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have reissued their helpful "Notes for the Guidance of Authors in the Submission of Manuscripts to Publishers." The early part of the pamphlet contains some account of the history of The Macmillan Company, which is followed by detailed information about preparing manuscripts for submission to publishers, dispatching them, correcting proofs, copyright, form of agreement, binding, in short for arranging satisfactorily the large number of details which come up in connection with authorship.

THE ARTHUR H. CLARK Co., of Cleveland, O., announces that v. 32 and a part of v. 33 of "The Philippine Islands, 1493-1898," edited by Emma Helen Blair and James Alexander Robertson, will contain the original Pigafetta relation of the Magellan expedition, with a page-for-page English translation. The Italian text has been copied from the original manuscript, which is written in the Venetian dialect of the early sixteenth century, with occasional French and Spanish words, and which is in the Biblioteca Ambrosiana, Milan, Italy.

MR. T. C. JACK, of the firm of T. C. & E. C. Jack, in company with their London manager, H. Hunter Robinson, (for some time in charge of John Lane's branch in New York City,) will visit the United States and Canada during February. They will have with them samples of many of their publications, including some suited for the subscription trade, and expect also to make arrangements for books for the English market. Letters for them should be addressed in care of Messrs. Putnam's Sons, 29 West 23d Street, New York City.

E. B. TREAT & Co. have just issued a new and enlarged edition of "Makers of the American Republic," a series of patriotic lectures by David Gregg, president of Western Theological Seminary, Hon. W. W. Goodrich, presiding justice of the Supreme Court of New York State, and Dr. Sidney H. Carney, Jr., secretary of the New York Historical Society. There are sixteen lectures in all on "The Old Dominion, or the Virginia Colonists," "The Quakers," "The Puritans," "The Huguenots," "Our American Foremothers," "The Church and the Republic," etc.

SOTHEY, WILKINSON & HODGE, according to a London despatch to the New York Times, have just completed the private sale of five volumes for about $100,000. The volumes were originally part of the collection of manuscripts and early printed works formed by Guglielmo Libri, and their value is due chiefly to their elaborate early metal bindings. They were sold at auction at Sotheby's about forty years ago for just over £630, and they have been in the family of the purchaser ever since. The most important of the five volumes is an Evangelarium, a sixteenth century manuscript, with a silver-gilt binding of the tenth or eleventh century.

ISAAC MENDOZA, 17 Ann Street, New York City, has had the good fortune to purchase the library of Charles A. Morrogh, of New York. The collection, which is said to have cost Mr. Morrogh $35,000, consists of upwards of 8000 volumes, including a first folio Shakespeare, an elephant folio set of Audubon's works, complete sets of Kelmscott, Vale, Dove and Essex presses, a complete collection of Cruikshankiana, Rowlandson, H. K. Browne, Doyle, Leech, etc., as well as the best editions of the standard authors. Mr. Mendoza expects to be able to show the books in a few weeks. It is the finest lot of books that has come into a bookseller's hands in many a year.

HENRY HOLT & Co. announce the publication of "The Merchant of Venice" as the seventh in their Temple School Shakespeare series. This series is published by arrangement with J. W. Dent & Co., of London. The editor of this particular little volume is R. N. Williams, and in addition to many reproductions from contemporary prints contains six illustrations by Dora Curtis. They have just brought out under the title of "Strasbourg" that portion of Paul and Victor Margueritte's story, "Les Braves Gens," which deals with the siege, for which Professor Oscar Kuhns has prepared an introduction, notes and a vocabulary. They have in preparation a "Livre Français," prepared by Miss Josefa Schrakamp, which, like the author's textbook, "Das Deutsche Buch," is intended to assist the beginner in conversation, composition and reading.

"THE SIMPLE LIFE" has reached Paris via New York. Mr. Wagner's following in France heretofore large as it was had been chiefly among the working people. The dainty Parisians were inclined to criticise his lack of the polish that they require in a literary man and overlooked the message which he expressed in such straightforward, vigorous manner. But his great success in America has opened the eyes of the boulevardier. "La Vie Simple" is the cry, and French fashionable methods of life are beginning to change. The restaurateurs are complaining because the big eaters who used to order a dozen courses for a meal now sit quietly in a corner and order a glass of milk. So far the doctrines of "The Simple Life" seem to have been applied to diet chiefly. That is probably where they are most needed, and the rest will follow, for French enthusiasm rarely does anything by halves.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY again have had their almost chronic good fortune in securing a novel which treats of an American problem clamoring for solution. This is Emerson Hough's "The Law of the Land," which deals with the negro question in a manner to focus the attention of forty of the most eminent Southern statesmen. Five governors, seven senators and twenty-eight members of Congress have expressed their appreciation. Their views have been gathered into a neat pamphlet which cannot fail to arouse curiosity and make sales. In the early spring of last year the opinions of the leading clergymen of America were gathered in a large folio volume regarding Elizabeth Miller's "The Yoke," under which name and in the form of fiction also she told of the Exodus of the Israelites under Moses and Aaron, and presented most valuable and reliable data upon the history and customs of Egypt and Nineveh under the great Pharaohs of that day.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS, Mason, Ill., is publishing a monograph on "Illinois Railway Legislation and Commission Control Since 1870," by J. H. Gordon, M.A., who gives an account of the attempts of the State of Illinois to control railway rates. An introduction has been written for it by Professor M. B. Hammond concerning the subject before 1870. Mr. Gordon describes the railway situation in the State in 1870, and then recites the constitutional provisions concerning railroads, following with a narration of the restrictive legislation of 1871 and the work of the first Railway Commission. A part of the book is devoted to the history of the litigation over the enforcement of the law, and another to the discussion of the law of 1873 and the powers conferred upon the commission. The university has also brought out in its University Studies a work on "The Granger Movement in Illinois," by A. E. Paine. It deals briefly with the history of the rise of the National Grange and the spread of the Granger movement.

HARPER & BROTHERS announce for immediate publication "The Wonders of Life," by Ernest Haeckel, in a spirited and scholarly translation by Joseph McKabe. It may be recalled that this author's "The Riddle of the Universe" was one of the most startling scientific successes of its day. It is interesting to note that no one was more surprised at the success of the earlier book than Professor Haeckel himself, and the innumerable letters that reached him, asking for more knowledge to supplement that of "The Riddle of the Universe" have led the author to write this supplementary volume, "The Wonders of Life." In the earlier work Professor Haeckel made a comprehensive survey of the general questions of science as they concern the whole universe in the light of monistic philosophy; but in "The Wonders of Life" the author has confined himself to organic science, or the science of life. He has laid special stress on the universality of the law of substance and the substantial unity of nature. The object of the work is, as he says, the construction of a rational and solid philosophy of life.

T. DE MARINIS & Co., of Florence, Italy, offer a copy of the Columbus Letter—"de insulis Indiae supra Gangem nuper inventis." The copy was transferred to the bookselling firm last April by the Perugian library, and consists of four quarto pages containing 237 lines. The price asked is 23,000 francs. This letter was originally written in Spanish to Gabriel Sanchez, who was Crown Treasurer of Spain, and was translated into Latin by Leandro de Cosco. This translation was finished on "the third kalends of May [i.e., April 29], 1493," and the manuscript sent to Rome, where it was first printed by Stephanus Planck. There are eight Latin editions printed in various places during 1493, but only one has the date of printing indicated; all the others are undated as to time of printing. It is not possible from the memorandum in the booksellers' catalogue to determine which Rome edition is meant, because "May, 1493," does not mean the date of printing, but the date of translation as given above, which is in fact April 29. Of the Rome editions of 1493, two by Planck and one by Eucharius Silber, there are known, taken together, at least forty-two copies, which fact shows that no one of the three can be called superlatively rare.

E. P. DUTTON & Co., as usual, have made liberal provisions for the Valentine season. They have fifteen new series that may be sold at prices ranging from one cent to fifty cents at a profit to the dealer. Among their most attractive novelties this year is "A Basket of Love for My Valentine," filled with violets, in the centre of which is little Cupid holding out a love letter. "Cupid's Car," in the shape of a trolley car, which, when drawn out, shows through the windows several little Cupids, with bellows, flaming hearts and other implements for lighting the fires of love. "Love's Magnet" is a little case containing a magnet and a heart, with appropriate verses. Heart-shaped designs are provided in bewildering numbers. For flower designs, the daisy, pansy, forget-me-not, and the rose have been employed in various designs. Cut-out-cards, mechanical bon-bons, boxes of chewing gum, coons, folding maps showing the "Land of Love," postal cards—in short, a hundred-and-one ingenious devices have been gotten up in the most artistic manner, every one of which will appeal to the buyer. A nest of their new line, containing one each of their latest valentines, may be had for $15. An order will be sent for inspection, provided the dealer will pay carriage both ways—a reasonable offer that will be found a profitable investment for any wide-awake dealer.

THE CENTURY COMPANY has just brought out Owen Johnson's new story of the French Revolution, "In the Name of Liberty," the title of which is suggested by Madame Roland's words, "O Liberty! Liberty! how many crimes are committed in thy name!" They will bring out next month "The Fugitive Blacksmith," by Charles D. Stewart, a chapter from which appears in the February Century under the name David Stewart. Finerty is a jolly old Irishman, in charge of the sand-house in a railroad yard, and also something of a philosopher; and those who have made acquaintance with Finerty behind the scenes say he is richly worth knowing. Another February issue will be "The Smoke Eaters," by Harvey J. O'Higgins. The smoke eaters are a certain hook-and-ladder crew, and the book, it is said, might appropriately be sub-titled "the epic of the city fireman." In March they will publish a new book by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell and one by the Hon. Andrew D. White. It is said that Dr. Mitchell considers his new novel the strongest piece of fiction he has produced. It is a story of Northerners in the South during the Reconstruction period, and its publication will follow soon upon the author's seventy-fifth birthday, which is February 15. The reminiscences and autobiography of the Hon. Andrew D. White, some chapters of which have appeared in The Century, will be awaited with interest.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish in February an English sociological work entitled "Democracy and Reaction," by L. T. Hobhouse, author of "The Labor Movement," etc. Some of the chapter titles are "The School of Cobden," "The Imperial Idea," "The Useful and the Right," "The Limitations of Democracy," and "International Right." The author is said to have a brilliant style, and the book will be useful to scholars as well as the general reader. They have in preparation the second part of "The United States, 1607-1904, a history of three centuries of progress in population," etc., by William Estabrook Chancellor and Fletcher Willis Hewes, treating of the Colonial Union, 1678-1774, giving special attention to the so-called "neglected period" of American history: "The Kaiser as He Is, or, the Real William II.," by Henri de Noussanne, translated by Walter Littlefield; "The Religion of Egypt," by Dr. Georg Steindorff, of Leipzig, the latest volume of American Lectures on the History of Religion; "England Under the Stuarts," by George M. Trevelyan, which is the first issue, (while the fifth in chronological order,) of the forthcoming "History of England," edited by Professor C. W. C. Oman, to be completed in six volumes; "Select Statutes, Cases, and Constitutional Documents, 1660-1832," compiled and edited by C. Grant Robertson, which is prepared for the use of higher grade students in English constitutional history, and continues the record of documents presented in Stubbs's "Select Charters;" "The Governance of England," a study of the present conditions of the administration of Great Britain, by Sidney Low; also, "Breaking the Wilderness," a story of the conquest of the Far West, by Frederick S. Dellenbaugh, author of "The North Americans of Yesterday," etc.

JIU-JITSU

JAPANESE METHOD OF ATTACK AND SELF-DEFENSE

By Captain HARRY H. SKINNER
of New York

Poses by B. H. KUWASHIMA
Columbia University, N. Y.

Copiously Illustrated, Cloth, net, $1.00. (Postage 14 cents)

HERE, in condensed form, for ready instruction, is the essence of "Jiu-Jitsu"—the methods of attack and self-defense which enable the weak to overcome the strong. Much has been written about "Jiu-Jitsu" of late, but no book has treated the subject in a manner which enables the reader so thoroughly to grasp the knack of the combat tricks as this book.

"JIU-JITSU" is a perfect defense against the use of fists and all the ordinary forms of wrestling. An expert in this art can successfully meet an armed adversary or a man of greatly superior fighting skill. Every man should have some understanding of "Jiu-Jitsu."

THE HOUSE OF HAWLEY

By ELMORE ELLIOTT PEAKE

LOVE, and its conflicts, is the theme of this novel, the love of an iron-willed old man for his grand-daughter, and her love in turn for Norman Colfax, to whom her grandfather objects. Young love triumphs, and the girl elopes with her lover. Then, for a year, big, erect Major Hawley, proud alike of his broad shoulders and broad acres, stoops beneath the weight of an estrangement. At the last comes a more than joyful reconciliation.

By ARTHUR HENRY VESEY

IT is the keystone to the whole situation. Without it the fabric of the novel tumbles to the ground. By its means a treasure is found. Through its agency the right man gets the right girl—and then the key! It is the key that finds the jewels. Indeed, it is by means of the key that the clock is found. In fact, the clock is the key.

For the White Christ. A Story of the Days of Charlemagne.

By ROBERT AMES BENNET. With illustrations in full color and other decorations by the Kinneys. 8vo, $1.50. (March 18.)

In largeness of scene and dramatic intensity of action the best comparison for this story may be found in the fine old romances of days gone by. Furthermore, it is almost certain to be called the most beautifully embellished novel of 1905.

The Flower of Destiny. An Episode of the Second Empire.

By WILLIAM DANA ORCUTT. With illustrations by Charlotte Weber, and characteristic decorations in color. 8vo, $1.50. (April 8.)

A picturesque tale which has for its theme the romantic love-story of Napoleon III. and Eugénie. It is written in a light and charming style, and the book will be especially distinguished by its dainty appearance.

Julia.

By KATHARINE TYNAN, author of "The Dear Irish Girl," etc. With frontispiece drawing by George A. Williams. 12mo, $1.50. (March 11.)

Like "A Daughter of the Fields," and others of Miss Tynan's quiet and delightful stories, this new book brings out the finer traits of Irish character.

An Old Man's Idyl.

By WOLCOTT JOHNSON. Square 16mo, $1.00 net. (April 15.)

A "middle-aged love story," describing the simple happiness of a romance which was none the less ideal, if belated.

Letters from an Oregon Ranch.

By "KATHARINE." With 12 full-page illustrations from photographs. Square 8vo, $1.25 net. (April 7.)

The hours of delight, as well as those of trial, which fall to the lot of "Katharine" in creating a home out of the raw materials of nature, are chronicled with naive humor, and in a vein of hearty optimism which will make a universal appeal.

From the West to the West. Across the Plains to Oregon.

By ABIGAIL SCOTT DUNIWAY. With 4 full-page illustrations in color by L. Maynard Dixon. 12mo, $1.50. (April 7.)

A most interesting chronicle, in fiction form, of the perils and hardships, as well as the romantic incidents, of travel fifty years ago.

FOUR IMPORTANT NEW NOVELS

CASTEL DEL MONTE

NATHAN GALLIZIER

With six full-page plates from drawings by H. C. Edwards. $1.50

Purchasers of current fiction wish to be entertained—to be lifted out of the rut of daily cares and business worries—if only for the moment. A good story is a mental tonic. Many feel that to be transported in imagination thousands of miles from the scene of their labors and backwards hundreds of years by means of well told tales of love, intrigue, adventure and war is ideal recreation. Recommend "Castel del Monte" and they will endorse your judgment.

— It is a romance of the 13th century during the wars of the Ghibellines, a period as yet untouched by romancists, and tells a tale of love in old Palermo. The weird mysticism and fatalism of the times plays a striking part in its recital; and the famous castle which gives its name to the book is pictured again as it was in the full tide of those thrilling incidents which made history and unmade men.

THE WINGED HELMET

(Ready February 15th) HAROLD STEELE MACKAYE, "The Panchronicon" ^{Author of}

With six full-page plates from drawings by Harry C. Edwards. $1.50

When an author has an original theme on which to build his story, ability in the construction of unusual situations, skill in novel characterization and a good literary style, there can be no doubt but that his work is worth reading, and his book one you can offer your customers with the knowledge that every purchaser of a copy will sell another for you. That is the kind of a book you like to handle. "The Winged Helmet" is that kind. Mr. Mackaye's first volume showed a promise which his second has fulfilled. Blasé readers of romantic novels will look in vain for the old familiar plot and characters; for, while the author gives a convincing picture of life in the early 16th century, the tale presents a departure from all that has grown irksome in romance, and will delight them with its originality of treatment, freshness of plot, and unexpected climaxes.

THE BLACK BARQUE

(Ready February 25th) T. JENKINS HAINS, "The Windjammers," Etc. ^{Author of}

With six full-page plates from drawings by C. Herbert Dunton. $1.50

Our advertising of Mr. Hains' first long sea story begins in March. It is sure of a good sale—and your advance order is a safe investment.

LADY PENELOPE

(Ready February 25th) MORLEY ROBERTS

Illustrated with nine character portraits drawn by Arthur William Brown. $1.50

Morley Roberts's new novel, while as vitally strong as his "Rachel Marr," which created such a stir last season, is totally dissimilar in theme and treatment. It is a comedy of social life brilliant with the keen wit of a master mind.

NOTES IN SEASON.

GEORGE GOTTSBERGER PECK, 117 Chambers Street, New York, has just published "The Idiomatic Study of German," complete in one volume, by Professor Otto Kuphal, a scholarly work that is nevertheless arranged with such simplicity as to enable any student to acquire a thorough knowledge of German within the shortest possible time.

THE NEW AMSTERDAM BOOK COMPANY will publish on the 6th inst. an entertaining book entitled "On the Road with a Circus," by W.

C. Thompson. The author has lived and travelled with a circus, and writes wittily of its personelle, its adventures, the working of its machinery, etc. The book contains twenty full-page plates from photographs.

H. R. HUNTING & Co., Springfield, Mass., will publish at once a reprint of Sylvester Judd's famous "History of Hadley" (Mass.), with family genealogies by Lucius M. Boltwood, and an introduction by George Sheldon, president of Pocumtuck Valley Memorial Association, and author of a "History of Deerfield, Mass." The work was originally brought out by Metcalf & Co., of Northampton, Mass., in 1863 and has long been out of print. The Hunting reprint will be produced from type and the edition will be limited.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish on the 20th inst., "Lady Penelope," a new story by Morley Roberts, which is said to be as strong in its character drawing as the author's "Rachel Marr," though totally dissimilar in theme. There are no less than eight suitors for the hand of Lady Penelope, all types of successful men, each in his own way representative of modern manhood. This gives peculiar interest to the illustrations which are to consist of a series of nine portraits from the brush of Arthur William Brown, whose work both as an illustrator and portrait painter is well known.

THE DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY call attention to their novelties for the Easter season, including "Easter Joys," an attractive book designed by Louis Rhead, containing many of the old favorite Easter poems; "The Worth of Service," a new volume of essays by Leigh Mitchell Hodges, decorated with initial letters in three colors; also, Mr. Hodges's inspiring book, "The Great Optimist;" "Christ the Lord is Risen To-Day," with decorations in colors and gold, by Lolita Perine; "Strength for Everyday," etc. They have put up under the title of "The Great Ideals" six mottoes or prayers, such as Channing's "My Symphony," Stevenson's "My Desire," etc., in leatherette bindings; also, similar sentiments, as Inspiration Mottoes in passe-partout form.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly "The New York Public School, a History of Free Education in the City of New York," by A. Emerson Palmer, secretary of the Board of Education, which is especially timely in view of the centenary of the free school movement in New York; "International Civil and Commercial Law, as founded upon theory, legislation and practice," by Arthur K. Kuhn, of the New York Bar, whose work is a translation of Professor Melli's elaborate work on international law with additions of American and English law; "The Insulation of Electric Machines," by H. W. Turner and H. M. Hobart; "The Art of the Musician, a guide to the intelligent appreciation of music," by Henry G. Han-chett, the well-known musician and lecturer; also a new and cheaper edition of Dr. Thomas Allbutt's "System of Medicine and Gynecology."

Gardenhire, S: M. The silence of Mrs. Harrold. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [Ja.] c. 6+462 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A prominent New York lawyer meets a beautiful woman on an ocean steamer returning to New York. He woos and wins her—but under a condition that he will never in any way seek to penetrate the mystery of her past. Their married life in New York City is for seven years an ideal one, when John Harrold's long sleeping desire to know something of his wife's early life is rudely awakened. A story follows, of ingenious construction, which gradually unravels an unusual plot. The characters are men and women of to-day—millionaires, actors and a charming actress, business men, lawyers, etc. The Theatrical Trust plays no small part in the story.

The present work, as its title indicates, is a supplementary volume to "The riddle of the universe." While the latter undertook to make a comprehensive survey of the general questions of science—as cosmological problems—in the light of the monistic philosophy, the present volume is confined to the realm of organic science, or the science of life. It seeks to deal connectedly with the general problems of biology, in strict accord with the monistic and mechanical principles which the author laid down in 1866 in his "General morphology."

Her traveling companion, after reaching Africa, is a mysterious man of strong individuality, a Russian who disclaims all religion. The woman is a Catholic. They marry. After a few months the man tells his wife the story of his life. The end is dramatic and brought about by deep religious convictions. The atmosphere of the desert gives great originality to the setting.

In 1857, John Doyle Lee, a chief among the Mormon Brotherhood known as the Danites, was ordered by Brigham Young and the leading counsellors of the Mormon church to take his men and murder a party of emigrants then on their way through Utah to California. This wholesale murder was given the title of "The Mountain Meadows Massacre." It was not till twenty years later, in 1877, that Lee was shot to death for his crimes, by the U. S. government. While in prison he wrote his life, which was published after his death. The Mormons bought up the whole edition, excepting one or two copies, from one of which this volume is printed. It is a terrible story of the Mormon church, its power, treachery, etc.

For the first time the real character and motives of the peculiar people—known as "The Doukhobors"—are explained. Mr. Maude, the author, who made the arrangement with the Canadian government which led to the migration of the Doukhobors to Canada, and has closely studied them since, is able to throw much light on what has hitherto appeared unaccountable. A history is given of the Doukhobors, tracing their connection in the past with the Lollards, Anabaptists, Quakers, and other sects. There is a description of their migration to Canada and settlement in that country, and then follows an account of the extraordinary "pilgrimage" in 1902, which the Canadian government had forcibly to check.

Part 1, Crystallography has been entirely rewritten and attempt has been made to subordinate the study of models to the study of actual crystals. The introductory part of Part 3, Descriptive mineralogy, has been revised and rewritten, and a chapter added upon "occurrence and origin of minerals" and the discussion of chemical composition, etc., has been made more thorough. The descriptions of species, statistics, etc., are brought to date."—Preface.

The mysterious hero appears as a man of sixty with his niece, in London society. A complicated and ingenious plot dwells particularly upon the likelihood of war between Germany and England and the equal likelihood of the Republic of France again becoming a monarchy. The various intrigues introduce characters that as employees of others and on their own responsibility do much clever detective work. The conversations on modern diplomacy and the characteristics of the great world nations are terse and clever.

The gloom of a shocking domestic tragedy casts a shadow over a strongly written novel of the Dartmoor country of western England. The characters are small farmers and their families and laboringmen. A murder that seems to have some extenuating circumstances brings desolation and misery to a once happy home. A good woman, somewhat hard and unlovely, a weak and unfaithful husband, his mistress, a young woman half his age, and his two sons are the chief characters. The beautiful Devon woods are the background to many violent scenes of love and hatred.

John Brown, of Harper's Ferry fame, is the subject of Dr. Winkley's volume of reminiscence. Dr. Winkley, long a citizen of Boston, was one of those who, in 1856, became a Free State colonist of Kansas Territory, then the skirmish ground of the long conflict between free labor and negro slavery. His residence there was brief, but in the time he came under the influence of the man, who became a hero to him. His little book, with other matter describes two of Brown's famous fights in Kansas.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE New Bedford, Mass., Free Public Library has published, for free distribution, a revised edition of its "List of Books and Magazine References bearing on the Cotton Industry, Textiles and Textile Manufactures." (22 p. 24°.)

THE Swedish Publishers' Association, (Svenska bogförläggareföreningen,) Stockholm, has published the Svensk Bok-Katalog Jamte Musikkförteckning for åren 1896-1900, supplementing the two volumes, 1876-1885 and 1886-1895. An innovation is made in the first part by including in the author record subject catch-words as cross references to the author-entry. The second part of the catalogue is a careful digest of the first part, prepared by W. Gödel, the first part being edited by Carl Broberg and Arvid Thelin. Publications whose price does not exceed 10 öre, (less than three cents,) are not included except when they are regarded as having special literary value. (381 p. 8°, 16 kr.)

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

FEBRUARY 4, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

INSURANCE ON PLATES AND STOCK.

THE question of insuring plates and bound stock, especially where the book in question has passed into the limbo of moribund publications, is one of the most difficult which the publisher has to face, and is peculiarly one for consideration at this time of inventory and appraisal. The like problem confronts the bookseller in insuring old stock on his shelves. Not to carry insurance is unwise and unbusinesslike; on the other hand, to pay for more insurance than can be collected in case of partial or total loss, is extravagant and wasteful. In former days, when an insurer could collect in full for partial loss, or to the full limit of his insurance in case of total loss, the problem was not so serious; the insurer got at least, in the event of misfortune, what he paid for. But the abuse of insurance facilities by the less reliable portion of the business community, inviting at least carelessness and sometimes incendiarism, caused the insurance companies to modify the old system of insurance, and the co-insurance plan, which limits the responsibility of the insurance companies and requires the sharing by the insured of part of the risk, is now a part of the standard policy in vogue in many States.

A publisher may value and insure his plates and stock on either one of three bases, either one being perfectly honest if it is logically and systematically used. He may insure his bound volumes at their full wholesale price, his sheet stock at the same less cost of binding, and his plates at their producing value, that is to say, at an advance above cost which represents the profit made from the plates in manufacturing and selling editions. These appraisals represent top valuation, and are justifiable in the case of a quick seller in which the destruction of stock and plates would involve serious loss before the plates could be remade and the book reprinted. But this of course involves proportionately larger premiums for insurance and is both illegitimate and unwise when applied to books of slow sale or waning value. A second basis of appraisal for books or sheet stock is the cost of manufacture, which may be figured on the total cost of the book, including editorial cost or author's "outright," and cost of typesetting or plates divided pro rata on the unsold part of the edition. But this also is a high valuation, requiring high premiums, and not altogether wise except in the case of thoroughly live books. A third basis is duplication cost, that is to say, of paper, printing and binding of bound stock, of paper and printing of sheet stock, of setting and casting in the case of plates. This is nearer to actual "hard pan," and is a fairly conservative course. But a fourth basis has also to be faced, for many books are no longer worth the paper and printing, but only their value as old paper, and many plates are no longer worth typesetting cost but only their value as old metal. This is "hard pan," indeed, and is the lowest basis for insurance for publishers.

In respect to old stock on booksellers' shelves, the question of valuation is somewhat more simple. The bookseller may elect to pay high premiums on the wholesale value of his stock as purchased by him, or to pay lower premiums on his stock as not much more than old paper. Probably the safe, wise and conservative course is a fair medium between the two averaged on his entire stock.

The time has gone by, and rightly, when a fire could be a blessing in disguise, returning to the business man more than he could have hoped for from the ordinary sale of his wares. This status was altogether too tempting an inducement to a certain class in the community to let fires happen. But, as is too often the case, the pendulum has swung to the other extreme, and the cost of insurance, in comparison with the possible recovery in case of loss, is now a very serious matter with the trade, and especially with publishers. In some cases the rates are practically so high that it is better to insure by dividing stock and becoming one's own insurer, that is to say, by sending half an edition from printers to binders and transferring the bound half to the publisher's own shelves before the second half comes from the printers to the binders; again by keeping part of an edition in stock in the publisher's store and the other half in a separate place of storage. Plates stored in vaults are pretty sure to return their melting value even in case of severe fire breaking down the vaults. And in many cases such self-insurance is perhaps advisable. Certainly nothing is more unwise than to overvalue stock and to pay premiums for fires which, if they do occur, would result in recouping for the insurer a very inadequate return for the money he has paid in premiums. On the other hand, it is not fair to creditors or to one's self to go altogether without insurance, so that a fire might result in permanent debt or a crippled business. Between this Scylla and this Charybdis the wise publisher or bookseller must steer a careful way.

A NEW PUBLISHING FIRM—MOFFAT, YARD & CO.

W. D. MOFFAT, for twenty years with Charles Scribner's Sons and lately business manager of Scribner's Magazine, and Robert S. Yard, manager of the book advertising for the same firm and editor of The Lamp, announce the formation of a corporation under the title of Moffat, Yard & Company, to engage in a general book, picture and periodical publishing business to be carried on at 289 Fourth Avenue, New York City. They also announce a business alliance with the publishers of Town and Country, in which periodical they have acquired an interest.

The senior member of the new firm, Mr. Moffat, has been well known in publishing circles for the last eight years as the business manager of Scribner's Magazine. He is a Princeton man, having graduated in the class of 1884. He entered the Scribner house at once on leaving college. Beginning as a salesman in the store, his rise was steady. He filled many places of importance in the house, including that of manager of the educational department. When Frank N. Doubleday left the business management of Scribner's Magazine, eight years ago, to engage in business for himself, Mr. Moffat was chosen as his successor, and under his control the magazine has prospered greatly. Mr. Moffat has been an occasional contributor to magazines and is the author of a number of stories for boys.

Mr. Yard is also a Princeton man, having graduated in 1883. He had some business training in the shipping house of W. R. Grace & Co., and then went into newspaper work as a reporter, and later as editor. His newspaper training was got on the New York Sun under Charles A. Dana. Three years after he succeeded Harold Raymond as reporter for the New York Herald. Later on he filled many editorial posts on the Herald, and was Sunday editor for the year and a half of its "high water" circulation. Five years ago he left journalism for the publishing business, becoming manager for R. H. Russell. One year later he went to Charles Scribner's Sons to conduct their book advertising. For the last two years, in addition to managing the advertising and publicity department of the house, he has also had editorial charge of The Lamp.

The new firm will begin business at once. **

BOOKS IN DEMAND IN GERMANY 1903-1904.

ACCORDING to Das Literarische Echo of Berlin the following books were most in demand in public and circulating libraries from the fall of 1903 to the fall of 1904:

Götz Krafft. Ed. Stilgebauer.....	96
Das Schlafende Heer. C. Viebig.....	78
Briefe die ihn nicht erreichten. E. v. Heyking.....	70
Jena oder Sedan? F. A. Beyerlein.....	64
Jörn Uhl. Gustav Frenssen.....	43
Erstklassige Menschen. W. Graf Buddenbrooks. Th. Mann.....	41
dissin (Fhr. v. Schlicht).....	43

The editor, in commenting on this report, regrets that the American fashion of the "book of the hour" is also coming into vogue in Germany. With the exception of J. Lorimer's "Briefe eines Dollarkönigs an seinen Sohn," the works of no foreign writers seem to have been in enough demand to deserve notice.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

THE PITTSBURG BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONER'S ASSOCIATION.

THE fifth annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Booksellers' and Stationers' Association, held on the evening of January 24, at the Monongahela Club, was a most enjoyable affair. At seven o'clock about sixty members of the association and their guests met in the cheerful parlors of the club and spent a social half-hour in becoming acquainted. Shortly before eight o'clock the party was seated in the festively decorated dining room to discuss an excellent menu. The menu card was in the shape of a small book, having the coat-of-arms of Pittsburgh and the monogram of the association on the front cover, the eight pages of contents describing the good things in store for the diners.

H. Lee Mason, Jr., was unfortunately prevented from being present, owing to the critical illness of his father-in-law, Mr. Charles Lockhart, (who died a day later,) and the vice-president, A. W. McCloy, therefore, took his place as toastmaster. When coffee had been served Mr. McCloy after a brief address of welcome, introduced as the first speaker of the evening Dr. A. J. Barchfeld who has recently been elected Congressman in the south side district. George A. Olney, who has attended every dinner of the association, made a strong appeal for union and co-operation. W. D. Bevin, of New York, also made a stirring address on the value of organization. Other speakers were Cass Richardson, representing the Booksellers' League of New York; Lee W. Barnard, Secretary of the Cleveland Association of Stationers; L. E. Waterman, of the Waterman Fountain Pen Company; J. J. MacWilliams, of Reynolds & Reynolds, Dayton, O., and Charles H. Clough. The company dispersed after singing "Auld Lang Syne" to the orchestra's accompaniment.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE'S ANNUAL DINNER.

THE tenth annual dinner of the Booksellers' League will be given at the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York, on Wednesday evening February 8, at 7 o'clock sharp. The Board of Managers have made every effort to make this one of the most successful meetings of the League and trust to have the hearty co-operation of every member in making it an event long to be pleasantly remembered. The guests of the evening will be Dillon Wallace, the companion of Leonidas Hubbard, Jr., who died of starvation a little over a year ago on an exploring expedition in the interior of Labrador, and whose account of that expedition under the title of "The Lure of the Labrador Wild," will shortly be brought out by the Revells; Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York American; Joseph R. Buchanan, author of "The Story of a Labor Agitator;" the Rev. Thomas B. Gregory of New York and several others. The price of tickets is $2.00 and members who intend to be present are requested to secure them on or before February 6 of Mr. W. G. Preston, 372 Fifth Ave., or of any member of the Board of Managers.

NEW YORK ASSOCIATION OF STATIONERS.

THE movement for the formation of a New York Association of Stationers, according to Geyer's Stationer, has been delayed by the illness of Andrew Geyer, the head of the committee, who was confined to his home for five weeks. The active work of canvassing for membership has now, however, begun, and the signatures already received show that the prospects for forming the association are most encouraging. The blank for signatures states that "It is proposed to form a local Stationers' Association in New York city for the purpose of promoting and fostering a feeling of friendship and fraternity among the members of the trade by occasional meetings and to discuss topics of business interest to the trade. In order to form such an association it is proposed to call a meeting of the manufacturers, jobbers and retailers of New York City, at the St. Denis Hotel, Broadway and Eleventh Street, New York City, on _____, where a dinner will be served at 6 o'clock P.M. The expenses will be $2 for each member who agrees to be present. The sum will be payable whether the members actually attend the dinner or not. No dress suits or claw hammers allowed at this meeting. The undersigned agree to attend or be represented at this meeting on the above conditions."

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE DINNER.

THE annual dinner of the Stationers' Board of Trade will be given at the Waldorf-Astoria on the evening of February 7. The dinner promises to be well attended, more tickets having already been bespoken than has ever been the case. Those who expect to attend can best help the committee to make it a very successful meeting by procuring their tickets at the earliest possible date, so that it may be known in advance approximately how many will be present.

The list of speakers, which is to be increased by several other names, now stands as follows: W. N. Caldwell, President, American Writing Paper Company, Holyoke, Mass.; Hon. John S. Wise, ex-Governor of West Virginia; O. F. Nichols, Chief Engineer, Department of Bridges, New York; and Rev. Roeliff H. Brooks, Brooklyn. J. C. Dempsey will assist in the entertainment with songs and stories, and George J. Patterson has promised to entertain the company with banjo music.

The following guests have also been invited and will probably be in attendance: John B. Fay, buyer for A. C. McClurg & Company and the newly elected president of the Chicago Stationers' Association, and Abner K. Pratt, of J. L. Fairbanks & Company, Boston, president of the Boston Stationers' Association.

COMMUNICATIONS.

LONG ISLAND EXPRESS COMPANY CHARGES

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Publishers should take notice that the Long Island Express Company charges 25 cents for parcels delivered in Brooklyn, that other express companies deliver for 10 cents and 15 cents respectively. We have protested to the superintendent against the discrimination, but got no satisfaction.

The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis, has adopted a label for parcels, that all publishers who respect their customers' pockets should adopt. It reads: "Book rate. Charges on this package have been paid to destination. Pay no more."

BENSONHURST, N. Y., January 25, 1905.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MAXIM GORKY (Alexei Maximovitch Pyeschkoff), the well-known Russian author and leader of the Reform party, it is reported, was arrested January 22 at Riga, whither he had been summoned by the illness of his wife. He was taken to St. Petersburg, but released on the 2d inst.

COLONIAL SECRETARY LITTLETON has appointed H. Rider Haggard a commissioner to inquire into the conditions and character of the agricultural and industrial land settlements organized in America by the Salvation Army. The trustees of the estate of Cecil Rhodes are paying the expenses of the inquiry, with the view of applying the theme to South Africa.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE HENRY BOUGHTON, the well-known artist, a member of the Royal Academy, died suddenly in his studio at Campsten Hill, London, on January 19. Mr. Boughton was born in Norwich, Eng., in 1834, but was brought to this country in 1839, and educated in Albany, N. Y. He studied painting in London and then returned to New York, where he had a studio from 1858-1861. He wrote a number of short stories for Harper's and the Poll Mall Gazette, and, with E. A. Abbey, brought out a book entitled "Sketching Rambles in Holland."

CHARLES JOHN CLAY, who had been associated for many years with the Cambridge University Press, died in Cambridge, Eng., on January 16, aged seventy-seven. He was senior member of the firm that bears his name, and was the University printer from 1854 to 1894. He took his degree as third classic at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1850, and did good service in connection with the municipal life of the town. His geniality endeared him to many friends, and the younger generation looked up to him as a model of the old school.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

To-Morrow is the title of a new monthly magazine published from 1926 Indiana Avenue Chicago. It is edited by Oscar L. Triggs, and is to be an "exponent of the changing order, with special stress on the new values dominating our social, industrial and intellectual progress."

WILLIAM EDGAR FISHER has contributed seven designs for book-plates to the current number of Books and Book-Plates. The number also contains an interesting article on Joseph Sattler, with reproductions of his work. Every number brings much of information and interest to the ex-libris enthusiast and to the bibliophile.

Bensiger's Magazine for March will contain the first of a series of brilliant articles on "Modern Religious Painters," by Dr. Albert Kuhn, the well-known art connoisseur, who is just completing his monumental "General History of Art," that has received the highest praise from non-Catholic as well as Catholic critics. The publishers are making to libraries special offers that will hold good until March 15—namely, to supply Bensiger's Magazine for $1 instead of $2 the year. Bensiger's has steadily grown in literary value, and with the inducement of this added feature, and the reduced price, it should have no difficulty in securing now a largely increased audience.

The Burlington Magazine for January, published in this country by Robert Grier Cooke, 307 Fifth Avenue, New York, contains an article on "The Progress of British Art in 1904;" "The Sculptures in Lansdowne House," by A. H. Smith, with four plates; "Opus Anglicanum—the Syon Cope," by May Morris, with two plates and illustrations in the text; "Early Christian Art in the Roman Catacombs," by J. P. Richter, with a colored plate; "The Collection of Dr. Carvallo at Paris," by Léonce Amandry, the third article in which the early pictures of various schools are described, with seven plates; the second part of the article on "Transfer Printing on Pottery," by John Hodgkin, giving a catalogue of Liverpool tiles, with two plates; also, "A Newly-Discovered Study for the Christ Blessing Little Children in the National Academy," with one plate. A very full bibliography and a department of Foreign Correspondence complete this very handsome number.

NEW YORK CITY.—G. E. Stechert & Co. have removed to 129-133 West Twentieth Street. They have in their new quarters 10,000 square feet of store room, and will be better equipped than ever to execute all orders entrusted to them.

The concern, it is expected, will remove to the new location shortly. At least two stories of the building will be occupied, the first being used for retail trade and the second for storage and wholesale purposes.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

It is now authoritatively announced that the "Letters of Queen Victoria" will be published next October.

THOMAS WHITTAKER is about to publish "Life and Its Problems," a volume of recent sermons, by the Rev. Dr. A. G. Mortimer, of Philadelphia.

It is highly probable that Mr. Dixon's next novel, the last of the race trilogy, will be called "The Traitor." It will deal with the race problem as it confronts the South to-day.

THE current number of the London Coming Modes contains a pathetically interesting illustrated article on "Fanny Burney's Neglected Grave at Bath," from the pen of J. F. Meehan, of that city.

DR. L. W. ZWISOHN, 1085 Lexington Avenue, New York, has written and published a popular little handbook on "The Prevention and Cure of Tuberculosis (Consumption)," containing plain talks for plain people on health and sanitation.

THE CAROLINA PAPER PULP COMPANY, Incorporated, is offering through Groom & Grosseck, 1025 Arch Street, Philadelphia, 20,000 shares of its stock at $5 the share. The company announces that it has recently secured over 15,000 acres of good timber land in the South and is now receiving orders for pulp.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS are making an exhibit of the artistic bookbindings contributed to the St. Louis Exposition by the great bookbinders of Paris. Among the exhibits are seven examples of the work of Saint-André de Lignereux, David, Affolter, Canapé, Chambolle-Duru, Cuzin, Lortic, Ruban, Gruel, Durvand, Kieffer, Noulhac, Weill and Mercier.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish in the spring vol. III. and IV. of Herbert Paul's "History of Modern England," the first two volumes of which made their appearance just a year ago. They have also in preparation five lectures on the modern science of history by Professor Karl Lamprecht of the University of Leipzig. The little volume, styled "What is History?," is translated from the German by E. A. Andrews.

JOHN W. LUCE & Co., Boston, are about to issue in an attractive volume Bernard Shaw's essay, "On Going to Church." This is considered by many good critics to be among the best work done by that eminent satirist, whose writings both for the stage and for library are now having such a vogue. The essay will be issued in a binding that is uniform in style with the same author's "Plays, Pleasant and Unpleasant," "Man and Superman," etc.

A. WESSELS COMPANY will publish at once Goldwin Smith's informal review of Morley's "Life of Gladstone." To Americans the most interesting revelations of personal intercourse occur in the section dealing with Gladstone's attitude toward our Civil War. Probably with the view of satisfying mortified friends of the North in England, Gladstone suggested to the author that if the North thought fit to let the South go, it might in time be indemnified by the union of Canada with the Northern States.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish on the 17th inst., A. Cahan's story of revolutionary Russia, entitled "The White Terror and the Red," which gives a drastic picture of Russia in the throes of two terrorisms, the above-ground as well as the under-ground Russia, the Russian official, the Russian political dreamer, the moujik, the soldier and the Jew. They will bring out on the 24th inst. Dr. Henry C. Rowland's new sea story, "The Wanderers," the action of which passes between Gibraltar and the South Seas.

B. W. HUEBSCH, New York, has just brought out a pamphlet entitled "Shakespeare, a syllabus of twelve lectures," by Professor Edward Howard Griggs, in which the author presents a digest of the discourses which he is now engaged in delivering in Philadelphia and Boston and which were heard in Brooklyn during the twelve weeks preceding Christmas. The syllabus ends with a book list which embodies the titles of the works which the author considers most important for reference and collateral reading.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have ready a book by Frederic Villiers, the war-artist correspondent, who has just returned from Port Arthur, to be entitled "Port Arthur: Three Months with the Besiegers—a diurnal of occurrences." The book will be illustrated by the original sketches of the author's experiences with General Baron Nogi's army before the great fortress. Mr. Villiers will deal with all the vicissitudes of the indomitable besiegers, having been an eye-witness of the fighting night and day during the last three months.

WILLIAM HEINEMANN, London, has just published Edmund Gosse's new book, entitled "French Profiles." A companion volume to the author's "Critical Kit-Kats," it contains essays on most of the distinguished men of letters of contemporary France—Zola, Daudet, Anatole France, Pierre Loti, René Bazin, to name only a few. Additional interest is given to the book by the publication for the first time of the paper read before the Société des Conférences in Paris by Mr. Gosse on "The Influence of French Literature upon English Poetry."

HARPER & BROTHERS, in response to requests from members of the faculty of various universities, including Yale and Harvard, are issuing a University edition of their twenty-eight volume history, "The American Nation." Of the five volumes already issued, under the group title "The Foundations of the Nation," each is the latest work of a specialist whose researches in the past have been of value to all the colleges of the country. This edition will contain the same maps and the same indices, but will be gotten up simply and suitably for college uses.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in press a small volume entitled "The White Peril in the Far East," by Sidney L. Gulick, author of "The Evolution of the Japanese," who finds that the aggressiveness of the white race, their progressive civilization, the white man's greedy dreams of Oriental Empire, his haughty domineering spirit, the unsettling effect upon Oriental religions of the white man's missionary propaganda, are as real a cause of war as the direct economic problems. They have also in press a novel by a new author, Lydia C. Wood, entitled "For a Free Conscience," that deals with the romance and struggle of early Quaker life.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in preparation a volume on "The Tragic Drama in Æschylus, Sophocles and Shakespeare," by Professor Lewis Campbell, author of a work on the "Religion in Greek Literature," the purpose of which, the author says, is to invite attention to the essential points of correspondence between the great masterpieces of Athens and of Elizabethan England. They will publish shortly another work on fiscal policy and problems, entitled "Progress of the German Working Classes in the Last Quarter of a Century," by W. J. Ashley, now of England, formerly Professor of Economic History in Harvard University.

J. ROWLAND MIX, who has been for many years well known in the publishing world as the manager of the advertising department of Scribner's Magazine, has, in addition to his present office, assumed the responsibilities of general business manager, succeeding W. D. Moffat. Mr. Mix's conduct of his special department has always been marked by energy and progressiveness, combined with a sound conservatism, that has brought Scribner's advertising to an enviable standard, both in respect to volume and the high character of the business carried. He is admirably equipped by his experience for the wider field of usefulness afforded by his new office.

THE BURROWS BROTHERS COMPANY of Cleveland, who have handled Keister's "Corporation Accounting and Auditing" quite extensively in the past, have now become the sole publishers of this useful work, having leased the plates from the author for a long term of years. A new edition, embodying additional matter in the shape of 325 questions and answers, is in the press and will be ready in a short time. This work has a high standing with the accountants and book-keepers, and is recommended the country over as authority of all subjects of which it treats. Orders in the future should be addressed to The Burrows Brothers Company.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a century edition of the early novels of Disraeli, which is, it is stated, essentially biographical. In all cases the first editions of the books are reprinted. Each work is provided with an introduction, in which the editor, Lucien Wolf, attempts to trace the circumstances of its composition, to show the part it played in the author's life, and the part Disraeli himself plays in the story. Each is further to have a few explanatory notes at the end and an index. The volumes will be bound in red cloth, with gold decorations, gilt tops, and uncut leaves, and printed in large type. "Vivian Grey" in two volumes is to be brought out immediately, together with "Coningsby" and "Contarini Fleming."

The other novels will follow at short intervals.

THE OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston, has published in its Musician's Library "Fifty Songs by Robert Schumann," edited by W. J. Henderson. The volume contains a scholarly sketch of Robert Schumann (June 8, 1810 to July, 1856), outlining the character of his compositions and tracing his influence on German song writing. There is also a bibliography of works on Schumann in English, French and German, and an index in English and German. The songs selected represent what are considered to be Schumann's strongest and most characteristic work. The Musician's Library has steadily grown in favor for its careful and authoritative editorship, critical introductions, good texts, faithful literary translations, and chaste and dignified typography. It now includes twenty-five volumes, embracing some of the best work of Brahms, Chopin, Franz, Liszt, Grieg and others, and promises in time to cover the greater part of the field of song and piano music.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on the 15th inst., a new book by Miss Una L. Silberrad, entitled "The Wedding of the Lady of Lovell," which deals with half a dozen dramatic happenings in each of which a large part is played by sturdy Tobiah, the dissenter, a man of God, and a strong and masterful figure. They will bring out on March 2, "The Opening of Tibet," by Percival Landon; "The Lion Skin," by John S. Wise; "The Way of the North," by Warren Cheney, a novel of the Alaskan days during the Russian régime when Baronoff was governor; also, "Tommy Cartarert," a new novel by Justin Miles Forman. An interesting announcement is that of a book entitled "England, the Island Empire." It is by the Vicomte Robert d'Humieres, and has caused quite a sensation in France. It is a profound analysis of modern English character, made after years of study, and written with delightful Gallic cleverness. The translation will be prefaced by an interesting letter from Rudyard Kipling.

D. VAN NOSTRAND COMPANY have published a work on "Steam Turbines," by D. A. Stodola, translated from the second German edition by Dr. Louis C. Loewenstein. It includes a treatise on "Gas Turbines, and the Future of Heat Engines," an elementary introduction to the theory of steam turbines for the general reader, and a series of reports of the experiments on the many-stage impulse turbines of Zölly, Rateau, Stumpf, Gelpke and others. They have also just ready "A Short Course in Alternate Current Testing," a small pamphlet for students in electrical engineering in Columbia University, by Fitzhugh Townsend. They have in press a practical treatise on "Earth and Rock Excavation," by Charles Prelini, C.E., author of "Tunneling," etc. The volume will contain many tables, diagrams and engravings. It treats of cuts and fills, rock excavation with and without blasting, explosives, machine excavation, hauling of excavated materials, transportation of excavated materials, shrinkage of earth, etc.

IN view of the appearance in the spring of a cheap popular edition of Mr. Thomas Nelson Page's latest novel, "Gordon Keith," 120,000 copies of which have already sold in the regular edition, it is interesting to know that Mr. Page's popularity is represented by sales since his first book was published in 1887 of considerably more than half a million volumes. The sales of his first long novel, "Red Rock," which was published in 1898, are in excess of those of "Gordon Keith" and show no signs of abating. More than 100,000 copies have also been sold of Mr. Page's books for younger readers, "Two Little Confederates," "A Captured Santa Claus," and "Santa Claus's Partner." Meanwhile his first book of short stories, "In Old Virginia," containing "Marse Chan," "Meh Lady," etc., has long since attained to the position of an American classic and has sold by the tens of thousands, as has also his shorter novel, "The Old Gentleman of the Black Stock," both of which are still in constant demand. The increasing vitality of all of Mr. Page's books is their noteworthy characteristic.

M. DE BRUNOFF & Co., (the Paris Fine Art Publishing Company), of Paris, London and 30 Lafayette Place, New York, have brought out in two sumptuous volumes the Old Testament of the Bible, with 396 original compositions by James Tissot, whose death in 1902 was so deeply lamented. During eight years of constant labor, Tissot devoted every available moment to this task, and though he did not have the satisfaction of seeing his last work engraved and published, the work has been carried forward with the same care that would have been exercised had the artist been spared to have it carried to completion under his own supervision. The full-page plates and a number of the illustrations in the text are printed in colors, and faithfully reproduce the color values of the originals. Besides these there are a number of carefully-printed half-tone illustrations in the text which is as chaste and dignified as typographic art is capable of. The printing is a credit to the Winthrop Press. The work is published in a popular edition, in a special edition and in French editions, ranging in prices from $24.50 to $5000 the set.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR Co. have just issued an attractive Valentine edition of "Old Love Stories Retold," by Richard Le Gallienne. The book is put forth in a lavender silk box with a large lace heart, such as was common on the valentines of the past, on the outside, and the title stamped in gold. From its title and the nature of its text this book is most appropriate for a Valentine's Day gift. They will publish about the middle of the month "The Digressions of Polly," by Helen Rowland, which was published serially under the title of "The Polly Dialogues," with illustrations in color; "Power and Health Through Progressive Exercises," a revolutionary book on physical culture, by George Elliot Flint, with an introduction by the author's father, Dr. Austin Flint, the eminent New York physician and physiologist; "The Evolution of Knowledge," by Raymond St. James Perrin, which is broadly a history of philosophical ideas developed by a man who has gained wide reputation from his study and thought in philosophical lines; also, a new issue of "Social Progress," by Dr. Josiah Strong, the information in which is brought down to date.

MODERN RELIGIOUS PAINTERS.

A Series of Brilliant Articles by One of the Greatest Living Authorities, Illustrated by Reproductions of the Best Paintings of Modern Masters. Of Great Educational Value.

THERE is scarcely any one who does not know something about the famous old masters of religious painting, but who knows the religious painters of the present day? Occasionally we come across one or two of their pictures, but from these we can form no adequate idea of their work in general. Nor is this lack of knowledge to be wondered at, since nothing has ever appeared in any language so far treating this important subject as it deserves.

Of great value to every one who takes a practical interest in modern Religious Art.

To be fully appreciated, an artist's work must be considered as a whole, a number of his pictures should be placed together, and then analyzed, contrasted, and described by a competent art critic.

A series of brilliant articles is about to begin in BENZIGER'S MAGAZINE, and in connection therewith the very best modern religious paintings will be reproduced and explained.

These articles will be written especially for BENZIGER'S MAGAZINE by one of the greatest living authorities on the subject—by no less a person than the well-known author, scholar and art connoisseur, DR. ALBERT KUHN, O.S.B., who is just completing his monumental "General History of Art." In this work appearing in forty parts, with no less than 4000 illustrations, he treats of architecture, painting, and sculpture from the standpoint of history, technique, and esthetics. The work has been in course of publication for several years, and the fortieth and last part will appear within a year. It has received the highest praise not only from Catholic critics, but from non-Catholic ones as well.

Nothing so complete ever before published on this subject.

Articles begin in the March number: Why you should subscribe now.

These articles of Dr. Kuhn on "Modern Religious Painters" will create wide interest, as they will bring us in direct contact with modern religious artists and their work. This will prove of great educational value.

Dr. Kuhn's articles will begin in the March number, and we advise all who are interested to subscribe at once, so that they will have the articles complete from the start. If for nothing else, it will be worth while to preserve the numbers of the Magazine containing these articles on "Modern Religious Painters."

Special Offer to Libraries!!

GOOD ONLY TILL MARCH 15th, 1905.

We wish to introduce BENZIGER'S MAGAZINE in every library in the United States. We are sure that a large number of people who frequent Libraries will find in it much to interest them, especially the articles on Modern Religious Painters. The regular price of Benziger's Magazine is $2.00; but realizing that it will be some advantage to us to have our Magazine kept on file, we make the following special offer:

For $1.00 (instead of $2.00, the regular price) we will send you BENZIGER'S MAGAZINE for one year, provided we receive your subscription before March 15th, 1905.

The Fugitive Blacksmith

By CHARLES D. STEWART

A GENUINE surprise. A well-known critic says: "Not since Mark Twain's Mississippi book have I come across any story of this region as vital and at first hand as 'The Fugitive Blacksmith.' . . . I tell you this book is decidedly out of the ordinary in plot, scene, character and vigorous hold of the life that now is. It is sure to pique curiosity and make hosts of friends."

Finerty, a quaint and comfortable philosopher, runs the sand-house in a railway yard. To him comes Stumpy and tells the story of his side-partner Bill, the Fugitive Blacksmith; and sometimes Finerty tells a story—and between them all the reader gets a lot of fun.

Frontispiece by Hambidge. 12mo, 320 pages, $1.50.

THE SMOKE-EATERS

By HARVEY J. O'HIGGINS

THIS is one of the most exciting books of its kind ever written—and one full of humor. It graphically records the life and deeds of the men who, as they say, "eat smoke and spit black buttons." It comes pretty near being the epic of the city firemen, its wonderfully strong situations being developed through the mixed motives of love, jealousy, hate, cowardice, and heroism. The scene of each big episode is a fire. A book for men, and a good one.

Illustrated, 12mo, 300 pages, $1.50.

IN THE NAME OF LIBERTY

A Story of the Terror

By OWEN JOHNSON

Author of "Arrows of the Almighty." A powerful love-story, giving a new point of view of one of the most picturesque and wildest tragedies in all history—the French Revolution.

HAMILTON W. MABIE says:

"I do not recall having read any story which brings before the imagination more vividly every-day life in Paris during the Revolutionary period."

REVELL'S LATEST BOOKS

The Story of the Expedition conducted by Leonidas Hubbard, Jr.

The Lure of the Labrador Wild

Illustrations and Maps, 8vo, Cloth, net $1.50.

DILLON WALLACE

Mr. Hubbard's survivor here presents in a graphic literary style the complete record of the tragic story of these Companion-Explorers into undiscovered Labrador. Kipling's call to find the "something hidden behind the ranges" was their watchword, and Mr. Wallace has given the world a record of high, noble purpose and achievement. The heart of every man who has heard the "red gods' call" will beat faster and yet faster as they follow "the feet of the young men" from page to page as they "go-go-go away" into the trackless wilderness. A wealth of photographic illustrations and original maps combine to give authenticity and vividness to this unique narrative of adventure.

The Harvest of the Sea

A tale of both sides of the Atlantic.

WILFRED T. GRENPELL, M.D.

A vivid story in which fact is presented in fiction form of the Deep Sea Fisherman's life on the Dogger banks in the North Sea and off the Coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador. Full of thrilling heroic adventure in which men count not their lives dear—"This also is the price of fish."

Doctor Luke*Third Edition*

12mo, Cloth, $1.50.

By NORMAN DUNCAN

"Beyond a peradventure ranks as one of the most remarkable novels issued in 1904. Stands out so prominently in the year's fiction that there is little likelihood of its being overshadowed by any of its contemporaries. The verdict may be left to the reader without any fear."

—Current Literature.

"Mr. Duncan has added a new province to the realm of literature. This strong, beautiful love story moves with a distinctive rhythm that is as fresh as it is new. Doctor Luke is one of the season's two or three best books."—American Monthly Review of Reviews.

Dr. Grenfell's Parish:

The Deep Sea Fishermen

Illustrated, 12mo, Cloth, net $1.00.

NORMAN DUNCAN

The author of Dr. Luke has yet to put his facile pen to better purpose than in this photographic portrait of Dr. Grenfell and his deep sea fisherfolk. As The New York Sun says, "this Oxford man is master seaman, missionary, promoter of industry, magistrate, physician, and helpful friend of every fisherman on the Labrador coast," and this sketch is convincing evidence of the eminently practical value of Dr. Grenfell's "mission."

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY have added to their Library of Popular Fiction Arthur W. Marchmont's stirring detective story, "Miser Hoadley's Secret."

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will issue at once Professor George F. Atkinson's "College Text-Book of Botany." This is the fourth book by this well-known Cornell professor which the Messrs. Holt have undertaken. He is probably best known to the general public by his work on "Mushrooms."

THE CENTURY COMPANY have just ready "The Fugitive Blacksmith," by Charles D. Stewart, an unusual and very jolly kind of a tale, in which the incidents are based largely upon the experiences of the author; also, "The Smoke Eaters," by Harvey J. O'Higgins, an epic of the New York Fire Department, an exciting book, and one full of humor.

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. will publish at once a work by Alvan Francis Sanborn, entitled "Paris and the Social Revolution." The book is the result of the author's observations during a number of years of the French revolutionary element as he found it in all classes of Parisian society, from the anarchist laborer to the leading writers and artists of France. The illustrations have been made by Vaughan Trowbridge, an American, long resident in Paris.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just brought out a novel entitled "The Slanderers," by Warwick Deeping, author of "Uther and Igraine," a love story in which the English country in its most poetic aspects is depicted. They will publish on the 16th inst. a collection of stories by Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, entitled "The Bell in the Fog," which represent the author's mature work; an anonymous novel, entitled "John Van Buren, Politician," an intimate picture of New York machine politics; also a book for boys by James Barnes, entitled "The Blockaders."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly A. H. Savage Landor's new book, "Tibet and Nepal," which deals entirely with a second journey taken by the author in these regions, on which a previous journey had already made him the chief authority. His narrative is enlivened by descriptions of the magnificent scenery of the Himalayas and his life and adventures among their glaciers and snow-passes. All the illustrations are by Mr. Landor, most of the fifty in color representing natives at their daily occupations and amusements. They will publish, the last week in the month, Mrs. Ely's new volume, "Another Hardy Garden Book," which tells about the raising of vegetables and the cultivation of fruits for the home garden.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. publish to-day, the 11th inst., the first part of "The Dog Book," by James Watson, a dog breeder in this country and England for thirty-five years, which is timely in view of the opening of the Dog Show at Madison Square Garden on the same date. The work will be complete in ten parts, each adequately illustrated. It is the aim of the publishers to provide a popular history of the dog with practical information as to care and management of house, kennel and exhibition dogs. There will be descriptions of all the different breeds. They will publish on the 15th inst. Percival Landon's book, "The Opening of Tibet." The publishers, impressed with the statement so frequently made by librarians and others that the prices of net books are often too high, have decided to bring the book out at nearly one-third the price charged for the book in England.

Whether he deserves the epithet my readers will judge for themselves, certainly his place in the select list of the immortals is not among the highest. But whether he himself was 'great' or not, under his auspices one of the most momentous changes in the history of the world was accomplished and it is the first conversion of a Roman Emperor to Christianity, with all that such conversion entailed, which makes his period so important and so well worth studying."—Author's Preface.

Under an executive order, issued by the President March 9, 1903, the papers of James Monroe were transferred from the Department of State to the Library of Congress. These papers had been purchased by an act of Congress, approved March 3, 1849. In 1893 the Department of State issued a calendar of them, the arrangement of which was alphabetical, the letters of Monroe being calendared separately from those of his correspondents. This alphabetical arrangement is convenient for determining the letters written by any one man; for historical purposes chronological arrangement is better, hence, this list is prepared to be used in conjunction with the calendar of the Department of State.

The first volume in the new series of French classics for English readers is devoted to Rabelais' "Gargantua and Pantagruel." Great skill and discrimination have been shown in the handling of this famous extravaganza, which is presented in the picturesque 17th century translation of Urquhart and Motteaux. The editions have aimed to preserve intact the romance, with its wit, human interest, and historical satire, and to omit only the long, dry, ethical and philosophical dissertations, which interfere with the appreciation of the story. There is a brief bibliography, and an interesting introduction sketching Rabelais' life and giving an estimate of his work.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS has published a reprint of Justin Winsor's catalogue of the Kohl collection of Maps relating to America, (now in the Library of Congress,) originally published as Bibliographical Contribution No. 19 of the Library of Harvard University. Philip Lee Phillips, chief of the Division of Maps and Charts in the Library of Congress, has increased the usefulness of Winsor's compilation as a catalogue by adding an author list of the maps and a dictionary index of all subjects and authors mentioned. (189 p. 8°, cl.)

THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY, Minneapolis, announces a new monthly magazine, to be entitled The Cumulative Book Review Digest, which will be devoted to the securing of an up-to-date evaluation of current literature. Selections will be made from reviews in the leading English periodicals so as to reflect as accurately as possible what the leading writers have to say about books published in the United States. The general character of the review, whether favorable or unfavorable, and to what degree will be indicated by a system of plus or minus signs. Reference will be made to the full review, and the number of works will be given. The magazine will be cumulated. The subscription price will be $5 a year.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

FEBRUARY 11, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

POST-HOLIDAY BOOKSELLING.

WITH the holiday season behind him the bookseller, after taking account of his stock, may well look ahead and prepare himself for some months of industrious canvassing, because between now and the early fall, unfortunately, customers will not crowd his store without special inducement or assiduous coaxing.

As a preparatory step there should be a thorough house cleaning with a view to rid the stock of shop worn and untidy "remainders," as well as to attract possible bargain hunters. Many of these goods may be sold without positive loss, others may and should be disposed of at any price, even as waste if they should fail to find a sale at "special" prices. Indeed, the actual loss might be made up later by investing the money realized from such bargain sales at a good profit. Besides, special sales attract many shoppers, and the alert and energetic bookseller should be able to make the most of such opportunities by bringing to the attention especially of transient callers his other lines sold by him at a profit. The narrow-minded dealer, of course, will hoard such stock and carry it on his inventory very likely at full prices.

In its stationery and other lines the bookstore at this time of the year has a larger field. Aside from the possibilities of cultivating the demand for requisites at dinners, card parties and other social occasions, the Valentine season now imminent, and the coming Easter season should give the enterprising bookseller opportunities for profitable business. Later on the vacation and outing season will afford the bookseller still larger opportunities for supplying his customers with books, stationery and the impedimenta with which the tourist usually stocks his trunks and satchels before starting on his trips.

Of course, it will mean many anxious hours overtime for the bookseller in which to devise ways and means through which to create this business, and to suggest things which his customers probably want, but which they either do not know the bookseller can furnish or have overlooked in making their purchases when at his store. Eternal vigilance may mean large business and profits.

WITH an "embarrassment of riches" before one in the way of good books to take choice from, it is easily possible to accidentally overlook even some of the best. This is prefatory to an explanation and apology we have to make for the omission of several leading books in our summary of "the books of 1904" in our number of January 28. In our enumeration of the works of reference of the past year, we unwittingly neglected mention of Miss Edith Granger's "Index to Poetry and Recitation," published by A. C. McClurg & Co., a work showing scholarship and great industry in getting at the exhaustive material and also a most skilful scheme of editing by which the vast material is kept within practical limits and made available for instant reference. Randall Parrish's two novels, "My Lady of the North" and "When Wilderness is King," should have found a place among the "best sellers," as they were in constant demand through the year. Also to be included among the inexcusable omissions is Rolfe's "Life of Shakespeare," endorsed by the critics as one of the best biographies published of the great poet and dramatist.

ENGLISH VIEWS ON THE AMERICAN COPYRIGHT LAW.

W. MORRIS COLLES contributes the following communication on American copyright reform to the London Academy of January 14:

Douglas Sladen has initiated a timely discussion upon the reform of American copyright in the columns of The Standard. The support he has received from such well-known people as Lord Avebury, Hall Caine, Sir A. Conan Doyle, Miss Beatrice Harraden, Rider Haggard, F. Anstey Guthrie, Andrew Lang, John Murray, Sir Lewis Morris, Rowland Prothero and many others is enough to prove the lively interest which the question excites in its present somewhat peculiar phase. It may be frankly stated that there is nothing very alarming about the projected amendment of the American law, giving, as it will, if and when it becomes law, writers in a foreign tongue a year's grace in which to have their works translated into English and to protect their copyright. The truth is that the American Copyright Act—which, with all its imperfections, has conferred very solid benefits upon a large number of British authors—has remained a dead letter so far as foreign writers are concerned. The obligation to print and publish simultaneously with the country of origin has proved prohibitive in an immense number of cases, while in others it has only been discharged at the cost of enormous delay and practical inconvenience. The suggested amendment, which came over in draft form in January, 1904, will be nothing but a tardy act of justice if, which seems unfortunately to be extremely doubtful, it becomes law. The Platt bill of 1902, upon which it is founded, was shelved.

As regards English writers it seems wise to consider, before we advocate retaliation, whether the half loaf they now possess is not better than no bread at all. It is now perfectly possible to obtain a good American copyright, provided the work in question is simultaneously published with the English edition from type set within the United States. Now, simultaneity is not an American invention. It is a cardinal principle of English law that prior publication outside of the countries within the Berne Convention is fatal to the acquisition of a sound English copyright. If, therefore, we wish to attack the principle of simultaneity, we must first amend our own law and give to America the same close time we demand for ourselves. It would enormously strengthen our case if we came with open hands and said: "We will give you a month, or six months, or twelve months, if you will reciprocate this civility." This would be far better than to attempt to bring about a change by "calling names."

The manufacturing clause is, no doubt, annoying, but it arises out of tariff policy, and not merely from the "cussedness" of the Typographical Union. During a visit to the United States, when I saw several of the many earnest and high-minded American copyright reformers, who set an example we should do well to emulate, nothing impressed me so much as the utter hopelessness of attacking a principle which would raise far wider issues than are apparent on the surface. I do not believe that any American authors or publishers would object to the immediate repeal of the clause, but I am confident that no movement for its rescission is likely to receive much support either in the House of Representatives or the Senate. The Dayton bill of 1901, which rescinded it, met with a short shrift. Considered as a part of the domestic law of the United States, is it prima facie an act of iniquity to grant American copyright only upon condition of paying a printer's bill by way of entrance fee? And can we fairly call a people who impose the condition "thieves?" There is, however, a hardship which presses severely upon the large class of writers to whom American copyright is prohibitive. An import duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem is charged on all English-printed books. Douglas Sladen has made a legitimate point in advocating retaliatory duties, and this impost might be usefully borne in mind if and when the question of a duty on foreign manufactured goods comes within the range of practical politics. If it be impracticable to establish an English manufacturing clause it would be a perfectly fair rejoinder to the American tariff to impose analogous duties. This would to some extent, moreover, obviate the danger of the manufacture of works of international importance passing into American hands, while it would further lead to the much more general importation of "plates" instead of "sheets," and so throw a considerable amount of machining into the English market, to the advantage of English printers, paper makers and even bookbinders. The Presidential proclamation, under which our admission to the benefits of American copyright rests, is based upon the principle of reciprocity. It may be questioned whether a reactionary policy is likely to command wide support outside of the literary profession. Whether the competition of books inter se is so real a grievance as to be demonstrably tangible is an open question. But the spirit with which Parliament has always regarded literary property is wholly antagonistic to any protection of the profession at the expense of the public. Agitation is much more likely to be productive of definite result if we begin at home and press the reform of domestic copyright upon Parliament so that we may have something more satisfactory to offer "strangers within our gates." It will be time enough then to talk of revising our international bargains.

EDWARD MARSTON in commenting in the London Publishers' Circular on the fifty replies received by the Standard, sums up as follows:

"The writers above quoted who have replied to the Standard's invitation may be taken as fairly representative of the whole body of authors and others interested in literature in this country. It will be seen that there is perfect unanimity among them as to the wrong and injustice of the Act of March 1891; but they are far from unanimous as to the steps to be taken to set themselves right. Roughly, it may be said of these fifty writers that eighteen are in favor of Retaliation; eight are against it; two are for imposing an equal duty on the importation of American books; seventeen are for one year's grace; five are neutral as to methods of proceeding. Some of the above who are in favor of Retaliation are against the one year's grace, and many advocating the latter object to the former.

"Many of these authors seem hardly to realize the difficulties there are in the way of carrying out their various schemes. I will endeavor to point out what I think are some of them. There was a time, not so very long ago, when certain superfine philosophers even in this country held that copyright anywhere was naught—an evanescent thing—and that a man's thoughts when uttered by him were free as air and the common property of mankind. Doubtless this view of the value of literary property was seized upon and elaborated by the Americans, and unquestionably it added weight to the side of the printers when they carried the last copyright amendment; hence it was that copyright was so begrudgingly, so limply bestowed as to be of no value at all except to a select few.

"That law has now been in operation about fourteen years. It is just possible that, on the whole, the number of English books set up and printed by American printers was somewhat less than when they roamed indiscriminately over the whole field of English literature. On the other hand, if by the abolition of this type-setting clause copyrights were thrown open to all, it would undoubtedly still be found convenient to very many authors to have their type set there, whilst others would send out stereotype plates, and the working, paper and binding would be supplied by Americans, and assuredly the total of business arising would be largely increased for the American manufacturer.

"Some English authors seem to think that if the detested clause were removed they could go into America with perfect ease and claim their copyright at any time! They forget that they must still pass through certain formalities of entry at Washington, and that copyright must be at least simultaneous in both countries, &c., just as is necessary in all other countries.

"RETALIATION, what does it mean?

"It means a retrograde movement on the part of the British nation which, if successful, would be a mere triumph of revenge, and would be more injurious to ourselves than to our opponents; whilst in all probability it would lead to the abrogation of that small act of mercy contained in section 13 of the Act of March 3, 1891.

"A YEAR'S GRACE.—What does this mean? I presume it means that every English author who aspires to have his work copyrighted in America must first enter the title at Washington, according to Act of Congress, and make the usual deposit of two copies before publication which may be deferred for a year, said two copies being type-set in America. Meanwhile, the book will have been published in England, will have free circulation in America, and, if successful there, an American publisher may be found to set the type and so make the copyright perfect. If not, the author would have to take the risk himself. In short, a year's grace may possibly be the means of adding just few new members to the elect, but all the others would still remain out in the cold! In truth, the scheme bristles with difficulties, and at best promises such small results that I fear it would not be workable. It could only be regarded as a small step in the right direction.

"What, then, is the true remedy for this crying evil? It is quite clear that no possible good can be done by retaliation and mighty little by getting a year's grace. The great point is that English authors should bring all their forces to bear on the abolition of this type-setting clause, which would clear the ground in every direction—not by threats of retaliation, not by passing a special Act of Parliament (to bear on the American people only) to compel type-setting in England of works by American authors, and by introducing a Customs Import Duty to apply to Americans only—but by appealing to the good feeling, the right judgment, the sense of justice, one might almost say the common-sense of the American people. It will surely be quite time enough to think of any retaliatory measures when such an appeal fails.

"If the Congress agrees to the appointment of a Commission to sit on this copyright question, as is now proposed by the Register of Copyrights at Washington, surely it will afford an excellent opportunity for the Society of Authors to put themselves in communication with that Commission."

THE AFFAIRS OF MERRILL & BAKER.

MERRILL & BAKER, who were petitioned into bankruptcy on December 28, have not yet filed their schedules, but a list of creditors has been prepared by George W. H. Ritchie, a creditor, and approved by L. K. Merrill, treasurer of the corporation, which includes the names of 235 creditors whose claims aggregate $487,000. Among these the Grolier Society figures as a creditor for $9351.

Owing to differences among the creditors the referee in bankruptcy, William H. Wills, decided on the 8th inst. to postpone the election of a trustee until after the officers of the corporation had been examined. The following were nominated: W. Benton Crisp, lawyer, of No. 40 Wall Street; D. Cady Herrick, R. R. Appleton, president of the Fourteenth Street Bank, and Oscar W. Brady, of McClure, Phillips & Co., publishers. Opposition developed to Mr. Crisp, who it was stated had a majority in number and amount of claims filed, on the ground that he was a director of the bankrupt corporation and its attorney.

L. K. Merrill, the treasurer, was examined on the 8th inst. by Arthur S. Luria, representing some of the creditors. It was shown that from a New Jersey corporation, organized in August, 1893, with a capital stock of $15,000, the business developed into a New York corporation with a capital stock of $1,250,000. Of the preferred stock $190,000 was sold for cash, some common stock being thrown in as a bonus, $1500 was used to pay borrowed money, and $43,000 was issued to the Hudson Publishing Company to repay a loan.

Merrill & Baker are said to own the capital stock of seven sub-companies, which were organized to operate branches of its business. They are the Hudson Publishing Company, capital stock $100,000; International Library Company, capital stock $100,000; and Buckner Book Concern, capital stock $5000. All these are New York City concerns. Then there are the H. Clay Russell Company, of Pittsburg, capital stock, $5000; T. J. Caie Company, of Chicago, capital stock issued, $17,000, of which Merrill & Baker own one-half, and Merrill & Baker, a Maine corporation, capital stock $400,000, to which the New York corporation transferred certain assets to avoid taxation, and to which the New York corporation sold a list of names for $180,000, which the Maine corporation promised to pay.

The stocks of all these subcompanies were carried as an asset on the books of Merrill & Baker, the New York corporation. The question was raised that Merrill & Baker had capitalized the right to sell their own books.

Judge Holt, of the United States District Court, has granted a motion staying a suit brought in the Supreme Court in April last, which is about ready for trial, by William T. Blodgett, as executor of his mother, Mrs. Abby B. Blodgett, to set aside a contract made by her with Merrill & Baker and to set aside notes for $78,000 given under the contract, on the ground that the contract was made at a time when she was of unsound mind. The contract was for an illuminated set of Shakespeare of thirty-nine volumes at $2000 a volume, the edition being limited to seven copies. She gave notes for $78,000 in payment, payable $6000 semi-annually from September 1, 1904, to September 1, 1910. She was adjudged incompetent on April 21, 1904, in proceedings in the Supreme Court.

FENNO OFFERS TO TAKE OVER THE BUSINESS.

At a meeting of the creditors of R. F. Fenno & Company, held January 19, there were present representatives of the following firms: Frederick A. Stokes Company, D. S. Brassil, Ben Franklin Press, Percy Jackson, Powers & Stein, John Dickenson & Co., F. A. Flinn, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., North River Bindery, and Publishers' Printing Co.

The committee of creditors reported to the meeting that while their management of the business during the past twenty months has resulted in profits amounting to about $5000, these profits were not in the form of cash, but were invested in new plant, and the company would be unable to meet the notes maturing February 18. The committee further reported that, in their opinion, it would be unwise to attempt to continue the management of the business as has been done for the past twenty months; that it was doubtful whether this would result in the eventual payment of all the notes, and that it would certainly take two or three years to pay off the notes, even assuming that the business would be successful. The committee, therefore, was unwilling to give further time to the business, gratuitously, as they had done in the past.

The committee also stated it to be their opinion that the affairs of the company should be wound up under the power conferred on them by the composition agreement, and that they had received an offer from Mr. R. F. Fenno to pay 33 per cent. in cash upon all claims in consideration of the transfer of the assets of the company to him. The committee further stated that, in their opinion, it was doubtful whether by winding up the business and a forced sale of its assets, they could realize enough to pay as much as was offered by Mr. Fenno.

The committee recommends the accepting of this offer by all of the creditors.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS. ANNUAL DINNER OF THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

ABOUT 140 booksellers and their guests were present at the tenth annual dinner of the Booksellers' League, held at the rooms of the Aldine Association on the evening of February 8. After the dinner, President Schulte spoke of the growth of the organization in its ten years of existence to an active membership of nearly 200, and expressed the hope that the League might at no distant date occupy club rooms of its own. A gold button was awarded to J. B. Pratt for having brought five new members into the League. Letters were read from Mark Twain, Thomas Dixon, Jr., Wm. E. Long and Mayor McClellan, who were unable to be present.

The first speaker of the evening was Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Evening Journal, who spoke in part as follows: "The age we live in is an age of distribution. In the past men have been active in producing, but the important thing now is distribution, and the agents of distribution are the labor unions. In meeting you I meet the men engaged in the distribution of food to the human mind. The world has got to a point where a man who has risen at all above the lowest level desires to do some good to others. Now, if every man here would make up his mind to pick out some solid book—I don't mean a heavy book, but a book that will make people more sensible or happier—and try to sell it, you could do a great deal of good. For if you put a book before people in the right way they will buy it." Here Mr. Brisbane told how his own editorial commendation of certain serious books, including Spencer's "Facts and Comments," had increased their sale even beyond the publisher's expectations. "If all booksellers would do their best to prove such books salable," said he, "they would have an enormous influence on publishers and the kind of books produced."

Cass Richardson was next called upon, and gave a witty account of his trip to the meeting of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Association of Pittsburgh.

Dillon Wallace, author of "The Lure of the Labrador Wild," then narrated the story of his thrilling adventures of exploration in the interior of Labrador in company with Leonidas Hubbard, who was sent out by Outing in 1902 and died on the return trip from exhaustion. The story was illustrated with stereopticon views taken on the trip.

J. R. Buchanan, author of "The Story of a Labor Agitator," made a stirring appeal to the members of the trade to "sell and spread books which give the labor question a show." "It is but a short time," said he, "since the labor question began to find expression in books; but we are now on the threshold of an era which will give the world many instructive books on the question of labor. If you want to serve humanity, first acquaint yourself with what the American labor movement means, first unlearn a great many errors that have undoubtedly taken root in your minds, and then, as you take opportunity to distribute the books on the labor question you will find you have a call to do good to every household in the land. There is no reason why the wage-workers in the book trade should not co-operate with the wage-workers in other trades."

The Rev. Thomas B. Gregory, the last speaker, urged booksellers to do all they could to promote the distribution of such literature as will make men and women realize their greatness.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the speakers of the evening and the meeting was then adjourned.

NEW YORK BOOKBINDERS DINE.

THE Employing Bookbinders' Association of New York City gave its Eighth annual dinner on the evening of February 4, at the Hotel Savoy. About 150 members and their guests were seated in the ornate dining room of the hotel at about eight o'clock, to discuss the excellent dinner of ten courses. The literary feast was opened by Raymond E. Baylis, the president, who in a felicitous speech of welcome introduced J. Stearns Cushing of the Norwood Press. Mr. Cushing spoke of "bookbuilding," and gave some plain talk on the ideal as opposed to the bizarre and faddish in bookmaking. Don C. Seitz of the New York World told some amusing experiences in having pamphlets bound; the Rev. W. Warren Giles of Summit, N. J., struggled with the subject of Edition de luxe; George J. Bryan, of the University Society, spoke of "Subscription book" selling; and J. Clyde Oswald spoke entertainingly on the progress of printing. Other speakers were Cyrus Townsend Brady, Louis Wiley of the New York Times, and Charles M. Smith, the secretary of the Association, who though they were down on the program to speak on "Edition binding," "half-calf" and "skivers," respectively, wandered cheerfully away from their texts to the amusement and edification of their hearers. W. B. Conkey, of Hammond, Ind., was present and when called upon to address the gathering spoke enthusiastically of the work of the bookbinder and his importance in preserving to future ages the printed work of to-day. Robert Rutter, the father of the organization, who entered his 78th year on the 6th inst., and has been actively engaged in the bookbinding business since 1842, made a brief speech congratulating the officers on their very efficient work in keeping the association up to the high-water mark of usefulness.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE DINNER.

THE annual dinner of the Stationers' Board of Trade, given at the Waldorf-Astoria on the evening of the 7th inst., was attended by about 150 members and their guests, Henry C. Bainbridge presiding. The speakers of the evening were the Rev. Roelif H. Brooks, of Brooklyn; John B. Fay, of A. C. McClurg & Co., the president of the Chicago Stationers' Association; O. F. Nichols, chief engineer of the Department of Bridges of New York City; the Hon. John S. Wise, Abner K. Pratt, president of the Boston Stationers' Association, and W. N. Caldwell, president of the American Writing Paper Company. John C. Dempsey entertained the company with song and stories and George J. Patterson gave a number of banjo solos.

Mr. Bainbridge in his introductory remarks informed the company that about fifty retail stationers of New York City would have a meeting at the St. Denis Hotel on March 1, to discuss the organization of a society similar to those in other cities to co-operate with the National Association of Stationers. A dinner will be served at $2 the plate, and all interested are cordially invited to be present. The meeting will be strictly informal as to dress—swallow tails or claw-hammers being barred.

COMMUNICATIONS.

CRITICISM OF MARK TWAIN'S VIEW OF THE COPYRIGHT LAW.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your leading article in issue of January 21, quoting from Mark Twain's remarks on the forty-two-year limit of copyright he says the forty-two-year limit accomplishes nothing useful whatever, but instead "takes the bread out of the mouths of ten authors per year—usually the ten poorest and most distinguished literary servants of the nation." "It does seem a small business for a big nation," Mr. Clemens argues. "It is the assassination of the fittest. When a soldier retires from the wars," he continues, "the government spends $150,000,000 [sic] a year upon him and his, and the pension is continued to his widow and orphans. But when it retires a distinguished author's book at the end of forty-two years it takes the book's subsequent profits away from the widow and orphans and gives them—to whom? Not to the public, but to the publishers. The publisher goes on publishing, and he takes all the profit, both the author's and his own. It is a crime—a crime perpetrated by a great country upon ten poor devils a year."

It is a matter of surprise that a man who has been both author and publisher should make a statement that a publisher profits by the sale of non-copyright books to the exclusion of the public. As a publisher it would be interesting to have Mr. Clemens give a list of such books as have not been reduced in price at once when a copyright has expired, if not by the former publisher, by one who reprints the book. I cannot recall such an instance—not one. Perhaps he can and I would be pleased to have its title, as would many others.

Volubility is not necessarily a sure sign of accuracy. G. W. OGILVIE.

DEFINITION OF "NET" BOOKS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In Section 1 of the agreement of the American Publishers' Association regarding net prices is the following statement: Provided, "That the Members of the American Publishers' Association agree that all copyrighted books first issued by them after May 1, 1901, shall be published at net prices which it is recommended shall be reduced from the prices at which similar books have been issued heretofore: Provided however that there shall be exempt from this agreement all school books, books published by subscription and not through the trade, such other books as are not sold through the trade; also at the desire of the publisher, any new editions, any work of fiction or any juvenile."

I shall feel it a favor if you can take the time to define some of the terms of this statement.

What are meant by school books? Does this include only the material published by Ginn, the American Book Co., Hinds, etc., as regular school text-books? Or are advanced technical works included, such as the engineering and scientific publications of Spon and Van Nostrand?

In THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY it is stated that books starred once are not subject to American Publishers' Association rules. There is a bewildering variety of these. Can they all be referred to some one of the classes excepted in the above statement? Or are some of them so marked because their publishers are not members of the Association?

Here are some examples, taken from THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY cumulation of Oct. 8, 1904:

Schaeffer, Atlas of operative gynecology. Is this considered a text book, or was it published outside of the American Publishers' Association rules merely because its publisher so chose?

Hanbury, Sport in the northland of Canada. Are importations not covered by the rules?

Doubtless no one outside of the trade can expect to understand all the distinctions involved, and I have no desire to involve you in a course of lectures on the subject. My chief desire is to have sufficient information to check our agent in his discounts. He shows among other things a strong inclination to call every possible work a text-book and give it accordingly a less discount.

H. L. GOODRICH,

Head of Accession Dept.

STATE LIBRARY, N. Y., Jan. 26, 1905.

[School-books, pure and simple, are not subject to protection under the rules of the American Publishers' Association, and school-book publishers, such as the American Book Company, Ginn & Co., Hinds & Noble, and others, are therefore not included in its membership. Copyrighted advanced text-books, if used in colleges, universities, or technical schools, such as engineering or scientific, when published by a member of the American Publishers' Association are listed as protected net books, and are marked with two stars (). If brought out by a publisher not a member of the American Publishers' Association, at a net price, such net price is marked with one star (*) only.

Non-copyright books or books imported in small editions, even when brought out with the imprint of a member of the American Publishers' Association at a net price, are usually listed with one star (*), indicating that they are not brought out as protected books under the rules of the Association.

As stated in the heading of our Weekly Record, books with one star (*) are net, but not published under the rules of the A. P. A., whether the publisher is a member of the Association or not. Books with two stars () are books published under the rules of the A. P. A., and are protected for one year.

The titles referred to, Schaeffer's "Atlas of Operative Gynecology," is published net by W. B. Saunders & Co., who are not members of the A. P. A.; Hanbury's "Sport in Northland," is an imported book, published by the Macmillan Company as agent in this country, and is marked with one star (*) because not published under the rules of the A. P. A.

In short, our lists in all cases indicate whether a book is protected for one year, under the rules of the A. P. A., when two stars () are prefixed to price, and the ordinary net books when one star () is prefixed to price. Books indicated with one star () are net with from 5 to 20 per cent. discount or more.—Ed. P. W.]

JAMES POTT.

JAMES POTT, the senior member of the publishing firm of James Pott & Co., died suddenly on February 8 at the residence of his sister, at 62 West Forty-eighth Street, New York.

Mr. Pott was born in New York City on May 15, 1829, of an old New York family. His father was Gideon Pott, a well-known merchant in his day. At the age of fourteen Mr. Pott became an employee in the commission house of Stone, Swan & Co., afterward Mitchell & Pott, which firm went out of business just before the war between the States broke out.

In 1860 Mr. Pott was made agent of the New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society, and with Mr. Amery formed the bookselling firm of Pott & Amery, opening up a store on Fourth Avenue in the then newly-built Cooper Institute. Pott & Amery were at various times the agents for Macmillan & Co., the Cambridge University Press and other English publishers, but the most important addition to the firm's business was the agency of the London Bible Warehouse, established in 1848 in New York, on Platt Street, by Eyre & Spottiswoode. In 1864 Pott & Amery assumed the agency of the London Bible Warehouse which, since it was established on Platt Street, had followed the uptown movement, settling first on Nassau Street, then at 626 Broadway, and, finally, at Cooper Institute. In 1871 the firm of Pott & Amery was dissolved and Edwin and James B. Young, former grocers and distillers, joined Mr. Pott, and formed the firm of Pott, Young & Co. The firm, in addition to running a well-equipped and ably-directed retail bookstore, making a specialty of church books, also began the publishing of religious and miscellaneous books of a high grade.

In December, 1880, Mr. Pott retired from the firm of Pott, Young & Co., and early in 1881 began a publishing and bookselling business under his own name at 12 Astor Place. The old business was continued at the old store in Cooper Institute by Edwin and James Young and Edward R. Young, a son of Edwin Young, under the firm name of E. & J. B. Young & Co. In 1884 Mr. Pott's Son, James Pott, Jr., was admitted to partnership, and the firm name then became James Pott & Co. In the early part of 1893 the firm removed to 114 Fifth Avenue, and in March, 1896, to their present location in the Jefferson Building at 119 and 121 West Twenty-third Street. When they removed to Twenty-third Street the firm gave up their retail department, which was then taken over by Edwin Gorham, who had been on Mr. Pott's staff since 1868, and who for many years was practically in full charge of the retail department.

Mr. Pott was extremely reserved and reticent. He was intensely interested in philanthropic work, and ever active in forwarding the work of a number of institutions devoted to ameliorating the condition of the needy and spreading the work of the church. He was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church and for forty years the treasurer of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, treasurer of the New York Archdeaconry, and also treasurer of the New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society. He retained an active interest in all his affiliations until declining health obliged him to restrict some of his work.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have in press a book on temperance, by Bishop Henry C. Potter, which, we learn, sets forth views which he has held and expressed for several years past, and gives forcible reasons for his present attitude on the saloon question.

GINN & Co. have just brought out in their Wood Folks Series, a new book by William J. Long, entitled "A Little Brother to the Bear," which has the strong personal quality that is distinctive of Dr. Long's writings, and is filled with the atmosphere of the big woods.

SUBSCRIBERS to the work on "The Printed English Bible, 1525-1769," which the late Mr. Lovett had in hand, have been informed that it will not now be proceeded with. It is a matter of regret that no expert can be found to continue the work of the late secretary of the Religious Tract Society.

MR. S. PAUL of Hutchinson & Co., London, is on his way to a visit to this country. He will pass through Canada and return by way of Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston. MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in preparation a volume entitled "The Religion of Duty," by Felix Adler, head of the Ethical Culture Society and author of "Life and Destiny." The volume is said to express in more extended form than did "Life and Destiny" the ideals and purposes of the Ethical religion as preached by Dr. Adler.

WILLIAM ABBATT of New York City announces a new, revised, and fully illustrated edition of the late Charles H. Winfield's account of the historic attack by General Wayne on the block house held by a force of Tories, near Bull's Ferry, in 1780. Among the illustrations will be portraits of Wayne, Irvine, Lord Stirling, and others, autograph letters in facsimile, and one or two documents.

MORANG & Co., Limited, of Toronto, will publish this month Volume VII. in The Makers of Canada series. It is a life of "Samuel de Champlain," by Narcisse E. Dionne. phleteer who flourished in the first quarter of the seventeenth century. The reprint will be made from the copy, believed to be unique, now in the Harvard College Library, with an introductory note by Alfred Clayborn Potter, assistant librarian. THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have in preparation a work on Revelation, by Dr. Ford C. Ottman, entitled "The Unfolding of the Ages," which while not strictly a commentary nevertheless interprets sanely this difficult book of the Bible. They have also under way "Memoirs of a Great Detective, incidents in the life of John Wilson Murray," edited by Victor Speer. Murray, who was known as "Old-Never-Let-Go-Murray," was chief of the Ontario detective service, and one of the cleverest and best-known detectives of this continent, and perhaps of the world. During thirty years he solved hundreds of murder mysteries, forgeries, robberies, and uncovered some of the most notable counterfeiting gangs of the world, tracking criminals over two continents and fighting desperate battles when defeat meant death. These memoirs comprise a series of detective tales which are literally true and yet reveal stratagems as clever as those of Doyle and Gaboriau.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are publishing "A Guide for the Perplexed," by Moses Maimonides, the noted Jewish theologian. The translation from the Arabic has been done by M. Friedländer, Ph.D., who also furnishes an account of the life of the author. Amongst his co-religionists Maimonides noticed the antagonism between faith and philosophy. In his guide he attempts to reconcile for them faith and reason. In the original Arabic the book has been a classic for many years. The present edition is the only form in which it is now accessible in English. They are also bringing out the Miniature Reference Library, a series of popular reference books of pocket size, (2 x 2¾ inches,) intended to answer every-day questions conveniently and quickly. Now ready are "Who Wrote That?" "Dictionary of Abbreviations," and "Mottoes and Badges." Several more are announced, including "Who Said That?" "Who Did That?" "5000 Words Frequently Misspelt," and a "Dictionary Appendix."

ERASTUS DARROW of Rochester, N. Y., the oldest bookseller in Western New York, continuously in business for fifty-seven years, celebrated his eighty-second birthday on January 29, having been born in Plymouth, Litchfield County, Conn., in 1823. After attending school in Plymouth and at New Haven, he entered, in March, 1841, A. H. Maltby's College Bookstore at New Haven. In 1844 Mr. Darrow went to Rochester, N. Y., and entered the employ of Clarendon Morse. In 1846 he opened a bookstore himself in the Minerva Block, on the spot where the Merchants' Bank now stands, on Main Street East. With him were associated at different times James Henry Gregory, his brother, Wallace Darrow, and Henry Kempshall. Mr. Darrow is hale and hearty for a man of his advanced years and still looks after the interests of his business without assistance. He lives with his wife at 90 Kenilworth Terrace and has two children, a son and a daughter, also residing in Rochester. We offer him on behalf of the trade hearty congratulations.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation for the spring a new book by Andrew Carnegie, "The Life of James Watt," which it is said will contain much new information; "The Walking Delegate," a labor union novel, by Leroy Scott, who makes his leading figure a man of the Sam Parks type, but more intelligent and more subtle; "Concerning Belinda," by Eleanor Hoyt; "The Indifference of Juliet," by Grace S. Richmond; "Sons o' Men," by G. B. Lancaster; a new edition of "The Story of Ab," by Stanley Waterloo; a life of Chopin, by G. C. Ashton Johnson; "How to Keep Bees," by Anna S. Comstock; "The Mortgage on the Brain," by Vincent Harper; "Follow Through," by Frederick Upham Adams; "How to Make a Vegetable Garden," by Edith Fullerton; and "Fairy Tales Every Child Should Know," edited by Hamilton W. Mabie. They have acquired the stock and publication rights of Agnes C. Laut's novel, "Lords of the North." By many people this is considered the best work of an author who has vigorously interpreted Canadian Northwest life.

L. C. PAGE & Co. announce a new novel by Miss Alice MacGowan and Mrs. Grace MacGowan Cooke, entitled "Return," dealing with life in the frontier settlements in the Georgia Colony, the heroine of which, Diana Chatres, was the belle of the Colonial city of Charleston, S. C., in the early 17th century, and the hero a young Virginian of the historic family of Marshall; "Slaves of Success," by Elliott Flower, author of "The Spoilsman," etc., a story of state and national politics that recently appeared in condensed form in Collier's; "Silver Bells," by Colonel Andrew C. P. Haggard, the story of an educated Indian girl who "harks back" to the ways of the savage in the wilderness; "A Captain of Men," by E. Anson More, a tale of Tyre and those merchant princes whose discovery of the value of tin brought great riches into the country and afforded adventures without number to those daring seekers for the mines; "The Fair Land Tyrol," by W. D. MacCrackan, a useful book for the visitor to Switzerland and the Dolomites; also, "Stories of Little Fishes," by Lenore E. Mulets, the sixth volume in Phyllis's Field Friends Series.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish at once "The Harvest of the Sea," a tale of both sides of the Atlantic, by Wilfred T. Grenfell, M.D., who is known as the most heroic figure on the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts, up and down which he cruises in his small hospital ship, attending the fishermen of the North region. His book tells in fiction form the experiences, adventures and dangers of a North Sea fisherman, which are not often thought of as included in the price of fish. The narrative is of the nature that would appeal to boys as well as maturer minds, and has the added value of being true as it is drawn from this life. William Eleroy Curtis, the traveller and newspaper correspondent, has returned from his tour around the world, and is once more at his home in Washington. The letters that he wrote daily and which appeared in one or two leading papers East and West, he has now collected and edited for appearance in boog form. Revells report that the correspondence will make two volumes, one entitled "Egypt, Burma and British Malaysia," and the other "Modern India." The volumes are now in process of making.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready Miss Dougall's new novel, "The Summit House Mystery," which is published in England under the title of "The Earthly Purgatory." The action of the story takes place in America. They will publish this month limited editions of the complete works of Thomas Carlyle in 18 volumes, and the complete works of W. H. Prescott in 12 volumes. Both works will be bound in cloth and half leather and will be sold by subscription. They will publish in March a work entitled "Modern Masters of Pulpit Discourse," by Professor William Cleaver Wilkinson, of the University of Chicago, trenchant, yet sympathetic, appreciations and criticisms of many of the greatest preachers in America and England, with vivid descriptions of the pulpit methods and personal qualities of such men as Beecher, Liddon and Phillips Brooks; "Superstition in Medicine," by Dr. Julius L. Salinger, translated from the German by Dr. Hugo Magnus, which gives a history of the erroneous ideas and fanciful beliefs with regard to sickness and its cure, or "healing," that have prevailed in the world from the days of ancient Rome to the present time, when so many widely different theories of healing are exploited; "The Traveler's Handbook," by Miss Josephine Tozier, a practical book for travellers in the eastern hemisphere; also, a new novel by Frances Aymar Mathews, author of "When Peggy Comes to Town," etc., to be entitled "The Coming of the King," an amusing and romantic story of Americans in France.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have in active preparation for early publication the following books: "Mirabeau and the French Revolution," by Hon. Charles F. WILBERFORCE EAMES, of the Lenox Library, will sell his collection of rare books and manuscripts through the Anderson Auction Company in the spring. Mr. Eames's collection of bibliography is probably as comprehensive and valuable as any in the hands of a private collector, as is also his collection of American incunabula. Among his manuscripts are a number of curious papyri, manuscripts of the Koran, the Bhagavad-Gita, palm-leaf manuscripts of the Pali text, etc.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five non-parcell lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a non-parcell line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a non-parcell line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

To Librarians and Others Interested in Good Books:

We have been much impressed with the statement so frequently made by librarians and others that the prices of net books are often too high.

We have decided to make the experiment of publishing the finest book of travel of the year, at as low a net price as we can, even anticipating a large sale. We refer to "The Opening of Tibet," (by Perceval Landon, the correspondent of The London Times, who accompanied the expedition to Lhasa), which has an introduction by Colonel Younghusband, the leader of the expedition, and is the authoritative book on this subject.

The work will contain all the matter included in the English Edition, which sells for two guineas. It will be a royal octavo of nearly 500 pages, with forty-eight full-page doubletone plates and a frontispiece in color. The price will be $3.80 net.

The author, in sending the proofs, marked scores of pages which he said might be omitted in the American edition to reduce its price. We are convinced that this matter could not be cut without injuring the work, so the full book has been retained and the price kept to the sum originally planned.

In this connection it is interesting to know how rapidly the book had to be made. The complete copy was given to DeVinne, who put the work in type on Saturday afternoon, February 4th. The paper was made in a single day, and the complete volume will be published February 18th.

We ask that you will examine it.

"The Gentleman from Indiana in Politics"

That is how you may describe this new book of Mr. Tarkington's. Its author has drawn extensively upon his experiences and observations in the legislature of his native State, with the result that he has given such a gallery of political portraits, and such an account of how things are worked in the great arena, as has never before been achieved in American literature.

"Mr. Tarkington has done for the short story what Mr. Ade has done for the stage, and 'In the Arena' should have a success similar to that of 'The County Chairman.'" N. Y. Globe.

The Fire of Spring

By MARGARET POTTER. 12mo, ornamental cloth, $1.50.

THIS book was written as a study of a condition of modern American life. Its theme, perhaps the oldest in fiction, has become typical in America only within the last decade. But the questions of just how far a man may let business absorb him without danger to his domestic life—of how long a young, romantic, inexperienced girl will bear loneliness in her married life, are being asked by many people in this country to-day. Nevertheless the matter of the story should not be magnified in importance. It concerns what, in the happy after-life of the "Van Studdiford's," was remembered only a dark and tragic episode.

Margaret Potter

An Act in a Backwater

By E. F. BENSON, author of "Dodo" and "The Challoners."
 12mo, ornamental cloth, $1.50.

THE heroine is discovered by the hero in the little country town of Wroxton. She is engaged at the time of the discovery in preventing a puppy-dog fresh from his bath from shaking his curly coat on her newest frock. Her only weapon of defence is a silk parasol. The hero is without any weapon of defence at all, so he promptly falls in love with the laughing girl, and hastens home to paint a picture of her just as he found her with the puppy. The latter continues to fall into every available body of water throughout the book. The hero eventually wins the original of his painting.

An Irishman named Finerty, with a rich brogue is the character who does the most speaking in this story of the Mississippi. Finerty is the keeper of the railroad sand house, where this racy story is racyly told; though only a railroad hand, he is overflowing with a quaint and comfortable philosophy, which makes all he says well worth reading. Whether in confiding in his wife, or entertaining tramps, or hob-nobbing with "the fugitive blacksmith," he is most decidedly entertaining.

Tells of the good old days when Salem was the leading port in New England and her trading vessels were known on every sea. The Salem merchants were unusual men, and on their long voyages for silks and spices they encountered strange adventures. He has collected many portraits of the old shipmasters, and pictures of the vessels in which they sailed, and of the buildings at home where they stored their goods and wealth.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

FEBRUARY 18, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE ASPECTS OF SUITS AGAINST MACY'S.

THE cases finally submitted to Judge Ray of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, last month, both involved the general principle whether the owner of a copyright has the same control as the owner of a patent over the sale of the article for which the copyright and patent laws grant a monopoly. The case of the Bobbs-Merrill Company vs. R. H. Macy & Co. involved the right of the complainant as owner of the copyright of "The Castaway," copyrighted May 18, 1904, on each copy of which was printed notice that "the price of this book at retail is one dollar, no dealer is licensed to sell it at a less price, and a sale at less price will be treated as an infringement of the copyright," to prevent the defendant from selling the book at a less price than one dollar. The case of Charles Scribner's Sons vs. R. H. Macy & Co. involved the right of the complainant in the case of a number of books published at a net price, under the rules of the American Publishers' Association, to prevent the defendant from selling these books at a price below the stated net price.

In "The Castaway" case, examinations were had before J. A. Shields as examiner of Adolph Mackel of Ammon & Mackel as a representative bookseller, of Irving Putnam of G. P. Putnam's Sons, as a representative publisher, jobber, and bookseller, and of John J. Curtis, secretary of the Bobbs-Merrill Company and manager of its publication department, all of whom testified to the effect that the underselling of books tended to lower the value of a copyright, which Mr. Curtis estimated in the case of "The Castaway" to have been of a value of about $50,000 at the time of the commencement of this suit. Mr. Mackel and Mr. Putnam stated that the effect of underselling, as by the department stores, was to discourage the sale of the book by "legitimate" booksellers, who would be less likely to make the book permanent on their counters and less likely to re-order. Stipulations agreed upon by the counsel for both sides were also submitted, setting forth the general facts of the organization and plans of reform of the American Publishers' Association, and admitting the fact that "The Castaway" was sold by R. H. Macy & Co. below the price of one dollar.

In their brief for the Bobbs-Merrill Company, Boardman, Platt & Soley, solicitors for complainant, set forth as Point 1: "The notice printed in complainant's copyright book was effective to restrict the re-sale at retail to the net price specified in the notice. The sale by the defendants at a reduced retail price constitutes an infringement of complainant's copyright." Point 2 set forth that: "Even if the conduct of the defendants were not an infringement of complainants' copyright, the suit is maintainable upon the contract theory." In support of the first point it is argued that the decision of Judge Holland of the United States District Court in Pennsylvania, in the case of the Bobbs-Merrill Company against N. Sneltenburg & Co. is not a controlling precedent: that the effectiveness of such a restrictive notice to control the retail price is well established in patent cases, the leading cases cited being Victor Talking Machine Co. vs. The Fair, decided by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Illinois; Edison Phonograph Co. vs. Kaufmann, and other phonograph cases; Dickerson vs. Matheson, and other cases establishing the right of owners of a United States patent to prohibit the re-importation into the United States of a patented article as sold abroad; and the Button Fastener Co. vs. Eureka Specialty Co., and the Neostyle case, upholding the right of patentees to license a patented article for use exclusively with other articles of the patentees' manufacture. The case turns largely upon the analogy between patent law as interpreted in the Victor Talking Machine case, and copyright law.

In defence, Spiegelberg & Wise, solicitors for R. H. Macy, with John G. Carlisle and E. E. Wise, as counsel, set forth as Point 1: "The complainant fails to show impairment of any right protected by the copyright statutes." As Point 2: "Owing to the difference both in the theory and in the letter of the patent and copyright statutes, the cases relied upon by the complainants are inapplicable to the question of copyright here presented." As Point 3: "The decisions of the various Circuit Courts and of the Circuit Courts of Appeals, interpreting the patent law and relied upon by the complainant, have never received the sanction of the Supreme Court and are in apparent conflict with its decisions." As Point 4: "The complainants are parties to a combination which is illegal in its scope and intent both under the State law and under the Federal statutes, and the present action is brought for the purpose of enforcing one of the rules of such illegal combination." As Point 5: "Unless the court has jurisdiction by virtue of the copyright law, the complaint is defective, as there is a total failure to allege and prove any damage whatsoever."

In the Scribner case, Stephen H. Olin, of counsel for the complainant, schedules the books copyrighted by complainants at fixed retail net prices, and sets forth as Point 1: "The rule for which we contend has been established in patent cases by decisions in this circuit, and by the recent decisions of the Circuit Court of Appeals" in the cases already referred to. As Point 2: "Macy & Co. are not only selling the plaintiffs' books without a license, but they are inducing jobbers and booksellers to break their contract with complainants touching the monopoly of their copyrights." As Point 3: "There can be no doubt that under the facts of this case the complainant is entitled to relief if the rule in copyright cases is the same as in patent cases." As Point 4: "The rules established in patent law apply to cases of copyright." As Point 5: "The decisions in copyright cases cited by defendants do not establish a rule different from the rules applied in the patent cases cited." As Point 6: "The copyright cases show that in the three fields of making, using, and selling, the law closely agrees with the law of patents."

In reply, the same counsel for Macy & Co. make denial that any right under the copyright statutes has been impaired, and therefore set forth as Point 1: "There being no diversity of citizenship, this court has no jurisdiction." As Point 2: "The complainants' exhibits introduced on the examination of Miss Kinnear and Mr. Emory are wholly incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial." As Point 3: "The complainants' brief discloses that whatever right of action, if any, exists, is the direct offshoot of the illegal agreements of an illegal combination."

It will be seen from this synopsis that the main point involved is the application of patent decisions to copyright law, as respects the protection of the price of the monopoly article on its final sale, though the complainants rely also to some extent on the theory of contract, and the defendants rely also to some extent on the anti-monopoly statutes as applicable to the American Publishers' Association. The main contention raises a point comparatively new before the courts, and of so much importance that it is not unlikely to be appealed in any event until a final decision is had from the United States Supreme Court.

WILLIAM ELLIOTT GRIFFIS.

ITHACA, N. Y., February 11, 1904.

A BOOKSELLER'S VIEWS OF HIS MISSION.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

THE following has been called out by Mr. Brisbane Walker's talk to the Booksellers' League, elaborated in the columns of the New York Evening Journal of February 9:

DEAR SIR: I desire to call your attention to the attached article, clipped from the New York Evening Journal of February 9, on "The Bookseller's Important Work." The paragraph which especially attracted my attention was the following:

"We all want money—in reason—for poverty is slavery, and it means fear and dependence." That's it, "we all want money," and I wonder how much I could borrow from the writer of this article, or, better still, how much would I need to show a profitable business at the end of the year were I to conduct my business on the philanthropic basis of trying to elevate the standard of reading among those who have been my customers for years.

I know of no more certain method of committing "commercial suicide" than to follow out the instructions laid down in the said article.

Recommending fiction especially would be precisely like ordering dinner for another person to eat; about one chance in ten that you would order something to suit.

I am constrained to believe that if such a policy were carried out, about the only comforting thought of the bookseller at the end of the year would be the same as the man who had been poisoned by a mistake of the druggist, i.e., the poison was chemically pure.

"Every man thinks his own crow is the blackest." Let us suppose we recommend an encyclopædia to a customer. He buys it, takes it home and shows his neighbor, (who has a different one,) his bargain. The result, nine times out of ten, is that the neighbor will convince your customer that he has been swindled, or at least been persuaded to buy an inferior work because more profit would be made by the dealer than there would have been had he purchased the kind he (the neighbor) bought.

Our instructions to clerks are prohibitive against the recommendation of books in general. We allow them to say whether or not the book has met with popular favor, tell how it sells, etc., but never to recommend. If recommended it may call to mind Mark Twain's famous maxim, "If there were no difference of opinion, there would be no horse races."

I do not wish to be understood by the foregoing that I am personally in favor of the immense amount of rot that issues annually from our presses; far from it; I am taking the stand that I do from a commercial point of view only.

One more point to show the fallacy of this article. The reading public are fickle; a Churchill, a Tolstoi, a Dixon, or any other of our great writers of the present day might launch a work to-morrow, equal in mental merit to any of their previous stories, and the sales may never reach mediocrity. We booksellers do not have to tax our memories to any extent to recall cases where we have given large advance orders for new publications, based on the reputation of the author, only to find the sale nominal; yet, though the work may have been highly recommended by critic, publisher and merchant, it failed for some unknown reason to "go."

"All honor," says the article, "to the bookseller that takes a high and generous view of his work in life." So say I, but how often have we read of persons in history who were highly honored and yet starved to death.

Considering the close competition and other drawbacks ever present, I would prefer to have inscribed as an epitaph on my headstone, "Hic Jacet a successful book merchant."

Yours sincerely,
R. E. SHERWOOD.

PERSONAL NOTE.

ALEXANDER A. McCORMICK, editor and publisher of the Chicago Evening Post, has been elected president of the Union League Club of Chicago. A very wide circle of Mr. McCormick's associates in many literary and business clubs will congratulate him on the fact, but none will do so more heartily than his many old friends in the booktrade, who knew him so pleasantly when he was associated with A. C. McClurg & Co.

ANNUAL MEETING.

At the annual meeting of the American Publishers' Association held on Wednesday, February 8, all the officers were re-elected.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT, publisher of The Brooklyn Times, died on Wednesday, February 15, of apoplexy, in Dr. Cooley's Sanitarium, at Plainfield, N. J. Mr. Bryant was born in New York City in 1849 and was in his fifty-fifth year. He was treasurer of the Publishers' Press Association and secretary and founder of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and was prominent in political and social circles of Brooklyn. He was one of the best known men in the journalistic profession throughout the United States.

WILLIAM COWPER PRIME, the well-known art collector, who had been vice-president and trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City for more than twenty years, died in New York City on Monday, February 13. Dr. Prime was born at Cambridge, N. Y., in 1825. He contributed to the magazines poems and articles on coins, ceramics and wood engravings. Dr. Prime owned perhaps the finest collection of wood engravings in the world. It is understood that the collection will go to Princeton University. He was an enthusiastic fisherman.

ALPHEUS SPRING PACKARD, who has occupied the chair of Zoology and Geology at Brown University since 1878, and who was an authority of international standing on natural history and kindred branches, died at Providence, R. I., on Tuesday, February 14, of septic poisoning following the extraction of a tooth. Professor Packard was born in Brunswick, Me., in 1839, and graduated from Bowdoin College in 1861. He was the author of nearly 400 books and articles on scientific subjects, and many of his books are textbooks in important institutions.

GENERAL LEWIS WALLACE, ("Lew Wallace") former American Minister to Turkey, and veteran of the Mexican and Civil Wars, died at his home at Crawfordsville, Ind., on Wednesday, February 15. General Wallace was born at Brookville, Ind., April 10, 1827, and was seventy-eight years old. Notwithstanding his honorable career as patriot and lawyer in many important national suits, General Wallace was best known to the present generation as the author of "Ben Hur: a tale of the Christ," first published in 1880, which has almost reached the half million mark and still sells steadily. His other books are fully up to the same standard of merit, but "Ben Hur" made one of the great popular successes of its generation. Among his best-known other books are "The Fair God," a remarkably fine story of Mexico, 1873; "The Life of General Benjamin Harrison," 1888; "The Boyhood of Christ," 1889; and "The Prince of India," 1893.

HENRY KIGGINS, the founder and senior member of the Kiggins & Tooker Company of New York, died at Elizabeth, N. J., on February 3. Mr. Kiggins was born in Elizabeth, in 1815, and at fifteen years of age obtained employment in David Meeker's dry goods store in Elizabeth. In 1832 he became clerk in John J. Bryant's bookstore, and in 1836 bought out the business and conducted it until 1846, when he sold out to Samuel Pierce. In that year he commenced the manufacturing of blank books in Elizabeth, but in 1847 formed a co-partnership with A. W. Kellogg under the firm name of Kiggins & Kellogg, and moved the business to 10 John Street, New York. Shortly afterwards, the business having grown, the firm moved to 88 John Street, and in 1856 went into the store it now occupies at 123-125 William Street. In 1866, after a partnership extending over nineteen years, Mr. Kellogg retired, and the business was continued by the firm of Kiggins & Tooker Company, Charles P. Tooker and Isaac C. Kiggins being admitted. This co-partnership existed for sixteen years until 1882, when it was dissolved and a stock company formed, of which Henry Kiggins was made president, which position he held until the spring of 1885, when he resigned as president and retired as an active member of the company.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. CONSTABLE & Co., London, have in preparation an authorized biography of Canon Ainger, including a selection of his correspondence.

THE HAMMERSMARK PUBLISHING COMPANY of Chicago have just brought out a metrical drama by a new writer, entitled "The Saxons: a Drama of Christianity in the North," by Edwin Davies Schoonmaker.

THROUGH the courtesy of a friend the Revell Company have printed a large edition of Campbell Morgan's account of the great revival that is just now sweeping over Wales. The publishers report that these pamphlets are for free distribution as long as the edition holds out.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in press a new volume by James Huneker, author of "Overtones," etc., to be entitled "Iconoclasts," a book of dramatists. The book is the result of pilgrimages to many of the European capitals, where the author studied the revolutionary Continental playwrights of to-day. The book opens with a study of Henrik Ibsen, to whom the largest space is devoted, and all of whose plays are for the first time fully described and analyzed. The author then writes about the works of August Strindberg, Henry Becque, Gerhart Hauptmann, Paul Hervieu, "The Quintessence of Shaw," Maxim Gorky's "Nachasy," Hermann Sudermann, Princess Mathilde's play, Eleonora Duse, and Gabriele D'Annunzio, Villiers de l'Isle Adam, and Maurice Maeterlinck.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will publish shortly a reprint of the English edition of 1703 of the "Voyage to North America," by Louis Armand de Lom D'Arce, third Baron de Lahontan, edited, with notes, etc., by Reuben Gold Thwaites. The work will be in two volumes. It describes the life of the whites and savages of New France. The baron travelled for ten years from Montreal to Quebec as far west as the Mississippi. He was sent to New France in 1683, when only seventeen years old, and recalled in 1693 to become King's Lieutenant at Plaisance, under Governor De Brouillan. But he fled from his island post at the end of that year, taking refuge in Portugal, Holland, Denmark, Spain, England and Hanover. The letters from these countries form the latter part of the "Voyages." The forthcoming work will contain facsimiles of the title-pages of the original edition and of eighteen full-page illustrations and five maps. It will also include the "Dialogue with Adario."

A NEW series which promises to be of peculiarly practical interest and especial importance is to be begun shortly by A. S. Barnes & Company. It will present books by men of such distinction as the Rev. Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall, president of the Union Theological Seminary; the Rev. Washington Gladden, the Rev. Dr. William C. Bitting and the Rev. Dr. William Douglas Mackenzie, president of the Hartford Theological Seminary. The editor of the series, the eminent clergyman and writer, Rev. Dr. Henry A.

Stimson, has written the first book in the series, The Right Life, a title which comes with peculiar aptness at a time when various kinds of life not necessarily fundamental have received much attention. This series, which is essentially practical and modern, applies the latest results of scholarship and study of modern conditions to such questions as What are we to believe? What is the Bible to-day? What is The Right Life? What is the moral law in business, and other subjects which come home to thinking people. It is believed that the series will be original in its plan and scope, and the freshness, interest and authoritative character of the treatment will invest these books with a unique distinction.

FOX, DUFFIELD & Co. will publish on the 15th of March, in two volumes, the "Letters of Henrik Ibsen," translated by John Nilsen Laurvick. The entire collection in this volume, which has been made by a son of the great dramatist, with his father's sanction covers a period of about fifty years, from 1849 to 1898. Among those to whom letters are addressed are King Charles of Sweden, Georg Brandes, the Danish critic; Björnsterne Björnson, William Archer and Edmund Gosse, as well as an interesting circle of less celebrated friends. Ibsen's genius has attracted so many readers and admirers, who have nevertheless been puzzled as to his personality, that the self-revelation in these letters is certain to attract considerable attention this spring. Early in April they will bring out a work of fiction entitled "Hester of Vermont," a romance of Old Bennington in Revolutionary times, by Theodora Peck, with illustrations. Later in April they will publish a work entitled "Japanese Life and Character," by Kakuzo Okakura, an explanation, from one of the most talented of living Japanese, of the qualities that make the Japanese character unique. How the Japanese do things, a theme which has for a long time interested students of their art and civilization, is more than ever to the fore since the splendid record they have made in their war with Russia. Mr. Okakura's discussion of his countrymen is timely in the highest degree.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS has just published "Studies in Ancient Furniture," by Miss C. A. Ransom. The frontispiece, a colored lithograph, shows an elaborate Roman couch of the fourth century B.C., and 29 plates and 60 text figures fully illustrate other furniture of the ancients. The book, a large quarto, will prove interesting to archaeologists, as well as to students of furniture design in this and other ages. The press will publish on March 1, in two volumes, "Studies in General Physiology," by Professor Jacques Loeb, now at the University of California, containing a résumé of the investigations of this eminent biologist during the past twenty years. The following works are announced for early publication: "The Progress of Hellenism in Alexander's Empire," a compendium of the long and brilliant development of human culture under Greek influence; "The Higher Life of Chicago," which deals with the uplifting elements in the life of a great city; "The Messianic Hope in the New Testament," a new book by Professor Shailer Mathews, of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, in which the author investigates to what extent the concepts of the New Testament writers were essential and to what extent formal; or, in other words, seeks to determine whether these concepts were of universal or of local application; also, The Barrows Lectures in India for 1902-1903, delivered by President Charles Cuthbert Hall and entitled "Christian Belief Interpreted by Christian Experience," which presents the essential principles of the Christian religion to the educated members of other religions in India and the far East.

MARCH 14, 15, 2:30 P.M.—Miscellaneous library of Jesse E. Peyton and theatrical library of a well-known collector; also Audubon's Birds and Quadrupeds.—Stan V. Henkels.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

1 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

2 Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE

By HARRIS DICKSON

THE deepest impression of Stephen Ravel's childhood days was the cold, still face of his father who had been assassinated. That impression lived with him by day and night. He came of a proud, passionate race, and he lived for a certain hour. When the time arrived and he was face to face with the son of the man who killed his father he was able to hold himself in check. But, when chance threw into his way, alone and at night, the assassin himself, then—Then there happened what makes the mystery of this thrilling and extraordinary story of life in the south in the present day. It is a novel of cleverness, capital plot, and surprising climaxes. A love story of unusual sweetness, and the reader will be quite as much interested in the womanly figure of Mercia and the cheery little gray as in the vigorous and brilliant person of young Stephen Ravel himself.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "De Profundis," by Oscar Wilde, written when he was prisoner at Reading Gaol, with portrait after etching by J. E. Kelly; "The Kaiser as He Is, the Real Wilhelm II.," translated by Walter Littlefield; "The Girl of La Gloria," a love story of Texas by Clara Driscoll; "A Self-Made Man's Wife: Her Letters to Her Son," by Eustace Merriman, being the women's view of certain famous correspondences; and "Belchamber," by Howard Overing Sturgis, a truthful and engaging novel of ultra-fashionable English society.

DODD, MEAD & Co. publish to-day "Pam," a novel by Bettina von Hutten; "The Bando-lero," a novel by Paul Gwynne; and "Billy Duane," a novel by Frances Aymar Mathews, author of "My Lady Peggy Goes to Town," also new editions of "The Circle," by Catherine Cecil Thurston; and of George Barr McCutcheon's "Brewster's Millions;" "Castle Cranecrow" and "Graustark." They also issue at the same time "Life of Honoré de Balzac," by Mary F. Sanders; "A History of Ireland," by John F. Finerty; and a presentation edition of "My Commencement," a record in dainty and attractive form.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have secured another novel interesting and original, entitled "The Prize to the Hardy." The author is Alice Winter, who writes a story of the grain fields of Minnesota and the business schemes of which they are the feeders. A New England man has made his fortune and two young men from his native Maine come under his influence in settling to their life work. The successful New Englander has a daughter and she has an aspiring woman friend, and these characters all help to point some useful truths about American life. A vivid description of a forest fire makes real the scenes of these terrible conflagrations.

HENRY HOLT & Co. are to bring out a long list of promising books during the month of March. "Princess Passes," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, authors of "The Lightning Conductor," will tell another humorous story of love and travel; Pattee's "House of the Black Ring" brings a strange story of Pennsylvania Dutch folk; Deledda's "After the Divorce" is a dramatic Sardinian tale; and Colton's "Belted Seas" recounts the adventures of an American sea captain. Edward Everett Hale, Jr.'s "Dramatists of To-day" gives thoughtful estimates of Rostand, Hauptmann, Sudermann, Pinero, Shaw, Phillips and Maeterlinck; and Owen Seaman's "Harvest of Chaff" will contain some bright parodies.

Mr. Cahan's knowledge of the inside history of Russia is exceptional as this story proves. Alexander II. is one of the first persons introduced, and after scenes from his life, the terrible story of his assassination is depicted as if told by an eye witness. The characters embrace a variety of opposite types, representing the highest Russian official, the nihilist, the soldier, the political dreamer, the Jew and so on.

This valley had never before been trodden by Europeans, hence its description possesses an unique interest. Mr. Candler was a part of the expedition accompanying it as correspondent of the London Telegraph. He tells in a graphic way the scenes they passed through and the strange people they fought and conquered, their final entrance into Lhasa, and their bitter disappointment at the sight of the "forbidden" city.

The frauds perpetrated upon Life Insurance Companies, in order to realize on policies, that have long been known to exist form the subject of this novel. Several sudden deaths that do not at first seem suspicious are under the investigation of Dr. Nicholas Stone, a rich medical man, shown to have been murders. He is aided in his investigations by the Pacific Coast Manager of the Great International Life Insurance Co., who had paid the policies without a suspicion of fraud. There is some exciting detective work and a little romance.
- Dickerson, Mary C. Moths and butterflies; with two hundred photographs from life, by the author. [New ed.] Bost., Ginn, [1905.] c. '01. 4-344 p. O. cl., $1.25.
"Moths and butterflies" forms an excellent starting point for work in natural history, for it deals with insects which are common to all parts of the country and at the same time admirably illustrative of the great principle of adaptation to environment. The various stages in the life of the caterpillar are described at length, and numerous illustrations of some forty common forms make the task of identification easy. A final chapter on the making of collections contains much useful information.

The sudden re-appearance of Sherlock Holmes in London in the spring of 1894 was as dramatic as his seeming taking off by Moriarty several years previous. He seeks out his old friend Watson and after telling him a convincing story of a miraculous escape takes a hand again in detective work. Thirteen stories in which he seeks the criminal or disentangles a puzzle follow, being as full of interest and excitement as anything of a similar nature from Mr. Doyle.

The master-word is love which always means sacrifice. The scene is Tennessee among the phosphate mines. The wife of Philip Lawton condoned his sin in being father of a child by a mulatto woman and brought up the girl in her own family ignorant of her relationship but knowing she was of negro blood. The clever, beautiful girl hates her mother's race, but is totally submissive to her step-sister. The great problem of race mixture is discussed from its scientific, ethical and emotional viewpoints. Mrs. Lawton, to shield the girl and help her bear the burden of her father's sin, tells her sad story at the turning point of her life when she and her sister fall in love with the same man.

It is advertised for and an enormous sum offered for its return. A young man of birth and position, who needs money in order to marry and to wipe out the mortgage on his estates, determines to find the fan.  A young actress upon her return from a New York theatre where she has played a minor part finds her child dead. In her despair she wanders about the streets and meets an old friend who leads her to the Temple of the Mother-Light supposed to be somewhere in New Jersey. Here many new thoughts are unfolded and there are long discussions upon the effects of love, superstition, voluntary and involuntary delusions. The young actress becomes the Mother-Light and fights a severe battle with selfish human love before she sacrifices herself for the good of the new faith. Many of the doctrines voiced are those of Christian Science.

It is in the form of a story told by the last Indian woman of the village, giving the legendary tale of the settlement of the country by the forefathers of the local Indian tribe. "The parson's Rose," a shorter poem, is another Wilbraham story, elaborated into verse.

A story of Queen Elizabeth's Court, the queen being shown in most attractive guise. The heroine appears as the daughter of the toll-taker of Old London Bridge, a strikingly handsome man known as a pardoned convict. He endeavors to force his daughter into a repulsive marriage and she takes refuge with the queen who promises her protection. Her father follows her and is mortally wounded fighting his way into the palace. Dying he tells his story—that he has noble blood in him, though an illegitimate son. His father's estates and name are restored to his daughter, who becomes one of the queen's maids, and the heroine of a tender love story.

In fact the authors have intentionally avoided giving the book this form.

This, the first volume of the County Records of Virginia containing the Records of Spotsylvania Co., is published under the auspices of the Genealogical Association by Fox, Duffield & Co. The enterprise involves the first attempt to put into accessible form some of the most valuable of the early documents of the country. The importance of the undertaking is inestimable. Many of the original records, owing to the vicissitudes of time and war, have been destroyed, and it is imperative, if the remainder also are not to be lost to posterity, to print them before age has rendered them totally illegible. The transcripts are being done by a resident genealogist of experience.

The founding of a free state in the very heart of savage and cannibalistic Africa, by the wisdom of a kindly philanthropist—Leopold II., King of the Belgians, is one of the achievements of the 19th century, almost unrecorded. Mr. Wack, a member of the New York bar, a student of mid-African affairs for the past seven years, has felt it his duty to tell to Americans the true story of the conception and development of the Congo Free State. The King of the Belgians gave him access to the archives of the administration of the Congo Free State in Brussels, and assisted by these he has told his wonderful story without prejudice, and with apparent truthfulness.

The story of two young men who started on an exploring expedition into undiscovered Labrador. Their adventures were numerous and thrilling and quite out of the common. Inspired by the noblest ambition, bound together by touching devotion, lured on by hopes and betrayed by false information and unavoidable errors, the end is a tragedy. Illustrated from photographs and original maps.

Young Dr. Phillimore takes the place of ship's doctor on the palatial yacht Sea Queen owned by Mr. Morland, a German prince of the royal blood in disguise, who entertains as guests his sister, a princess, and a French prima donna. Hurricane Island is supposed to be near the Straits of Magellan. The prince had big treasure aboard and a pirate plays a complicated part. The surprising end leaves many questions unsettled.

Lectures delivered by Prof. Weismann in the University of Freiburg in Breisgau. "As the author's preface indicates," says the translator, "the salient features of his crowning work are (1) the illumination of the evolution process with a wealth of fresh illustrations; (2) the vindication of the 'germ-plasm' concept as a valuable working hypothesis; (3) the final abandonment of any assumption of transmissible acquired characters; (4) a further analysis of the nature and origin of variations; and (5) an extension of the selection, principle of Darwin and Wallace, which finds its logical outcome in the suggestive theory of germinal selection."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 25, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE IMPORTANCE OF GUARDING CREDIT.

EVERY wholesaler has more or less reason to complain of the unbusinesslike manner in which retailers, especially those with small resources, attend to their settlements. A refusal to close an account when due, either by cash or note, unless some valid reason can be given, is sure to cause mistrust, with its accompanying evils. But far worse is the carelessness of some who do not promptly answer letters, or who refuse to honor drafts after proper notification.

When careful wholesale houses, selling at close prices, are thus treated they are apt to warn their travellers not to call upon such delinquent retailers, thus compelling them to lose the benefit of keeping in touch with the latest books, etc., and to buy from firms who, working on long profits, can afford to waste their time on unbusinesslike men.

In all cases it will be well for the small retailer to bear in mind certain points and to act upon them to the best of his ability. The excuse of lack of time to attend to these matters will prove about as invalid as "ignorance of the law," which, as every one knows, will not exempt the transgressor from the penalties imposed by the law.

In the first place, then, if the retailer have any claims for "shorts" or "damages" let such be reported immediately after the goods are checked. In the second place, when a monthly statement is received and errors are discovered while the bills are checked off on the statement, let the errors, if any, be reported by the next mail. In the third place, if it is impossible to make a remittance when requested, let the retailer write at once when he reasonably expects to be able to make a remittance. In the fourth place, when notified that after a certain time the tardy retailer will be drawn upon, let him attend to the matter without a moment's delay. Let him verify whether the amount and terms are correct, and that his bank account will allow him to accept the drafts. If not, let him write at once just exactly how the matter stands, and let him endeavor at whatever sacrifice never to refuse a draft. If a draft cannot be met at maturity, it will be wise to write or telegraph in time to save protest costs, and annoyance to the house issuing the draft.

A little attention will save much friction, and help immensely in keeping up the reputation of the retailer. Every man in business is conscious of the fact that it may not always be possible to meet obligations promptly, and for that reason he is not as a rule unreasonable. But every business man has a right to expect prompt attention to correspondence, and a reasonable explanation from his debtors as to the state of affairs when accounts are overdue.

It is clearly impossible in summarizing the output of the books of the year, as is annually done in our Annual Summary Number, to enumerate all the books that meet with a favorable reception, and the line must often be arbitrarily drawn. Yet we regret we should have drawn the line so as to exclude Louis Tracy's excellent story, "The Pillar of Light," that has been deemed worthy of serial reproduction in one of the leading New York dailies.

AN AUTHOR'S RIGHT TO HIS WORK.

JUDGE MCCALL, of the Supreme Court Special Term, Part vi., on the second inst., handed down a decision in the suit brought by Basil Jones against the American Law Book Company, to restrain the defendants from publishing an article entitled "Army and Navy," in the second volume of their "Cyclopædia of Law and Procedure," except under the plaintiff's name. It appears that the American Law Book Company, of New York City, in order to attract attention to its cyclopædia, caused articles written by young law writers to be nominally "edited" by famous judges and jurists, and then published such articles without giving credit to the real author, but under the name of the distinguished gentleman who looked over the proofs.

Judge McCall in effect holds that both usage and inherent right give an author the right to have his literary production published under no name other than his own. The court's opinion is as follows: "This is an action on the equity side of the court in which the relief sought is an injunction against the defendant, restraining it from publishing an article entitled 'Army and Navy,' found in vol. II. of defendant's publication entitled 'Cyclopedia of Law and Procedure,' except under the plaintiff's name. The said article, it is claimed, was prepared and written by the plaintiff while under contract with the defendant to do work of this precise nature, and the grounds upon which the plaintiff asserts he is entitled to the relief prayed for are: First. That a custom or usage in the publication of law encyclopædias was a part of the contract entered into as between the parties herein, and as such gave plaintiff a contractual right to have his article published under his name. Second. That irrespective of any custom or usage the right of an author to the public credit of his work and to the publication of his name in connection therewith is inherent and resides in him until waived or surrendered. It may be accepted that the right to literary property is as sacred as that of any other species of property, and as has been forcibly said: 'The right of authors in respect to their unpublished works have been so frequently and elaborately considered and carefully adjudicated by the courts of this country and England and are now so well understood that in considering first publications there can be no doubt. The author of a literary work or composition has by law a right to the first publication of it. He has a right to determine whether it shall be published or not, and if published, when, where, by whom and in what form.' These rights were vouchsafed to authors at common law and statute has in nowise impaired them. What is true as general propositions is not at all altered by the fact that the creation of a man's genius or mind may have developed while he was in the general employ of another. 'For a man's intellectual productions are peculiarly his own, and he will not be deemed to have parted with his right and transferred it to his employer unless a valid agreement to that effect is adduced.' (Boucicault vs. Fox, 5 Blatchford, U. S., p. 95.) There is nothing in the contract before the court out of which can be spelled any such waiver. It is true that he stipulated that whatever he produced should be submitted to a process of editing, but it would be a wide stretch of the imagination that would work out of that proposition a sale or waiver of his rights to ownership to or credit for the results of his labor. The case is replete with evidence of a custom developed almost into usage of the right of this particular class of writers to have their productions published under their names. This defendant's published volumes teem with such instances, and this particular author, plaintiff herein, has his first article published under his name. That he wrote a letter of thanks to the representative of the publisher for so doing is rather a proof of his understanding of proprieties, and it would be absurd to treat it as an expression of any views that he was treated in any other manner than he had a perfect right to expect. Some proof has been offered that this particular article is not solely the work of the plaintiff. That may or may not be true, but to protect a person under such circumstances the law does not require that it should be his exclusive work. The work may be the result of the labors of one or many acting in co-operation. Whatever may be the case the right is substantially the same and equally entitled to protection of the court, (Trench vs. Maguire, vol. LV. How Pr., p. 479.) Upon all the facts I believe the plaintiff has made a complete case and is entitled to the relief he prays for. Decree and findings to be submitted accordingly."

HIGH PRICES FOR RARE BOOKS.

THE record price of $317 was paid at Libbie's on the 15th inst. for a copy of the first edition of Fitzgerald's translation of the "Rubaiyat," that turned up in the Knapp collection. The highest price hitherto paid for the book was £63. As late as 1900 a copy with manuscript corrections by the author brought only £35 at Sotheby's. Since then the price of this little book which started its career in Quaritch's penny bargain bin, has been steadily going up. The copy sold at Libbie's was bought by F. W. Morris of New York City, who was also the purchaser of Hawthorne's scarce first book, "Fanshawe," which he secured for $621, the third highest price ever paid for the book at an auction sale.

The second folio Shakespeare, with several leaves in facsimile was sold for $429; the fourth folio, with the verses beneath the portrait in facsimile, fetched $325.

At Anderson's, on the evening of February 21, during the sale of the eighth part of the McKee collection, Edgar Allan Poe's original manuscript of his imaginative poem, "Ullalume," was sold for $1000. The poem contained ten stanzas, 104 lines, but the last stanza was never printed. A letter which Poe wrote to Miss Susan Ingram about the poem sold for $160, going to the same anonymous purchaser who secured the poem.

The highest price obtained for any of the rare portraits was $200, which was paid for a mezzotint engraving of Henry Laurens, engraved by Valentine Green after Cooley and printed in London in 1782. A mezzotint portrait of Paul Jones, printed in London in 1779, went for $191.

A splendid collection of old New York prints was sold, and they went for good prices.

The highest price that has been paid in an auction room for a George Washington letter in a long time was obtained at the Merwin-Clayton salesrooms, on the afternoon of February 21, for a war letter of George Washington, written to Elias Boudinot in April, 1777. It sold for $160.

COPYRIGHT PACT WITH JAPAN.

ACCORDING to an announcement made on the 17th inst., the Japanese government has entered into a copyright agreement with the United States with the view of preventing further literary piracy.

AUTHORS POPULAR IN SWITZERLAND.

ACCORDING to the eighth annual report of the librarian of the Pestalozzi Society at Zurich, showing a circulation during 1904 of 83,000 volumes, the works of the following authors were most in demand in the order mentioned: Spyri, Gerstäcker, Verne, Heimbürg, Ganghofer, Freytag, Rosegger, Ohnet, Ebers, Marlitt, Auerbach, Dumas, Stein, Werner, Spielhagen, G. Keller, May, K. F. Meyer, J. Fenimore Cooper, Hackländer, Joachim, Ebner-Eschenbach, Gottschalk, Marryat, Mark Twain, Fontane, Bonnet, Georgy, Fr. Hoffmann, Sienkiewicz, Daudet, Sir Walter Scott, Victor Hugo, George Sand, Gréville, Lewald, Dahn, Zschokke, Malot and Hanff.

THE CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS TO OCCUPY ST. DUNSTAN'S HOUSE.

It is now definitely announced that the business of the Cambridge University Press, at present carried on at the warehouse in Ave Maria Lane, Ludgate Hill, London, will be shortly transferred to Fetter Lane, Fleet Street, to St. Dunstan's House, at present in the occupation of Sampson Low, Marston & Co., which has been purchased by the University.

The publishing business of Sampson Low, Marston & Co., Ltd., will be removed to more central premises in Paternoster Row; the Export Department, which was taken over by William Dawson & Sons, Ltd. (and of which E. Marston is chairman), some time past, will continue to be carried on at St. Dunstan's House.

St. Dunstan's House is situated on the west side of Fetter Lane, immediately to the south of the garden of the Record Office; it was erected about twenty years ago with a view to the requirements of the business of publishing, and is in every way well suited for the business of the Press, providing ample room for present requirements and for future extension. It will be now possible to have show-rooms where the publications of the Press, Bibles, and Prayer-Books, educational and miscellaneous works, can be inspected.

It is only in comparatively recent years that the Cambridge University Press has had its own London warehouse. Cambridge publications, which, forty years ago, consisted mainly of Bibles and Prayer-Books, were sold through agents in London. The agency with Messrs. Rivington was terminated at the end of 1872, and it was then decided, on the advice of C. J. Clay, that the Syndics of the Press should not appoint other agents but should conduct their London business in an office of their own; accordingly a lease was taken of premises at 17 Paternoster Row, and the London business was carried on there from the beginning of 1873. The accommodation afforded by this warehouse was found insufficient, and in 1883 the premises in Ave Maria Lane were taken. Since that date the business of the Press has so greatly increased as to make a removal to a larger warehouse highly desirable.

A PARCELS POST TREATY WITH ENGLAND.

AFTER many years of negotiation, a parcels post treaty has just been concluded between the United States and Great Britain. By this treaty parcels not to exceed 4 pounds and 6 ounces in weight, and not to exceed $50 in value, may hereafter be sent at the rate of 12 cents a pound, instead of 10 cents an ounce, as formerly. All kinds of merchandise and articles usually placed in the mails may, with specified exceptions, be put in the parcels carried under the treaty. Live animals, except bees in properly constructed boxes; dead animals, except insects and reptiles when thoroughly dry; fruits and vegetables which easily decompose, poisonous, and inflammable and combustible materials are among the articles barred.

Parcels post arrangements are rapidly being extended by the United States. A treaty has been negotiated with France and will soon be promulgated. There now exist parcels post treaties between the United States and Germany, Belgium, Norway, China, Newfoundland and Japan and several other countries.

NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS IN CONVENTION.

THE American Newspaper Publishers' Association held its nineteenth annual meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria, from February 21 to 23. Charles H. Taylor of the Boston Globe presided, and Louis Hannech of the Newark Sunday Call acted as secretary.

A special paper was read on the subject of "The Allowance of Commission Direct to the Advertiser," by S. S. Rogers of the Chicago Daily News, a resolution regretting the death of William Cullen Bryant, the secretary and manager of the New York office of the Association, was adopted, and thirty-seven topics were discussed behind closed doors. Among the topics discussed were the following:

"Serial Stories. Have they a place in daily newspapers, and has practice demonstrated it? How should they be run, and what effect has the publication in book form before publication serially?"

"Soup Plates, Pickle Forks, and Bibles as a Means of Increasing Circulation. What experience have members had in 1904 with premiums?"

"Copyrighting News. Will the A. N. P. A. devise a plan to protect the newspaper which spends time and money in securing the first news, against the paper which steals it and uses it on the day of publication and in the territory of the newspaper which collected it?"

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM H. BRADDON, a member of the editorial staffs of The Iron Age and The Metal Worker, died at his home at Queens, Long Island, of heart disease.

DR. FRANK COWAN, physician, lawyer, journalist, traveller, lecturer and author, and proprietor of Frank Cowan's Paper, died at his home at Greensburg, Pa., on Sunday, February 12. He published several volumes of verse, a book about insects and a Dictionary of Proverbial Phrases Relating to the Sea. He was born in Greensburg in 1844.

RT. REV. WILLIAM E. McLAREN, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Chicago, died at his home at 93 Madison Avenue, Chicago, on Sunday, February 19, of heart trouble. Bishop McLaren was born at Geneva, N. Y., December 13, 1831. His father was a Presbyterian minister, for some years president of the University of Western Pennsylvania, where the Bishop received his early education. He was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in 1860 and for many years did missionary work in South America. In 1871 he entered the Protestant Episcopal Church and in 1875 was consecrated Bishop of Illinois. Bishop McLaren was a very earnest worker of very pronounced views and has had great influence among his clergy. He was the author of "Catholic Dogma: an antidote to doubt," "Inner Proofs of God," "The Practice of the Interior Life," "The Essence of Prayer," and many other writings of "high church" tendency.

ADOLF STREBER, member of the firm of Herder & Co., at Freiburg, in Breisgau, Baden, died in that city on January 23. Streber was born in Munich, January 1, 1850. After passing through college, he became apprentice in the bookselling establishment of his brother-in-law, Benjamin Herder at Freiburg. At the conclusion of his apprenticeship he took a position in Spithöver's bookstore in Rome. Returning to Germany in 1870 he went to the front as volunteer in a Bavarian infantry regiment. He was wounded several times and was promoted for bravery in the field. In 1873 he established a retail branch of the Herder business in Munich, to which he devoted himself until the death of his mother, in 1892, when he returned to Freiburg and became a member of the Herdersche Verlagshandlung. On the occasion of the centennial of his firm Pope Leo XIII. conferred upon Streber the order of Gregorius. Streber was a man of charming personality, earnest and indefatigable in raising the standard of his profession to an ever higher level, inspired himself, and inspiring others with the highest ideals of religion, art and science.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JACK LONDON has completed his new book, "The War of the Classes," a series of essays on social subjects written from his own personal experiences and observations a dozen years ago.

THE first statue of a woman to have a place in Statuary Hall at Washington is that of Frances E. Willard, of Illinois, renowned throughout the world for her great work in behalf of purity of life. It was unveiled on February 17 with impressive exercises in the Senate and the House.

MRS. H. M. LOTHROP, (Margaret Sidney,) is engaged in completing the tenth of the famous Pepper books, "Ben Pepper," which the Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company have in press for publication upon their Lothrop list during the present season. The popular demand for these remarkable books is continually increasing, the sales during the past season surpassing all previous records.

A MEMORIAL to the poet, Edward Rowland Sill has recently been unveiled at Oakland, Cal. It is in the form of a bronze sun-dial, mounted on a granite base, and is the gift of three classes of the Oakland High School, where Sill was a teacher for a short time. The publishers of Sill's works, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., have for some time past held out promises of a complete edition of his poems in a single convenient volume. It is to be hoped on all accounts that such an edition may be given us.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE Princeton University Library has recently published "A List of Arabic Manuscripts in Princeton University Library," by Professor Enno Littmann. The title is somewhat misleading, as the list covers only those Arabic manuscripts contained in the second Oriental collection presented to the library by Robert Garrett, of Baltimore in 1904. The first Garrett collection, presented in 1900, had been catalogued by Professor Houtsmä in Leyden, Holland, before its purchase for the Princeton library. The present catalogue covers 355 titles, and the two together 1549 manuscripts. A description of these collections will be found in The Library Journal of May, 1904. Professor Littmann is now engaged upon a more complete and careful descriptive catalogue of the two as one collection.

BROCKHAUS'S Allgemeine Bibliographie has entered upon its fiftieth year. This excellent international bibliography was founded in 1856 and was compiled by Paul Trömel, the editorial work being done by Heinrich Brockhaus, and continued by the latter until August, 1857. Beginning with the issue for September, 1857, Dr. Eduard Brockhaus became editor, and took charge of the classification from 1863 to 1880, assisted by Hermann Ziegenhals. In 1881, Otto Kistner became editor and continued until September, 1903, when Paul Schumann, succeeded to the editorship of the publication. The January issue contains a classified list of upwards of 400 new works. An edition of the Allgemeine Bibliographie intended for export gives, in addition to the German price, the original prices of the countries in which the books are published.

THE recently discovered copy of the first quarto edition of Shakespeare's "Titus Andronicus" has been purchased by a London firm for $10,000. It is supposed that the book will come to America.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will issue shortly "The Boys of Bob's Hill," by Charles Pierce Burton, telling of lively adventures in a forest fire; and a fifth edition of Burton E. Stevenson's "Marathon Mystery."

LEMCKE & BUECHNER, 11 East 17th Street, New York City, have imported "Etudes Critiques Sur la Vie de Christophe Colomb Avant Ses Découvertes," ("Critical Studies on the Life of Columbus Before His Discoveries,") by Henry Vignaud, which has appeared in Paris from the press of H. Welter.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have just issued "Lady Penelope," by Morley Roberts, a clever novel of English life; and "The Black Barque," by Captain T. Jenkins Hains, a story of slavery and piracy in 1815, when the navy of the United States had proved its value and efficiency in every sea-way and seaport in the world.

FRED J. HEER, Columbus, O., is bringing out "Shakerism: its Meaning and Message," by Anna White and Leila S. Taylor, covering its subject from its inception to the present time, and including biographical notices of some of the most prominent advocates. Special mention is made of the extensive literature of the Shakers.

JAMES POTT & Co. will publish March 18 "Dolly Winter," the letters of a friend which Joseph Harold is permitted to publish—letters not fiction, but an exceedingly rare correspondence between real people; and "Two of the Guests," by Kate Gertrude Prindeville, the story of a week's end party and romantic situations resulting.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will supply the American market with the report of "The English Church Congress of 1904," held at Liverpool. Among the topics of immediate importance discussed are Decline in Church Attendance, Intemperance, Problems of Poverty, Supply of Candidates for the Ministry; Ethics of Commerce, and Church Unity.

LAIRD & LEE have just issued "Hermann the Great," by H. J. Burlingame, describing the famous magician's most wonderful tricks, and giving some curious revelations concerning celebrated stage tricks that have puzzled the whole world; and "The Alderman's Wife; or, Making Hay While the Sun Shines," by Hon. Henry E. Scott, a story of love and intrigue in a large city.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY report that "The Lure of the Labrador Wild," by Dillon Wallace, sold out its entire first edition before the book appeared, and that another edition is printing; as is also a fourth edition of Dr. Sidney L. Gulick's "Evolution of the Japanese;" a third edition of Norman Duncan's "Doctor Luke," and the 90th thousand of Ralph Connor's "The Prospector."

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY will publish in about three weeks an important book by John Bancroft Devins, entitled "An Observer in the Philippines." This will be a volume of about 400 pages of intensely interesting matter, based upon personal observation and treating of political, educational and spiritual positions in the new American possessions. Secretary Taft contributes the foreword. The book will contain 64 illustrations.

THE MERWIN-CLAYTON SALES COMPANY will this year resume the Annual Parcel Sales of books, so long a feature of the business of Bangs & Co. and their predecessors. The first sale will be held during the last week in March, beginning on Tuesday, March 28. Invoices, with full descriptions, ready for the printer, should reach the Merwin-Clayton Sales Company by March 5 at latest. The co-operation of publishers is solicited.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish March 2 "The Lion's Skin," by John S. Wise, a Reconstruction story dealing sympathetically with the negro problem and of almost autobiographic interest, for the author passed through the stirring events he pictures; and "Tommy Carteret," by Justus Miles Forman, a story of vision which lays hold upon the imagination of a man engaged to a beautiful girl and leads to startling incidents.

THE CAMBRIDGE SOCIETY, 135 Fifth Avenue, New York City, has published the Cambridge edition de luxe of Disraeli's Endymion in a form that will please the true book lover. The attention lately called to Disraeli by the great literary papers in view of the publication of a fragmentary manuscript should make a younger generation become acquainted with the books that were a revelation when first issued. The Cambridge Society has the complete works of Disraeli.

FRANKLIN PRINTING AND ENGRAVING CO., Toledo, O., have just ready "Rambles Abroad," by Olive A. Colton, giving descriptions and illustrations of well-known European cities towards which the sightseeing travel tends: Rome, Naples, Milan, Vienna, Munich, Paris, Weimer, etc. A slight glimpse of Windsor Castle is the only British resort that is shown. There is also a book of information on the eyes by A. F. Emmet, entitled "Strong and Beautiful Eyes."

ATKINSON, MENTZER & GROVER, Chicago, have just ready "Suggestions in Hand Work," by Wilhelmina Seegmiller, which deals especially with paper weaving, tile matting and educational art text sheets. The little book is profusely illustrated. They also issue "A Chemistry Manual and Loose-Leaf Note Book," by John Whitmore, instructor in chemistry, Stamford, (Conn.) High School. The manual includes experiments generally performed by first-year pupils in chemistry.

THE SHAKESPEARE PRESS, Westfield, New Jersey, announces that about May 1 it can furnish to subscribers to the twenty-volume edition of The Bankside Shakespeare volume XXI, which is devoted to "Love's Labour Lost," with an introduction by Isaac Hull Platt, touching the question whether the play was originally written or only "newly augmented" by Shakespeare. This volume, like the preceding ones of the edition, is under the general editorship of Dr. Appleton Morgan.

HON. W. P. BROWNLOW, manager of the National Soldiers' Home at Johnson City, Tenn., has issued an appeal for gifts of books for the library of the institution. The library building, recently completed but unsupplied with books, was erected from a gift of $25,000 from Andrew Carnegie, one of the few donations of the kind made unconditionally. The home opened for the admission of members about a year ago, and now contains about 1000 inmates. Franking slips for gifts of books will be supplied on application.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have nearly ready "The Orchid," by Robert Grant, a novelette of manners, in which "the orchid" is Miss Lydia Arnold, afterwards Mrs. Maxwell, still later Mrs. Spencer, who blooms in the smartest of sets of American society; "At Close Range," a collection of nine short stories by F. Hopkinson Smith; and "Twelve Stories and a Dream," also collected short stories by H. G. Wells. Toward the end of March Quiller-Couch will have a new story dealing with heredity under the attractive title "Shining Ferry."

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co., Philadelphia, will publish a new book by the Rev. Arthur Chambers, entitled "Thoughts of the Spiritual." Mr. Chambers has given long and careful study to the subject of the future life, and to the passages in the Bible bearing thereon. The immense sales of his two previous volumes, "Our Life After Death" and "Man and the Spiritual World," and their numerous translations attest the marked and ever-growing interest in this vital theme, an interest which apparently stops with no people and in no country.

THE A. L. BURT COMPANY will publish at once three of William Harrison Ainsworth's historical novels: "Windsor Castle," "Guy Fawkes," and "The Tower of London." These popular romances are well illustrated and published in attractive cloth bindings. This company also will publish at once the celebrated frontier story, "Nick of the Woods," by Robert Montgomery Bird. Also two excellent Revolutionary stories by Chauncey C. Hotchkiss, viz.: "In Defiance of the King," and "A Colonial Free Lance." These books will be issued in attractive form and sold at popular prices.

JOHN JOSEPH McVEY, Philadelphia, has just ready a second edition, rewritten and enlarged, of "Answers to Questions Prescribed by Dental State Boards," by Robert B. Ludy, late Acting Assistant Surgeon, U. S. A. All the new State Board Questions which have appeared since the publication of the first edition have been added. Well-known specialists have lent their assistance in securing a critical interpretation of the questions and on forming concise yet complete answers to the same. There is also just ready the second edition of W. E. Rotzell's "Man: An Introduction to Anthropology."

THE BURROWS BROTHERS have just brought out a reprint of Nehemiah How's narrative of his captivity in 1745-1747, from the original edition, with introduction and notes by Victor Hugo Paltsits. The original very rare tract was printed at Boston, in 1748, after the death of the author, in prison, at Quebec, Canada, on May 25, 1747. He was taken captive at Great Meadow, (now Putney, Windham County, Vermont,) on October 11, 1745. The editor gives in his introduction a new historical account of the beginnings of Indian incursions in the Connecticut Valley during King George's War, and presents, also, a bibliographical account of the original pamphlet, and a genealogy of the How family. An analytical index of about twenty-four columns concludes the volume.

THE ROBERT APPLETON COMPANY, with offices at 1 Union Square, New York, has been incorporated at Albany to publish a Roman Catholic encyclopædia. The directors of the company are Robert Appleton, Edward Eyre, Hugh Kelly and Professor Charles G. Herbermann. The encyclopædia, which has the sanction of Archbishop Farley, will be prepared by leading Catholic scholars, under the editorship of Professor Charles G. Herbermann of the College of the City of New York, with whom will be associated Professor Edward A. Pace and Professor T. J. Shahan of the Catholic University at Washington; the Rev. John T. Wynne and Condé Pallen. The object of the Catholic encyclopædia will be to give full information upon all Catholic subjects from an authoritative point of view so far as the Church is concerned.

BAKER & TAYLOR Co. have in preparation "The Digressions of Polly," by Helen Rowland, a humorous, lovable book that might be called a lexicon for lovers; and a ninth edition of "My Mamie Rose," the story of Owen Kildare's life which has gripped every one that has read it. Of serious nature will be "The Unfolding of the Ages in the Revelation of St. John," by Ford C. Ottman; "The Evolution of Knowledge," by Raymond St. James Perrin, in which the various philosophical systems are boiled down in a fair and scholarly manner, and into which the author has put fifteen years of research and hard thinking; and a greatly enlarged and revised edition of "Social Progress," edited by Josiah Strong. A revolutionary look on physical culture by Dr. Austin Flint, with introduction by his father, will bear the title "Power and Health Through Progressive Exercise."

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY will publish early in March a work on "The Religious Conditions in Modern Japan," by Professor Ernest W. Clement, author of a work on "Christianity in Modern Japan;" "The South Wind, and Other Sermons," by the late Dr. T. Harwood Pattison; also, "The Young People's Imitation of Christ," prepared by Edward S. Ellis, who has to a considerable extent modernized the language of the original and eliminated the ascetic and sacerdotal elements. They will bring out in May a story by Hope Daring, entitled "The Appointed Way," in which the author gives a graphic description of the characteristic influence and working of the Seventh Day Advent Church. In April may be expected the Rev. M. T. Lamb's new book, "God and the Child," a discussion of the proper treatment to be accorded to homeless children, a subject upon which the author is particularly qualified to speak, having charge of such work in the State of New Jersey.

THE LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD COMPANY announce for publication April 1 on their Lothrop list two widely different works of fiction, each of commanding interest. "Miss Billy" is an entertaining novel of civic improvement by Edith K. Stokely and Marian K. Hurd, two bright women journalists of Des Moines, Ia. It has to do with the formation of a street almost as unpromising as the celebrated "cabbage patch," and equally rich in humorous characters. The other is "The Human Torch," a tale of the great Southwest by Edith M. Nicholl, a book having much of the quality of "The Virginian." The story is one of affinity and of the "human touch" that draws man and woman together wherever it appears in its might, regardless of any obstacles. It is full of good red blood and life, enlivened with humor. They will also publish April 1 on their Lee & Shepard list a juvenile by Edward Stratemeyer that cannot fail to be a leader in its class, "At the Fall of Port Arthur." Mr. Stratemeyer is so widely known as being keenly up to date in his books that his large audience has been already expecting this book.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & COMPANY publish to-day "The Opal," a short novel by an anonymous author, giving intimate and amusing pictures of Boston society; "Out of Bondage and Other Stories," by the late Rowland E. Robinson, all full of this author's keen observation and warm sympathy for men and animals; "Our Navy and the Barbary Corsairs," by Gardner W. Allen, who gives a vivid picture of the relations between the United States and the Barbary powers a century ago; "The Hawthorne Centenary," a full account of the anniversary proceedings at "The Wayside," Concord, Mass., July 4-7, 1904. On the same day will be ready the fifth edition of Oscar Fay Adams's "A Dictionary of American Authors," and The Riverside Press edition of Wicksteed's translation of Boccaccio's "Life of Dante," postponed from November 30, 1904. "Indiana," by J. P. Dunn, will have a new edition in the American Commonwealth Series; and Book 1 will be ready of Spenser's "Faerie Queene" with editorial equipment by Martha Hale Shackford, which takes its place in the Riverside Literature Series.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY promise the first volume of Professor Edward Channing's important eight volume "History of the United States," lives of Sidney Smith, Bryant and Prescott in the English Men of Letters Series; and Volumes III. and IV. of Herbert Paul's "History of Modern England." General Henry L. Abbott has an important book on the "Problems of the Panama Canal;" and Henry G. Hanchett has written a volume telling people how to enjoy "The Art of the Musician." The first volume of an edition of "The Life and Writings of Benjamin Franklin" will contain a very large number of newly discovered letters and documents. Other titles will include a translation of Meili's "International and Civil Law," "Labor Problems," by Professor Thomas S. Adams and Miss Helen Sumner; "Jesus Christ and the Christian Character," by Professor Peabody, of Harvard; Dr. Austin Flint's "Handbook of Physiology," "The Bahama Islands," by twenty-five scientists composing the expedition sent out in 1903 under the auspices of the Geographical Society of Baltimore; A. Emerson Palmer's "History of the New York Public School" and Professor William P. Trent's volume on the "Southern Writers."

D. C. HEATH & Co. have begun the publication of The Belles Lettres Series of "Literature for Literature's Sake," which will present the most significant works in English literature from its beginning to the present time. The volumes are edited primarily as literature and for students and lovers of literature. The series is divided into sections, each in charge of a general editor noted for literary skill and interpretative insight and for his knowledge in the special department under his care: Section 1, English literature, Prof. E. M. Brown, University of Chicago; Section 2, Middle English literature, Prof. Ewald Flügel, Leland Stanford, Jr., University; Section 3, The English drama, Prof. G. P. Baker, Harvard University; Section 4, Literary criticism and literary theory, Prof. C. H. Herford, University of Manchester, England; Section 5, Seventeenth and eighteenth century poets, editor not yet announced; Section 6, Nineteenth century poets, Prof. Richard Burton, recently of University of Minnesota; and Section 7, The English novel, Prof. W. L. Cross, of Yale University. The editors of the separate volumes are among the foremost scholars in this country and Europe. The texts are, as far as possible, the latest edition known to have come under the eye of the author, or else the first edition. They are unexpurgated. The biography, bibliography, notes and glossary serve the general purpose of the series. About thirteen volumes are now ready and it is expected the series will run to 200 volumes.

The Burlington Magazine for February, just brought out here by Robert Grier Cooke, contains an editorial discussion of the "Prospects of Contemporary Painting," refuting the pessimistic view of these who contend that there is no market for modern pictures. In addition to these and editorials on the Strand improvements, the insurance of works of art and on the National Gallery, there are the following papers: [G. F.] "Watts at Burlington House," by Charles Ricketts, who characterizes the great technician as "the great event in England since Turner," and the "most dignified painter since Reynolds;" Part 6 of the "Notes on Pictures in the Royal Collections," in which Lionel Cust considers the examples of Lucas Cranach in the collection, the text being illustrated with two plates and a frontispiece showing Cranach's Adam and Eve, a work worthy of special note; the fourth and concluding part of Julia Cartwright's description of the drawings of Jean-François Millet in the Forbes collection, illustrated with four plates, showing some characteristic portraits; the fifth and concluding part of R. L. Hobson's authoritative article on "Early Staffordshire Wares," being taken up mainly with the Whieldon period, with four plates; the concluding part of Mr. Jourdain's description of the Arthur Blackborne lace collection, with four plates showing some remarkable specimen of Milanese lace; an ingenious description, by Campbell Dodgson, of a woodcut by Schäußelein, entitled "Alexander's Journey to the Sky," which is now reproduced for the first time; also, another instalment of R. S. Clouston's article on "English Furniture Makers," with two plates showing examples of work by members of the Society of Upholsterers and Cabinet Makers. Besides these there are minor notes, a bibliography and correspondence, the whole making a very attractive as well as useful publication.

PICK-UPS.

O. HENRY, author of "Cabbages and Kings," tells a whimsical story of witnessing in the office of a big magazine the return of some manuscript to a dejected looking young man. "I am sorry for that fellow," said the editor. "He came to New York from New Orleans a year ago, and regularly brings some stories to our office which we can never use. He doesn't make a dollar by his pen and is getting shabby and pale." A short time afterward Mr. Henry saw the same writer in the same office and heard the editor urging him to return to New Orleans. "Why," said the young man, "some day I may write a story you may want." "But you can do that just as well in New Orleans," said the editor, "and save board bills." "Board bills! What do I care about board bills. I have an income of $20,000 a year from my father's estate."

Putnam's New Books

De Profundis

By OSCAR WILDE. With portrait after etching by J. E. KELLY.

12mo, net $1.25. (By mail, $1.35).

Written while its unfortunate author was a prisoner in Reading Gaol, De Profundis contains what is probably the most sincere and personal expression of his peculiarly artificial and sensitive nature. He records his bitterness towards society on his downfall, his abject grief during the first months of prison discipline, and then the gradual growth of a repentant spirit and courageous resolve to go out in the world and complete his artistic career.

As a human document De Profundis possesses unique value and interest, and the beauty of its style entitles it to a high place in the literature of the time.

The Kaiser as He Is

Or, The Real Wilhelm II. By HENRI DE NOUSSANNE.

Translated by WALTER LITTLEFIELD.

12mo, net $1.25. (By mail, $1.35.)

A witty, keen, and incisive arraignment of Emperor William II. of Germany. M. de Noussanne has the French capacity for picturesque presentation, and his book is a brilliant commentary on a brilliant man.

The Girl of La Gloria

By CLARA DRISCOLL.

Illustrated in color by H. DITZLER. 12mo, $1.50.

A charming love-story of Texas. There are fascinating descriptions of the rough, romantic life of the plains when men were quick with their love and quicker with their hate. The story moves rapidly with strong, thrilling scenes, and the reader's interest is held to the dramatic close.

A Self-Made Man's Wife

Her Letters to Her Son. Being the Woman's View of Certain Famous Correspondence. By CHARLES EUSTACE MERRIMAN.

Author of "Letters from a Son to His Self-Made Father."

Illustrated by F. T. RICHARDS. 12mo, $1.50.

This book introduces another member of the well-known Graham family of Chicago. The self-made man's wife turns out to have been an amusing, lovable old lady with a very neat wit and a substantial fund of old-fashioned common sense. Her letters to her son show how she brought him up in the way he should go, and one also gathers that she had a good deal to do with the bringing-up of the old self-made merchant himself.

Belchamber

By HOWARD OVERING STURGIS. Author of "All That Was Possible," etc. 12mo, $1.50.

A truthful and particularly engaging novel of very fashionable English society. The people of the book are real personalities, and, in striking contrast to the mere action and incident of the present-day fiction, they change and develop among the influences and circumstances which surround them. Here is "Sainty," the frail and shy boy who becomes Marquis of Belchamber; his stern Scotch mother; Lord Arthur, the handsome, lovable, spendthrift younger brother; and all the others, gay and sad, worldly, selfish, weak, scheming for their own ends, who together make a veritable new "Vanity Fair."

Back to Life!

It has generally been believed that Sherlock Holmes was dead. But that was all a mistake. His last encounter with Prof. Moriarty in the Alpine Pass was not fatal. The truth is told for the first time in "The Adventure of the Empty House," one of the thirteen mysterious stories contained in A. Conan Doyle's new book,

THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

These last stories, so thrilling and exciting, are by far the best that Dr. Doyle has ever written, and now is the chance for every one to secure them in book form. In giving these last adventures of the great detective to the public Dr. Doyle announces it will be

Most Beautiful Volume of Fiction of 1905

The story itself is a romance of great dramatic power—

The title is

“For The White Christ”

A Story of the Days of Charlemagne

By ROBERT AMES BENNET

WHEN “The Thrall of Leif the Lucky” appeared three years ago nothing so striking had ever been seen before. This idea of bringing out “regular price” fiction in a beautifully decorated form has been developed through several successful novels and now reaches its highest point in “For The White Christ.”

¶ The illustrations have been made from paintings in oil by the Kinneys, who are known to excel in the portrayal of mediæval settings.

¶ The book is printed in two colors, each page having a characteristic border in tint.

¶ Every detail of ornamentation has been planned to conform to a consistent scheme of decoration representative of the period.

¶ Finally, as has been stated, the story selected for so beautiful a presentation is in every way worthy of its setting. Its heroes are Roland and Oliver, and the action centers around the great King Charlemagne. For largeness of scene and dramatic intensity it can only be compared to the wonderful legends of the mediæval romancers.

The central character is a zealous priest, a sort of unforgettable figure who gives up a noble life in the land of eternal winter. On the same date they will bring out "The Island Empire," by Vicomte Robert d'Humieres, with a breezy introduction by Rudyard Kipling. M. d'Humieres has written a piquant impression of England that has caused quite a flurry on the other side. The love story tells of the separation of Clearchus, a young Athenian, from Artemesia, his betrothed, on the eve of their wedding, through the machinations of a relative who desires to obtain possession of Clearchus's fortune. Clearchus with two friends, a Theban and a Spartan, go in search of Artemesia, are involved in Alexander's campaigns and have as many adventures as Dumas' immortal guardsmen.

But this book covers a great many other lines of thought. The objects of this book are, to set forth, clearly the fundamental principles of the steam-engine, to give a broad description of constructive practice, to explain fully the working of the machine in its several departments, and to show how to find its efficiency in performance. Manner of presentation and order in development of the subject have been strongly influenced by the fact that it is intended to be a text-book for the use of students; but with this has gone the purpose of making it a complete engineering treatise, in which the theory of the steam-machine shall be put into shape convenient of practical application, and which, on the descriptive side, shall lay a solid foundation for the more special and detailed information which must be gained from experience and from the technical press.—Preface.

Perhaps no part of the history of South Carolina is looked upon by the people of the state as of greater significance than the era of reconstruction. The interest which attaches to the period and the oft-expressed desire that its events be adequately treated with strictly historical method, led the writer to undertake this monograph. What is here offered is an installment of a projected history, already in preparation, of the entire reconstruction movement in South Carolina.

Suspicion is at first cast upon the man's wife, then transferred to a half dozen other persons in succession, whose lives and characters are made deeply interesting as they are brought before the reader as links in the chain of evidence. The men who play detectives are an impetuous young doctor, called to examine the murdered man, and an energetic newspaper man.

"Lady Penelope Brading said that she would tolerate no publicity about her wedding; it should take place with the utmost secrecy, and, furthermore, her husband's identity should not be divulged. She was as good as her word, and Mr. Morley Roberts has based his amusing and ingenious extravaganza of 300 pages on the resultant complications and the efforts of a troop of lovers, motor-car owners, and relations, not to mention 'the dear Bishop,' to discover (1) whether Penelope was married, or a 'story-teller'; (2) who her mysterious partner was; and (3) whether the baby was 'adopted' or otherwise."—London Literary World.

Rouse, Adelaide Louise. The letters of Theodora. N. Y., Macmillan, 1905. [F.] c. 4+307 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Theodora Varney, a North Dakota girl of twenty-six, left the western college where she was teaching and came to New York to make her living as a writer. In letters to her only brother and to women friends she tells her experiences in boarding-houses while her manuscripts keep coming back. She also becomes lecturer and the letters are full of bright thoughts on English writing authors. She almost marries a congressman for his money, but repents and goes through much hard thinking. A faithful boy lover, Latin professor at Columbia University and a successful essayist and poet, finally makes her merge her literary ambitions in his career.

"The Red Inn" is the meeting place of the Catholic followers of the king, who are in arms against laws which force the priest to take an oath of allegiance to the state. The leading characters come together at the Red Inn, and are betrayed by a member of the Paris Committee of Public Safety, taken to Paris, imprisoned and only rescued by a trick under the very shadow of the guillotine.

The translator says: "There are works on the steam turbine in English, but none in which the subject is so exhaustively treated from a purely scientific standpoint as in Prof. Stodola's work, now considered the standard authority on the subject in Europe; and there is no branch of machine design in which a complete knowledge of the theory involved is so necessary as in turbine design. For this reason, it is hoped that this volume will prove helpful, not only to designers and engineers, but to students of technical schools, and those interested generally in turbine development."

Valera must be counted among the realists of Spanish fiction. His "Comendador Mendoza" is one of his best achievements. "For loftiness of tone," says Prof. Schwill, "for consummate skill in the presentation of the chief characters, notably of the Comendador, for ease and grace of description, this novel deserves to be set by the side of his universally known "Pepita Jiménez."

The author of this interesting account of a revolutionary incident, was born near Port Jervis, N. Y., in 1829, and died in Jersey City in 1898. He was a lawyer of prominence and the author of "The history of Hudson County," etc. His article on the Block-House originally appeared in a magazine, nearly twenty-five years ago. NOTES ON AUTHORS.

HENRY RIDER HAGGARD arrived in New York March 2. He will remain in this country about three months to investigate the agricultural and industrial land settlements of the Salvation Army with a view of applying the scheme to South Africa.

MAXIM GORKY was released February 27, on $5000 bail, and immediately rearrested and conveyed to Riga pending deportation to some distant city or province where his continued residence, it is thought, will not be so dangerous to the welfare of the government as it would be in St. Petersburg.

DR. W. H. DRUMMOND is preparing for G. P. Putnam's Sons a new volume of verse to be entitled "The Voyageur," which the author says represents work done only while in the humor for it, and therefore his best. Work better than the author's "Johnnie Courteau" can hardly be imagined, and promises a treat indeed.

THE people of Denmark are preparing to celebrate the centenary of Hans Christian Andersen with all pomp and ceremony. He was born at Odense on April 2, 1805, and the inhabitants of his native town will, of course, pay special honor to his memory. A tablet already exists on the façade of the home of his childhood.

MISS BARBARA YECHTON, whose stories for boys and girls are well known, has written another tale, entitled "Some Adventures of Jack and Jill." It is to be published by Dodd, Mead & Co. Miss Yechton's children are human; they have the thoughts and talk of everyday boys and girls, and play like them. The scene of her new story is in the West Indies, and is said to be full of wholesome adventure and fun.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 4, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

FURTHER PROTECTION TO FOREIGN AUTHORS.

THE bill amending the copyright law with reference to books in foreign languages, as finally passed in the House on March 1, is to be regarded rather as an expression of good will to the Continental author from the friends of justice to foreign authors in this country, than as a measure which, in their opinion, furnishes that protection to a work in a foreign language which its projectors had hoped it would give, and which it would have given had the amendment become law as originally drafted. However, inadequate as it may appear to those striving after the ideal, the amendment undoubtedly furnishes a law with a practical working basis. For the first time the foreign author and his publishers are afforded a fair opportunity to make arrangements for publication here. Even if anticipated by an unauthorized translation, if the author of the original provides a translation within the term of twelve months from date of publication, he is guarded against further piracy during the full term of the copyright. As reprinters rarely depend upon their own judgment in selecting works for reissue, in fact, as they begin their practices only after a book has been exploited and a market made for it, the author of a German, French or Italian book, who gives notice of the privilege of reserving copyright in the United States, is now, as far as the law is concerned, practically as well off as the English author hitherto has been, who has been obliged to print his book simultaneously in this country and abroad. It will prove of especial advantage in the case of books prepared in collaboration by English and American and foreign authors, which, under the present provision, may be planned for with much more security to the advantage of all concerned.

No satisfactory law has ever sprung full blown from any legislature. But as a step forward and in the right direction the present bill is deserving of recognition. It should furthermore emphasize the desirability of the appointment of a commission of experts for the revision of the entire statute relating to copyright. Indeed, but recently the report of the Senate Committee on Patents recommended a conference for the consideration of such revision. Irrespective of certain material changes that ought to be made in the provisions of the present law, it is very important to bring the wording of these provisions into some consistent and congruous form.

END OF THE BLODGETT SUITS.

THE case of William T. Blodgett, the executor of the estate of Mrs. Abbie B. Blodgett, his mother, against George D. Sproul, the publisher of subscription books, was settled out of court on February 28, thus averting public hearing of the most interesting action ever brought to set aside a contract made with a book agent.

The Sproul case was the fifth of such actions brought by Mr. Blodgett as executor of his mother's estate, to be settled. Of these, four were arranged by conferences between opposing counsel, and the fifth (that of Blodgett vs. Norcross) went in favor of the plaintiff by default, defendant's attorney announcing that his client was out of the State and unable to appear.

These contracts aggregated claims to the amount of $283,770 for books purchased by a woman seventy-five years old, whose total estate was valued only at about twice that amount.

Mrs. Blodgett, who died last July, lived in New York City part of each year during her life, and spent the remaining months at her country home at Fishkill-on-the-Hudson. She was a woman of more than ordinary education and culture, whose judgment up to a few years before her death was unquestionably good.

Within the three years preceding her death, however, Mrs. Blodgett was almost continuously a sufferer from heart disease, and the natural weakening of the system resulting from her advanced age. During this period, she entered into these contracts for books, agreeing to pay over a quarter of a million dollars in instalments, the last of which would not fall due until 1917, or after the time when she might reasonably have expected to live.

One of the orders secured by an agent for Mr. Sproul from Mrs. Blodgett was for a set of the St. Dunstan edition of the works of Charles Dickens, in 112 volumes of text and 18 volumes of illustrations and Dickensiana, at $1000 a volume, making $130,000 in all.

The settlement of the Sproul case came as a disappointment to a number of dealers in rare books, one of whom is reported to have said to reporter of the New York Evening Post: "I congratulate the defence on its wisdom in settling. The unfortunate thing for those who have to defend in court such prices as $1000 a volume for a set of Dickens, is that there are records of sales and auctions which can be referred to the more readily because every dealer in rare books has to keep them, and remember them all the time in his business. Now, this St. Dunstan edition may or may not recommend itself as being worth $1000 a volume, but it has been sold for considerably less. As for the other St. Dunstan volumes, twelve of which brought $18,000 on an agreement to pay that amount, I can only say that at a recent auction, these books sold to Mrs. Blodgett at a valuation of $1500 each, only brought an average of $100. It is a pity, after all, that some of the evidence which could have been submitted in this case was not presented."

While the terms of settlement were naturally kept secret by the attorneys interested in the case, it is generally understood that quite a little less than $10,000 was paid in settlement of the largest claim. Altogether, the saving to the Blodgett estate in consequence of the prompt action of the executor is estimated to be more than $150,000.

"EMPIRE BOOK HOUSE" CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

CHARLES E. PHILLIPS, according to a special despatch to the New York Times, was arrested in Chicago on February 26, by Post Office Inspectors on a charge of using the United States mails to defraud. Phillips conducted a concern known in the literature which he sent broadcast as the "Empire Book House."

Post Office Inspector W. T. Fletcher said complaint was first made to him at Indianapolis. An advertisement was given to him requesting men wishing positions to send $5 to the Fidelity Employment Agency at Terre Haute, Ind., and to the Guarantee Employment Agency at Cleveland, O.

After this $5 had been sent in, it is said the person received a letter from Phillips at Chicago explaining the position would be that of a travelling salesman at $60 a month salary and commission, including expenses. A request was made for $25 for security. After the $25 had been sent it is alleged that nothing further was heard about the position by the person sending the money.

Four other arrests have been made during the past week in connection with the same concern.

COPYRIGHT LAW AMENDED TO PROTECT TRANSLATIONS.

THE following amendment to the copyright law passed both Houses this week and was signed by the President on March 3:

Amendment to the bill (H. R. 6847) to amend section 4952 of the Revised Statutes, viz: Strike out all after line 8, page 2, and insert the following:

Whenever the author or proprietor of a book in a foreign language, which shall be published in a foreign country before the day of publication in this country, or his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall deposit one complete copy of the same, including all maps and other illustrations, in the Library of Congress, Washington, District of Columbia, within thirty days after the first publication of such book in a foreign country, and shall insert in such copy, and in all copies of such book sold or distributed in the United States, on the title-page or the page immediately following, a notice of the reservation of copyright in the name of the proprietor, together with the true date of first publication of such book, in the following words: "Published —, nineteen hundred and —. Privilege of copyright in the United States reserved under the Act approved —, nineteen hundred and five, by —," and shall, within twelve months after the first publication of such book in a foreign country, file the title of such book and deposit two copies of it in the original language, or, at his option, of a translation of it in the English language, printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, containing a notice of copyright, as provided by the copyright laws now in force, he and they shall have during the term of twenty-eight years from the date of recording the title of the book or of the English translation of it, as provided for above, the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, vending, translating, and dramatizing the said book: Provided, That this Act shall only apply to a citizen or subject of a foreign State or nation when such foreign State or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens.

MS. OF "AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE" CHANGES HANDS.

JOHN PIERPONT MORGAN purchased this week from Tristram Coffin the original manuscript of Oliver Wendell Holmes's "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

James R. Osgood was the first owner of the manuscript and retained it until his death. It was sold when his estate was settled, and fell into the hands of Mr. Coffin. Several of the pages were then missing and at his request Dr. Holmes, who was then alive, rewrote them.

The manuscript contains about three hundred closely written quarto pages and includes the poems, "The Wonderful One Horse Shay," "The Chambered Nautilus," "Parson Turell's Legacy" and "The Living Temple."

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE ANNUAL MEETING.

THE annual meeting of the Booksellers' League will be held at the Aldine Association on the evening of March 8, at 6:30. The business meeting and the election of officers will succeed the usual dinner. After that the Hon. Walter C. Burton, ex-Senator of New Jersey, and Major E. S. Turner, of the Merwin-Clayton Sales Company, will address the League.

CHICAGO STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE CHICAGO STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION gave its third annual dinner at the Auditorium on February 18, nearly two hundred persons being present. In the absence of the president, John B. Fay, who is on his way to Europe, Henry F. Sawtell, the vice-president, introduced Fletcher B. Gibbs, the toastmaster of the evening.

Mr. Gibbs, in speaking of the National Stationers' Association, said that to-day it was one cohesive body. Almost every local association had joined the National Association, besides several individual concerns. A very fine official verbatim report of the National Convention of Stationers and Manufacturers, which was given with the compliments of Geyer's Stationer, had been issued, which, Mr. Gibbs said, would be distributed to the members within the next two weeks. The prospects are that the National Convention will be held in St. Louis next fall.

The Lotus Quartette opened the programme and was followed by William P. Williams, Assistant United States Treasurer, who spoke on "Good Fellowship;" the Rev. James S. Stone; John A. Schlener, who represented the Minneapolis Stationers' Association; W. B. Boorum, of New York; E. H. Clarke, of Memphis, Tenn.; George Olney; Tom James and W. H. Hopkins, of Cincinnati, and F. W. Dawes, president of the American Press Association.

NEW YORK STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

UPWARDS of 170 members of the retail stationery trade of New York City attended the informal dinner arranged by the committee appointed by the Stationers' Board of Trade to organize a local association. The dinner was given at the St. Denis Hotel, on the evening of March 1, at which the New York

Stationers' Association was formally organized. A Constitution and By-Laws were presented and adopted and the following officers were elected: Theodore L. C. Gerry, of Gerry & Murray, 70 Broad Street, president; A. C. Bainbridge, vice-president, and Andrew Geyer, secretary. The meeting was quite enthusiastic as to the future of the Association, and much good to the individual members promises to result.

STATIONERS' CLUB OF NEW ORLEANS.

THE STATIONERS' CLUB of New Orleans, La., celebrated its second anniversary with a banquet at the Hotel de la Louisiane, on the evening of February 11. Twenty-one were present. Colonel T. J. COMMUNICATIONS.

ANOTHER BOOKSELLER'S VIEW OF HIS MISSION.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

I READ with surprise in your last issue Mr. R. E. Sherwood's views of his "mission," in answer to Mr. Arthur Brisbane's* address to The Booksellers' League. The word mission is in my opinion a good definition of a bookseller's calling; he should above all be a missionary—not, however, in a religious sense, but as Mr. Brisbane expressed it, "the booksellers are the shepherds of the reading world" . . . "a man who takes a high and generous view of his work in life."

I agree with Mr. Brisbane that "more than money we want our own self-respect, the right to feel that we are of some use in the world, and use to others." . . . "If he makes people buy the good books and leave the bad ones alone he is a Bookseller and he is useful. Otherwise he is of no more importance than the others that are 'hearers' only and not 'doers of the word.'"

[* In our issue for February 18, we inadvertently said that Mr. Sherwood's letter was called out by Brisbane Walker's remarks.—Ed. P. W.]

I do not agree with Mr. Sherwood that to follow these instructions is a "certain method of committing commercial suicide." Why should it be less profitable in a commercial sense to sell good books than to sell bad ones? I have been long enough in the business—thirty-five years—to know that it does not require a bookseller to sell the bad books—they sell themselves, but a bookseller by explaining the nature of the book can often influence his customer to buy a better one.

Tastes differ and it is certainly "like ordering dinner for another person to eat," to suit these tastes; but it is not so difficult a matter to order something wholesome rather than poison, for the reason that the latter has met with popular favor and sells.

The public has a right to ask a bookseller's opinion of a book, and it is the duty of the bookseller to express his opinion honestly, even if he should by chance select the wrong dish. I do not believe he will lose trade by so doing, and he may still have inscribed on his tombstone, "here lies a successful book merchant."

CHAS. A. BURKHARDT.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN BYRNE, of the firm of John Byrne & Co., dealers in new and second-hand law books, 1322 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., died in that city on February 25, at the age of forty-six.

GUY NEWELL BOOTHBY, the novelist, died in London, February 27. Mr. Boothby was born at Adelaide, South Australia, October 13, 1867. In 1891 he crossed Australia from north to south, travelled in the East and then settled in London. His first success as a novelist was with his novel "In Strange Company." This was followed by over twenty stories in so comparatively short a time that it became a standing joke that Boothby had invented a machine by which he turned his stories out.

DAVID HENRY TRIPP, the well-known Peoria (Ill.) bookseller, died February 4. Mr. Tripp was born in Decatur, Otsego County, N. Y., November 24, 1828, and went to Peoria in 1851 as book agent. Shortly after reaching Peoria he took a position in the bookstore of Henry Nolte, with whom he remained until 1860, when, with his brother, S. S. Tripp, he established himself in business at 208 Main Street, where it continues under the firm name of D. H. Tripp & Son, the junior partner being Stephen H. Tripp. The late Mr. Tripp was prominent in Masonic circles.

SIR THOMAS WEMYSS REID, author, editor and publisher, died at South Kensington, London, February 26. Sir Thomas was born in 1842 at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng. He was editor of the Preston Guardian in 1864, and of the Leeds Mercury from 1870 to 1887, when he resigned to become general manager and director of Cassell & Co. He also edited The Speaker from its foundation until 1899. In 1894 he was knighted for services to letters and politics. Among his publications were a monograph on "Charlotte Brontë," "The Land of the Bey," "Life of the Right Hon. W. E. Forster," "Life of Lord Playfair," "Life of William Black," "Cabinet Portraits," sketches of leading English statesmen of both parties, "Gabrille Stuart, the Flower of Greeman," "Gladys Fane, a story of two lives," "Mauleverer's Millions," etc. He edited the "Life of W. E. Gladstone."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

DANA ESTES & Co. announce a large third edition of "Japan: the Place and the People," by G. Waldo Browne.

JOHN W. LUCE & Co. have just brought out George Bernard Shaw's clever essay entitled "On Going to Church."

LEE & SHEPARD have just ready a pamphlet by Henry Wood, entitled "Arbitrary Price-Making Through the Forms of Law," in which the author discusses the proper limits of governmental supervision or interference in railroad transportation.

MRS. BERTHA WILLIAMS, well known to the booktrade through her long connection with Rothschild's at Chicago, and with Lit Brothers of Philadelphia, has assumed charge of the book department of the Joseph Horne Company at Pittsburg, Pa.

THE N. D. THOMPSON PUBLISHING Co., St. Louis, Mo., have brought out an edition of the so-called Jefferson Bible, the manuscript of which is the possession of the United States government and a facsimile of which in a limited edition was published last year by order of Congress.

GEORGE BARRIE & SONS, Philadelphia, have just published an important work on "The Republic of Chile, its growth, resources and industrial conditions," by Marie Robinson Wright, author of "Picturesque Mexico," etc. The volume contains 350 illustrations and is sumptuously gotten up.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in preparation a book of dramatic sketches dealing with the personal and human side of the Russo-Japanese war. It bears the title, "The Yellow War." The author occupies a prominent enough position to be forced to conceal his identity under the anonymous signature of "O."

A. WESSELS COMPANY will publish shortly "Cartoons in Rhyme and Line," by Sir Wilfrid Lawson, the "Lobby Laureate," and F. Carruthers Gould, which covers the chief political events of a series of years. The work may in fact be almost regarded as presenting the rhyming chronicle of the last few decades of parliamentary and political life.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have in press "An Outline of the Phonology and Morphology of Old Provençal," a guide for students of romance philology, by Professor C. H. Grandgent of Harvard University; also, Chateaubriand's "Atala," with notes and vocabulary by Professor L. O. Kuhns, Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will supply the American market with the report of the English Church Congress of 1904, held at Liverpool. It discusses, exhaustively, many topics of immediate importance, among others the "Decline in Church Attendance," "Intemperance," "The Problems of Poverty," "Supply of Candidates for the Ministry," "Ethics of Commerce," and "Church Unity."

S. N. D. NORTH, of the United States Census Bureau, Washington, has prepared a memoir of the late Dr. Edward North, for fifty-eight years professor of Greek and Literature in Hamilton College, which will be entitled "Old Greek: the old-time professor in the old-fashioned college, an autobiographical memoir of Dr. Edward North." The volume will be ready in April, and advance orders are solicited.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have ready to-day besides Forman's novel, "Tommy Carteret," and Wise's novel, "The Lion's Skin," a valuable manual for the concert-goer on "Chopin," by G. C. Ashton. Under the head of each musical production the author has collected all the information available as to its origin and meaning, an arrangement that is calculated to help the music lover greatly in comprehending the meaning of the compositions.

ROBERT GRIER COOKE has in press a volume entitled "Casual Essays of The Sun," which will contain a large number of the representative editorials that have appeared in The New York Sun during the past twenty years. These editorials embrace varied subjects touching upon topics in the alpha and omega of human interest, whether in the discussion of the President's title, success in life, good English, matrimony, or happiness in general.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish at once a little volume, entitled "The Story of the Welsh Revival," which is composed of accounts given by W. T. Stead, editor of the English Review of Reviews, the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, the Rev. E. W. Moore, Evan Hopkins and other eye witnesses, together with an account and sketch of Evan Roberts, the central figure of the movement, and an interview with Mr. Roberts himself by Arthur Goodrich, an American newspaper correspondent.

THE FRANKLIN PRESS, 39 W. Congress Street, Detroit, Mich., of which A. H. Finn is manager, will publish for the Easter season a volume of poetry by Mrs. Alice Elinor Bartlett, to be entitled "Birch Leaves." Mrs. Bartlett is the author of four novels, "A New Aristocracy," "Until the Day Break," "The Spirit of the Inland Seas," "The Mystery of the Monogram," and much newspaper and magazine prose and verse. Her new volume will be artistically bound in imitation birch bark, and handsomely illustrated.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co., 289 Fourth Avenue, New York, have secured the exclusive rights for the future picture publications of Howard Chandler Christy, and all drawings by Mr.

Christy issued in separate picture form hereafter will be published by them. A new set of "Pastels in Colors," by Mr. Christy, will be ready early in the spring. A fuller announcement of this set and of future picture publications will be made later. Correspondence concerning the reproductions and the originals of Mr. Christy's future pictures is solicited.

JAMES POTT & Co. announce a volume entitled "To-day on the Nile," by H. W. Dunning, Ph.D., member of the American Oriental Society and formerly instructor in Semitic languages and literature in Yale University. Mr. Dunning has just started on his sixth trip up the Nile. He has been a traveller in many lands and is eminently qualified, not only to write intimately about Egypt, but to instil into his pages the true spirit of travel. Mr. Dunning expects to be absent on his present trip until May. He will spend the summer in the United States, completing his book and supervising the matter of illustrations, which will be elaborate.

JOHN LANE announces for early publication several novels of literary merit. "The Morals of Marcus Odeyne," by William J. Locke, is a fine psychological study by one of the ablest writers of romance; "A Prince to Order," by Charles Stokes Wayne, tells a story of double identity; "Dear Fatherland," another picture of loose morals in German military circles by Lieutenant Bilse, author of "Life in a Garrison Town;" "Constance West," a novel of life in the wilds of Canada, by E. R. Punshon; "Widdicombe," a novel of the Devonshire moors by Miss Willcocks; and "The Twentieth Century Child," by Edward H. Cooper, author of "Wyemmark and the Sea Fairies."

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY will publish at once a timely volume apropos the recent correspondence between General Nelson A. Miles and Mrs. Jefferson Davis, relating to the alleged ill-treatment of the late President of the Confederate States. It is entitled "Prison Life of Jefferson Davis," and written by Colonel John J. Craven. The volume is a reissue of the edition of 1866, and gives an account of the arrival of Mr. Davis, his incarceration and all the details that have led up to the present controversy, with copies of the official reports, etc., and a portrait of the author, who was chief medical officer at Fortress Monroe during the entire time of the imprisonment of Mr. Davis.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published a volume entitled "The Spinning and Twisting of Long Vegetable Fibres," by Herbert R. Carter, being a practical manual of the most modern methods as applied to the hackling, carding, preparing, spinning, and twisting of the long vegetable fibres of commerce, including flax, hemp, jute, tow and ramie. The book has a full index and 161 illustrations, embracing 10 plates. They will bring out shortly Harris Dickson's new novel, "The Ravanel," a story of the South of to-day, with illustrations by Seymour M. Stone. Mr. Dickson has just been elevated to the bench of his native city, being the first occupant of the new Municipal Court, recently created in Vicksburg.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS is about to publish "Cantonese Love Songs," in two volumes, one containing the Chinese text with glossary and the other a translation by Cecil Clementi of Hong Kong. Mr. Clementi also contributes an introduction in which he explains the origin of the songs and their importance, and gives a short account of their author. The "Select Documents Illustrative of the History of the French Revolution," which L. G. Wickham Legg has edited, will be ready immediately in two volumes. This work is an attempt to tell the story of the Revolution almost in the words of the Frenchmen of the time; it is composed of extracts from strictly contemporaneous writings, mainly from the periodical literature of the time.

THE wholesale export of old books from Germany to America at times embarrasses the savants of the fatherland. About thirty years ago, for instance, Westermann (now Lemcke & Buechner) sold a little book of some thirty pages which now turns out to be absolutely unique, and is very much needed for the completion of the history of the reformation in Constance. It is described by Kuczynski (No. 2540) as: [Spreter, Johann] Form und Ordnung wie von dem Pfarrer zu sant Steffan in Constantz vnd seinen Curaten mit Tauffen, Richten, Infeuren vnd den abgestorbenen gehalten weurt. Ohne Ort und Jahr. 2 Bogen. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of this booklet would confer a favor by notifying Prof. Johannes Ficker, Strassburg i. E., Germany, or W. W. Rockwell, Andover, Mass.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish at once "French Songs of Old Canada." The old ballads are printed in the original French, with the tunes to which they were sung. There are also translations into modern English verse. In addition to its interest for folk-lore students the book has an appeal to art lovers. The feature of the edition is its many illustrations which are reproductions in the original colors of sketches by W. Graham Robertson. The book is a large quarto artistically printed on hand-made paper. There are but one hundred copies for America. They are just bringing out the first volume of Professor A. H. J. Greenidge's "History of Rome," which deals with the period from the Tribune of Tiberius Gracchus to the second Consulate of Marius. The author gives a detailed exposition of the conditions determining the conflict of interests with which the social and economic history of Rome begins.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready the third volume of "The Original Journals of the Lewis and Clark Expedition," with facsimile illustrations of original drawings, maps, etc. They will soon publish another story by George Barr McCutcheon, whose successful novel, "Beverly of Graustark," is now in its 11th edition. The new story is entitled "The Purple Parasol," and will be illustrated in colors by Harrison Fisher. They will add to their edition of the Barssetshire and Parliamentary Novels of Trollope a new series, to be called the Manor House Novels. "Orley Farm," the first title to be published in the new series, is generally considered the best story Trollope ever wrote. Other titles will be published later. They will publish shortly a record book for use of automobilists, arranged as a journal for accounts of runs, expenses, specifications of the machine, etc. It will be made small enough to slip in the pocket and will have place for maps of routes, and should prove to be a great convenience to every owner of a motor car.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready Mrs. Sara Andrew Shafer's new book, "Beyond Chance of Change," in which life, especially child life, in the Middle West during the late sixties is pictured with charm and interest. They will publish shortly the long-delayed seventh volume of Temple Scott's excellent edition of Swift's works; Frederic Harrison's "Life of Chatham" in the series of Twelve English Statesmen; Levasseur's "Elements of Political Economy," in a translation by Theodore Marburg; also Professor Isaac Phillips Roberts's book on "The Horse," a particularly valuable addition to the well-known Rural Science Series, in which are discussed all the details of the breeding and care of horses, with special reference to their use as farm animals. For later publication they announce a volume entitled "How to Write: a handbook based on the English Bible," by Charles Sears Baldwin, assistant professor of rhetoric in Yale University, that is said to make available for practical use the value of the English Bible as a model of style, which has often been attested by men of letters; also "Nero," a new play by Stephen Phillips.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will publish March 18 "For the White Christ," a story of the days of Charlemagne, by Robert Ames Bennet, with illustrations from paintings in oil by the Kinneys, who excel in the portrayal of mediæval settings. Since the publication of "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky," by O. A. Liljencrantz, this house has made a specialty of well-printed, handsomely illustrated, finely bound novels within the ordinary price of current fiction, and the newcomer will be as generously equipped as its forerunners in the past three years. Other works of fiction for the spring include "The Flower of Destiny," by William Dana Orcutt, a romance of the Empress Eugenie; "Julia," a charming story of Irish life by Katharine Tynan; and "An Old Man's Idyl," a middle-aged love story by Wolcott Johnson. Other books of interest in preparation include Theodore Thomas, a musical autobiography, edited by George P. Upton; "Iowa: the first free state of the Louisiana Purchase," by William Salter; "From the West to the West," by Abigail Scott Duniway, a chronicle of a journey across the plains in the early fifties; and "Letters from an Oregon Ranch," which tells of the life of a settler in the Far West.

Out To-Day—Good Sellers

By
Justus Miles
Forman

Author of
"Journeys End"

"TOMMY CARTERET"

THIS is Mr. Forman's longest and most ambitious work. It is a love story of real charm and sentiment; but the dramatic element is furnished by a mysterious and terrible visitation which falls upon "young Tommy," and which for a time comes between him and the object of his desire. Mr. Forman has scientific authority for the "progressive hallucination" which forms the basis of this portion of the tale—but it will doubtless arouse much discussion. (Illustrated in color by Foley. $1.50.)

By
John
S.
Wise

Author of
"The End of an Era"

"THE LION'S SKIN"

THE incisive pen of Mr. John S. Wise has filled this "true novel" of Virginia during the Reconstruction with incidents and anecdotes that cling in the memory. Mr. Wise's "End of an Era" ran through thirteen printings, and this story of the history he knows so intimately will appeal strongly to many thousands of readers. ($1.50.)

A Handbook

By
G. C.

"CHOPIN"

THIS valuable manual for the concert-goer is also out to-day. Under the head of each musical piece Mr. Jonson has collected all the information available as to its origin and meaning, assisting the music-lover greatly in comprehension. (Net, $1.50. Postage, 15 cents.)

An Important and Timely Book

PRISON LIFE OF JEFFERSON DAVIS

By Bvt. Lt. Col. John J. Craven.

With a portrait of the author, who was chief medical officer at Fortress Monroe during the entire time of the imprisonment of Mr. Davis.

The reissue of this work gives a correct account of the arrival of Mr. Davis, his incarceration, the placing of the shackles on his ankles and sets forth a true version of all that has led up to the present controversy and contains many truths not recently recalled.

Copies of the official reports sent to the commanding officer, Brevet Major General Nelson A. Miles, at Fortress Monroe, by Col. Craven and bearing on the prisoner's physical and mental condition from time to time are given in full.

As a matter of history this book will be of vital interest, and will recall many incidents and scenes not only to participants in the Civil War but to the present generation.

On Going to Church

By G. Bernard Shaw

The most brilliant and characteristic of all his writings, giving the best insight to the personality of the most widely read and discussed of contemporaneous English writers.

All who are familiar with Mr. Shaw's "Plays, Pleasant and Unpleasant" and "Man and Superman," and his recent contributions to the stage, "Candida" and "You Never Can Tell," will appreciate the charming naiveté with which the author takes the reader to his heart and in his inimitable blending of satire and simplicity reveals freely much of his intimate thought.

Issued in cloth with paper labels, similar to the Shaw books recently published in this country.

Rarely have I read a book so full of rich and natural humor, so full of life-like and dramatic episodes, so replete with human interest. I regard it as one of the best works of fiction written during the last decade.”

The UNWRITTEN LAW

(A Novel.) By ARTHUR HENRY, author of "The House in the Woods," "An Island Cabin."
12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The Unwritten Law, a story dramatic and intensely human, is, in many respects, a departure from traditions governing our fiction. It pictures the play of ambition, love, religion, friendship and passion in the society of this day and country, with a fidelity and fearlessness unusual in our novels. It is justified by the scope of the book, its force, its appeal to sympathy and the truth, it reveals. In these pages, people speak and think, they suffer and find delight, they succeed and fail, not according to artistic and orthodox theories, but as they do in life.

HECLA SANDWITH, by Edward Uffington Valentine is an old fashioned love story of the kind we all love, and something more than a love story, an excellent study of character and a thoroughly charming and faithful picture of life in the fifties in a Pennsylvania town. It was to be expected that Mr. Valentine's novel should prove a work of art, finished in detail, and beautiful in color; but "Hecla Sandwith" adds to the graceful touch of the poet the strength of the realist and the imagination of the romancer.

FOR THE WHITE CHRIST

A Story of
The Days of Charlemagne

Altogether unlike any novel of recent years, its breadth, its dramatic intensity of action and largeness of scene, and the imposing figures that constitute its leading characters, justify a comparison with the fine old romances of days gone by.

Roland and Oliver are its heroes, and who needs to be reminded that neither history nor fiction offers two that are nearer the ideal of daring and chivalry? Nor is it all of war and fighting, for there is Queen Hildegarde, and her lovely daughter, and Fastrada, whose beautiful, sinister personality has a power greater than all the rest—except at the last.

The publishers feel that Mr. Bennet's great and powerful story has received a worthy setting in the consistent and striking decorations and illustrations in color by the Kinneys

"The relations of the United States with the Barbary powers a century ago form an interesting and romantic episode in American history which has never before been presented as a complete story. While the picturesque exploits of Preble and Decatur are familiar, other adventures of American seamen and consuls among the pirates of the Mediterranean have escaped notice, or are barely mentioned in most histories. A little book setting forth the origin and history of the Negro race—the title of Negro being objectional to the author, who is a dark-skinned woman herself—hence she calls them "a peculiar people." She notes the disadvantages they have lived under in the past and present, their faults, failings, gifts and many talents, and predicts that a great future is in their own hands. Some good common sense advice is given them, particularly to the mothers. The publisher is a colored person, being Mrs. Chase's son, a lad of 17, his maternal grandparents having been slaves.

A stirring tale of adventure on the confines of civilization, as full of romance and incident as any novel, is this reprint of a well-known classic. Thomas H. Benton now one of the almost forgotten figures in American political life, sat for thirty consecutive years in the United States Senate. He died just before the Civil War, and died fighting for the preservation of the Union. His political career began with the passage of the Missouri Compromise and practically closed with its repeal. It is to the extraordinary career of this man that this volume is dedicated. It is one of the opening volumes of a new series, to embrace biographies of prominent men North and South, who took part in the great sectional struggle. In this series, the publishers state, the Civil War will not be treated as a rebellion. Bibliography (2 p.).

Rowland, H. C. The wanderers: a novel; frontispiece in col. by Charlotte Weber. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1905. [F.] c. 3+392 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The master passion with Arthur Brown, the celebrated marine painter, was what he called the "wander-fever." This was what brought about all the remarkable adventures of this bright story. A telegram notifies him, when at Malaga, that an old classmate is at Gibraltar, on board a fine schooner, which he owns, where he is asked to join him. By accident two Americans, one a married woman and a trained nurse, the other daughter of a Smithsonian professor, also drift to the schooner. The result is a wonderful trip to the South Seas which is rich both in love making and startling episodes of various kinds.

Sanders, Mary F. Honoré de Balzac, his life and writings. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1905. [F.] c. 17+377 p. por. O. cl., $3 net.

A new life of Balzac based upon new material and fresh researches. The lives we are already acquainted with were written before the appearance of a work called "Lettres à l'Etranger" a collection of letters written by him from 1833 to 1844 to Madame Hanska, the Polish lady who afterwards became his wife. The author largely makes use of this mine of biographical detail, the result being an extremely fresh and interesting work, of which Miss Sanders says: "It is not intended to add to the mass of criticism of Balzac's novels, being merely an attempt to portray the man as he was, and to sketch correctly a career which has been said to be more thrilling than a large proportion of novels."

Sturgis, Howard Overing. Belchamber. N. Y., Putnam, 1905. 4+360 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Belchamber was one of the most beautiful show places in England. The heir to this home and grand old name, with his younger brother, are the heroes of a modern story of high life, which is by no means a flattering picture of the English "smart" set. Both brothers make unhappy marriages with women almost entirely devoid of honor or morality. Many scenes of intrigue and contention make up the novel.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

MARCH 11, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

THE COPYRIGHT AMENDMENT REGARDING TRANSLATIONS.

ON March 3, by signature of the President, the bill amending the Copyright Act in respect to the translation of works in foreign languages became law. This was the only copyright legislation completed during the session, the Typographical Union amendment requiring publishers to make affidavits in connection with copyright entries, though reported favorably from book committees, having failed to reach a vote. A very important action, however, came from the Senate Committee, in favor of a general revision of the copyright code and authorizing the Librarian of Congress to take steps to confer with those interested with a view to determining the lines of revision.

The new amendment, printed in full elsewhere, is accompanied by a careful circular of directions from the Copyright Office which makes clear to foreign authors just what steps are necessary to take advantage of the amendment. The amendment itself provides that a work in a foreign language may be deposited in the Copyright Office within thirty days after publication abroad, and if the book bears a printed notice of reservation then it is provisionally protected during a period of twelve months from reprinting or translation. If an edition is manufactured either in the original or in translation in the United States within the twelve months then full copyright may be obtained in the usual manner for the regular period of twenty-eight years.

This amendment, which is in better shape than that originally proposed, will be received by the authors of France and Germany in particular, as an important and welcome concession. It has, of course, the corresponding disadvantage that reprint cannot be made for twelve months, should the author not avail himself of the provisions of law, but it must be admitted that he has as fair right to his own creation during this period as he has the right to reserve a book from publication after he has completed it, for such period as he may choose.

The law does not extend to all the signatories of the Berne treaty, but only to those countries which have reciprocal arrangements with the United States. This includes most of the leading literary countries, with the exception of Norway and Sweden, which are members of the Berne convention, but have been, we think, dissatisfied with our international copyright arrangements; Russia and Austria-Hungary, which are not parties to the Berne convention; and Japan, which though a signatory power has definitely withheld from reciprocal arrangements with the United States, because of its dissatisfaction with our limitations on international copyright, but which is now understood to be negotiating a copyright treaty. It is to be regretted that the countries of Björnson and of Tolstoi are not brought into literary relation with us under the new amendment, but this cannot be helped under present circumstances; and we can only hope that in the proposed revision of our own international copyright code and in the recognition within other countries of our peculiar conditions here, there may be fewer and fewer exceptions as to reciprocal arrangement, as the years go by until all countries are united in an international copyright convention on the lines of the Berne treaty, as all are now united, China excepted, in the Universal Postal Union.

We print elsewhere the letter of Mr. George Haven Putnam to the London Standard, which has called out so much comment as to make it desirable that it should be put on record in full. It is interesting also at this time, when a movement for general copyright revision is on foot, as an authoritative summary of the conditions of the passage of the bill of '91, and of its workings in the fourteen years since its enactment. The Standard, which has recently become a Chamberlain organ, upholding the theory of protection, omitted certain passages from Mr. Putnam's letter which are given within brackets in this reprint of it.

THE COPYRIGHT AMENDMENT REGARDING TRANSLATIONS.

THE following is the text of the international copyright amendment regarding translations passed by the fifty-eighth congress, third session, and approved by the President March 3, 1905:

An Act to amend Section forty-nine hundred and fifty-two of the Revised Statutes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section forty-nine hundred and fifty-two of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4952. The author, inventor, designer, or proprietor of any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, or photograph, or negative thereof, or of a painting, drawing, chromo, statue, statuery, and of models or designs intended to be perfected as works of the fine arts, and the executors, administrators, or assigns of any such person shall, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter, have the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, copying, executing, finishing, and vending the same; and, in the case of a dramatic composition, of publicly performing or representing it, or causing it to be performed or represented by others. And authors or their assigns shall have exclusive right to dramatize or translate any of their works for which copyright shall have been obtained under the laws of the United States.

"Whenever the author or proprietor of a book in a foreign language, which shall be published in a foreign country before the day of publication in this country, or his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall deposit one complete copy of the same, including all maps and other illustrations, in the Library of Congress, Washington, District of Columbia, within thirty days after the first publication of such book in a foreign country, and shall insert in such copy, and in all copies of such book sold or distributed in the United States, on the title page or the page immediately following, a notice of the reservation of copyright in the name of the proprietor, together with the true date of first publication of such book, in the following words: 'Published _____, nineteen hundred and _____. Privilege of copyright in the United States reserved under the Act approved _____, nineteen hundred and five, by _____, and shall within twelve months after the first publication of such book in a foreign country, file the title of such book and deposit two copies of it in the original language or, at his option, of a translation of it in the English language, printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, containing a notice of copyright, as provided by the copyright laws now in force, he and they shall have during the term of twenty-eight years from the date of recording the title of the book or of the English translation of it, as provided for above, the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, vending, translating and dramatizing the said book: Provided, That this Act shall only apply to a citizen or subject of a foreign State or nation when such foreign State or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens."

Copyright Circular No. 33.

A circular of directions for taking action under the new law has been issued by the Copyright Office:

I. WORKS PROTECTED.

The protection accorded by this Act is only applicable to books produced (subsequent to the date of the Act) in some language other than English.

Books previously published, if issued in new editions containing new matter, may secure protection for the new matter contained therein.

II. AUTHORS BENEFITED.

The privileges secured by the Act are available in the case of books in languages other than English when the authors or proprietors of such books, or their executors, administrators, or assigns, are citizens or subjects of any of the following countries: Belgium, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain and her possessions, (including Australia, Canada, India, New Zealand, etc.) Italy, Mexico, The Netherlands (Holland), and possessions, Portugal, Spain and Switzerland.

III. HOW RESERVATION OF COPYRIGHT MAY BE SECURED.

In order to insure the benefits available under this Act, the following measures are required to be taken:

1. Print upon all copies of the original edition of the book desired to be protected:

- a. The true date of first publication;
- b. The name of the person reserving the privilege of copyright as proprietor of the work;

This notice must be printed in the following form and no other:

"Published — [here insert the true date of first publication of the book.] Privilege of copyright in the United States reserved under the Act approved March 1, 1905, by — [here insert the true legal name of the author or proprietor]."

This notice must be printed on the title-page or on the back of the title-page.

2. One copy of the book must be sent by post or otherwise, addressed

"Library of Congress (Copyright Office), Washington, D. C., United States of America."

This copy must be complete, with all illustrations, maps, etc.

It must be sent so as to reach the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., U. S. A., within thirty days after first publication abroad; otherwise the desired protection cannot be secured.

It must be sent with all charges prepaid.

The book should be accompanied by a statement that it is sent under the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1905, in order to justify the claim of the reservation of copyright. This statement should preferably be made upon the printed form supplied with this circular. The statement should contain the full legal name of the copyright claimant, the title of the book, the date of first publication, and the claim for reservation of the copyright. If the printed form of application is used, the Post Office authorities state that the copy and application can be sent together by book post. If the printed form is not used, the same statement should be supplied in the form of a letter, but should then be sent sealed by letter post.

[No fee is required to be sent with the copy of the original edition of the book.]

Exact compliance with the above directions will secure for a period of twelve calendar months from the date of first publication:

a. Protection against any infringement or appropriation of the work in any way, including unauthorized translation of it;

b. Free access to the United States market for the sale of the work.

Under the laws in force, if printed wholly in some language or languages other than English, no customs duties will be required to be paid. If wholly or partly printed in English, however, an ad valorem duty of twenty-five per cent. will probably be charged.

IV. HOW COPYRIGHT FOR FULL TERMS MAY BE SECURED.

Having complied with all the above described stipulations, and thus secured protection for the interim term of twelve calendar months after the date of first publication of the book, in order to obtain the full benefit of the privileges of the copyright laws now in force for the full terms of twenty-eight and fourteen years respectively, the applicant is required to comply with all the formalities prescribed by the copyright laws now in force.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT: G. H. PUTNAM'S LETTER TO THE LONDON "STANDARD."

THE following is the full text of Mr. G. H. Putnam's letter to the London Standard, including in brackets certain portions omitted by that journal.

JANUARY 23, 1905.

To the Editor of The Standard, London, England.

MY DEAR SIR: I have read with interest from week to week the letters that have been addressed to the Standard from representative authors, in which are set forth various grounds of complaint concerning the provisions and the working of the present American copyright statute. I may say at once, writing as one who had some measure of responsibility in securing the enactment of this statute and in maintaining it on the statute book against various later assaults and criticisms, that the grievances of which our literary friends in England are making complaint are in my opinion substantially well founded. The American copyright law now in force certainly contains incongruities and inconsistencies, and in the interpretation of its provisions the courts find no little difficulty in arriving at consistent decisions; while in its application to literary conditions and publishing conditions on both sides of the Atlantic, it does work inconvenience and injustice to authors, American, English and Continental, and also to the publishers who make investments in copyright material.

I can but think, however, that while the injustice and disadvantage to authors whose works are produced in languages other than English are manifest and do constitute a very considerable grievance, the difficulties obtaining at this time with the authors of England in connection with the American editions of their works, may more properly be described as an inconvenience than as a serious business disadvantage.

[I note among your recent correspondents the names of a number of distinguished authors who have during the past decade secured very large returns from the American sales of their books, returns which, according to the general understanding of the book trade, are in not a few instances larger from their American readers than those that have come to them from readers in Great Britain. It is the case with some at least of these authors, that their more noteworthy successes have been secured during the last ten years, so that they may not themselves have personal realization of the differences between the conditions of to-day affecting English works reprinted in the United States, and those which obtained before the enactment of the law of 1891.

I can but think that if a trustworthy comparison could be made of the amounts going over the Atlantic each year from American bookbuyers to English authors as recognition for the service rendered to them by these authors, could be compared with the similar payments made prior to 1891 by publishers who could secure through such payments no copyright control, there would be a more adequate recognition on the part of English authors of the service rendered to English literary workers by the law of 1891, defective and inadequate as the law certainly is.]

The grievances presented by your literary correspondents in regard to the provisions of the American statute may be classified under four headings:

First. The requirement that books securing the protection of American copyright must be manufactured within the territory of the United States.

Second. The requirement for such books that publication shall be made in the United States not later than the date of publication elsewhere.

Third. The imposition of a duty on books imported into the United States (a condition which belongs, of course, to the tariff policy of the country and for which the copyright act can bear no responsibility.)

Fourth. The preference given, or rather proposed to be given, by the amendment to the copyright law that is now pending (so-called) to works originating in language other than in English, in the matter of the certain time allowance with which the translation and manufacture of such a work can be completed before the opportunity of securing copyright has lapsed.

Fifth. The fact that certain writers are not securing from the great American public the sales that they were depending upon, and the further annoyance that they find an increasing competition on the part of American writers for the favor of the English book-reading public, more particularly, of course, the readers of fiction.

The manufacturing clause does not represent, as has sometimes hastily been stated in England, an expression of greed on the part of the American publishers.

I may report, speaking with direct knowledge of the record, that the copyright bill as first framed in 1887, under the direction of the Authors' Copyright League and the Publishers' Copyright League, did not contain any such condition.

The view was accepted quite generally by the publishers, no less than by the authors that a manufacturing requirement was not germane to a copyright statute, and ought not to be made a condition of copyright. It seemed to us that whatever consideration might be due to the "protection" of the book manufacturing interests of the country ought to be provided for in the tariff and not to be allowed to confuse the matter of copyright.

We did what was practicable during a contest lasting for some years to secure the enactment of the bill as framed. After an experience of two years or more in presenting the matter to the attention of Congressional committees and in conferences with Typographical Unions and with certain other Unions that claimed a right to be heard in the matter, those of us who had charge of the bill in Washington were obliged to report to the Copyright Leagues that it was not going to be practicable to secure its enactment. The representatives of the Typographical Unions said frankly that no copyright bill should become law that did not provide for the manufacturing in this country of the books securing copyright protection, and it became evident to us that they were in a position to maintain their contention. It was finally concluded that rather than to abandon the attempt to secure some measure of international copyright, an attempt that represented more than half a century of effort, it was better to secure the enactment of a modified bill.

[It is, unfortunately, the case that, under what I myself believe to be the necessarily demoralizing influence of the protective system, our legislators are much more ready to listen to the views of the Labor Unions and of manufacturing interests generally than to contentions submitted on the part of authors and publishers. The former claim to represent or to control hundreds of thousands of votes. The latter stand for but few votes, and are not in a position to influence that class of public opinion which controls legislation.]

It has been my experience in presenting in a committee room in Congress arguments in behalf of copyright amendments, to be told by the Chairman of the Committee that he and his associates were "entirely in accord with my views."

A representative of a Typographical Union takes the ground, however, that his Union "does not believe in Mr. Putnam's bill, and that he, the typographer, is speaking for forty thousand votes."

The conclusion of the Chairman is: "Mr. Putnam, we are in accord with you in this matter, but there is no advantage in presenting to the House from this Committee a bill to which the Unions are opposed. You go outside and satisfy these representatives of the Unions and come back to us and we will pass your bill." This, I point out, is the kind of action that can be expected of legislators who have for years been maintaining at the expense of the community as a whole, a system of so-called "protection" for the benefit of certain classes of manufacturers and of laborers.]

While it is the case that, if it had not been for this sharp antagonism of the Typographers, the bill would have been passed without the manufacturing clause, it is proper to record, as part of the history in the matter, that certain objections were presented which had nothing to do with the claims of the typographers. It was pointed out by representatives of the book trade who had knowledge of publishing conditions that these conditions and methods differ very materially on the two sides of the Atlantic. It was suggested that if the English publishers were placed in a position, through the enactment of a copyright bill without a manufacturing condition, to supply, as long as they found it convenient, their own editions for the American market in place of arranging with an American publisher for the production of authorized American editions, they would quite naturally follow on this side the routine that prevails in Great Britain.

They would secure for a first term of, say, twelve months as large a sale as seemed to be practicable for the comparatively high-priced form of the original issue; and they would delay the supplying of the market, either direct or through an American publisher, with a cheaper edition until they were sure that they had exhausted the possibilities of making sale for the first issue. It is the case that the requirements of the two markets differ very materially.

The English publisher finds it to his advantage to issue a first edition of a book at thirty-six shillings, or twenty-four shillings, or sixteen shillings, and to secure sale, with the more pecunious buyers, of such supplies as can be disposed of at that price.

A year later the same book may be published at ten shillings or seven shillings and six pence.

The American publisher finds that he better meets the requirement of his public, and, therefore, better serve himself and his author, by printing at once an edition at the lowest price at which it can be afforded, suited for the widest possible sale and for the needs of the comparatively impecunious buyer.

The publisher on this side makes his sale to a large public, securing on each copy sold a comparatively small margin of profit. The English publisher, with a very differently situated public to deal with, finds a better advantage in securing, at least at the outset, a comparatively large profit from the circle of pecunious buyers.

The impecunious buyer has to wait for a year or more for the cheaper form.

If such a method had been attempted in the American market, the large mass of the book buyers, obliged to wait for a year or more for the books of English authors that they had heretofore been securing promptly, would unquestionably have brought to bear such a pressure of indignation upon Congress that the international provision of the copyright law would have been repealed within two years.

It may be concluded, therefore, that the manufacturing clause affects at best but a portion, and, in my judgment, very much the smaller portion, of the English books copyrighted in the United States. The larger number of such books would, even if there were no such American requirement, be reset in the form suited for the American market.

The requirement of simultaneous publication works, as stated, certain inconveniences.

I may remind your readers, however, that this requirement is not peculiar to the American law. It is also a condition of the British copyright statute.

I may point out further that as a matter of practice, there is at this time no essential difficulty in securing consideration in American publishing offices well in advance of the date fixed for the publication of the book in Great Britain, for all books which are likely to prove of interest to American readers and to present any prospect of satisfactory returns to the authors from this market. The production of typewritten copies of a work of any commercial value is neither difficult nor expensive, and such typewritten copies can be submitted, and are submitted, from publishing office to publishing office on this side weeks or months in advance of the date fixed for publication in Great Britain.

Books can also be submitted, and are submitted, in the form of advance proofs as fast as the material is put into type in Great Britain. An arrangement by cable for a publication date follows as a matter of routine.

[It does from time to time happen that a volume supposed at first to be of little commercial importance, and which fails, therefore, to secure favorable consideration from (more or less obtuse) publishers, proves later to possess vitality and commercial value, and that such evidence of its value takes shape after the opportunity has been passed of securing American copyright. The occasional loss of a copyright of value in this way constitutes, however, but a small offset to the substantial gains that are secured by the English writer of books that are suited to the interests of American readers, and that secure from such interests a satisfactory return.

One ground for the requirement of simultaneous publication has not occurred, as it naturally might not occur, to your literary correspondents. It is, of course, the manifest interest of the English author to secure for his American market the largest price possible. Such price can, however, be obtained only if at the time he make the sale, he is in a position to assure the buyer that he controls such market and can dispose of the entire usufruct or possible profit belonging to such market. If, however, a term of twelve months, as is suggested by your correspondent, were allowed for the fulfilling on the part of English authors of the requirements of the American copyright, within which term of twelve months no unauthorized edition of the book could appear, the book would during such term be in an anomalous condition. Either the English edition would during such term be allowed to come into the market while arrangements were pending for the proposed American edition, or during such term importation of the English edition would be prohibited. In the latter case, the American reader who sees promptly from week to week English reviews would have an annoyance, which would easily accumulate into an indignation, at not being able to secure at once books which were already in print in the English market.

In the former case, the American market would be "occupied" to a greater or less extent in advance of the production of the authorized American edition by supplies coming over from the English publisher who naturally would make sale of his own edition in any territory in which he had a legal right to do so.

The English author would, therefore, not be able to guarantee to the American publisher purchasing the copyright any control of the American market. He would be obliged to admit that such market had doubtless been more or less "occupied" by the English copies. The consideration, therefore, that he would secure in the form either of a fixed price, or of a rate of royalty, or of an advance against royalty, would be lessened not only by the extent of any actual injury or interference that could be determined, but as is always the case with a business risk, the greater amount that would be required to insure against a larger interference than there might be actual evidence for. In my judgment, therefore, the English author while securing a certain convenience in an additional time within which to make his bargain, would have a definite loss of net receipts which would very much more than offset such convenience.]

The difficulty on the part of authors of books originating in language other than in English in meeting the requirements of the American law constitute, however, not an inconvenience, but an obstacle that is almost insurmountable.

The records of the Copyright Office in Washington show that during the past decade, the entries of authorized American editions of Continental works have been so inconsiderable as to constitute practically no business under this heading.

The authors on the Continent, and more particularly in Germany, are complaining, and complaining with justice, that the American law gives them copyright in form, but not in fact.

[It may in the first place be borne in mind that the expectations on the part of these Continental authors, French and German, in regard to the possibility of returns from the American market were very much exaggerated.

The experience of publishers show that it is by no means easy to interest American readers in books of a popular character, (I am referring more particularly to fiction,) which are written from the Continental point of view of social conditions, and which possess relations and methods of thought foreign to American knowledge and sympathies.

With the most perfect protection obtainable under any copyright law, the sales of American editions of Continental books would in any case be for years to come but inconsiderable.

Under present conditions, however, it is true that such books cannot secure adequate attention in the publishing offices, and do not, therefore, have even a fair chance of comparison with or of fair competition with books of the same class coming from English and from American authors.

The American publishers require to secure in regard to Continental works the counsel of a rather special group of literary advisers. It would as a rule be undesirable, if not impracticable, to ask these advisers to pass upon German material in script, even if a duplicate script or typewritten copy could be secured from Germany in advance of the date fixed for the first publication of the book. The counsel of the adviser of the American publishing office must as a rule for foreign books be given upon the material in print. After such counsel has been secured, (and as above explained, the chances are at the best very much adverse to the prospect that the publisher will be tempted to make the investment,) it is necessary, if the work is accepted, to secure the services of a translator and to allow the necessary time for the translation.

It is only when this translation has been completed that the work of the German author is in a position to be placed in the American market in competition with the similar work from his English or American competitor.]

The amendment now pending in Congress simply provides that for the purpose of securing this necessary time for the consideration of the continental work and for the production of the translation, a book originating in language other than English shall, if copyrighted in this country within a term of twelve months and in advance of the production of any unauthorized edition, secure the full protection.

[The law as at present worded gives protection in the case of a book which has been published abroad before being issued in this country, only to the particular translation that has been copyrighted, leaving the original free to the "appropriation" of any unauthorized reprinter who may desire to take it up. Such a lack of copyright protection constitutes, of necessity, a large additional ground for the general unwillingness of the American publisher to invest in Continental material.]

What I want to make clear is, however, that the amendment now pending, if it should become law, will not give to the Continental author any "advantage" over his English rival, but will at best fall short of placing his book on as favorable a basis for consideration as that now available for the similar English work.

It is the fact that with a certain group of English authors, as with similar groups of the American authors, the returns from the American market have been smaller, and are from year to year smaller, than these authors would like to be able to depend upon. [Such a complaint reminds one of the grievance that came up in the boarding house of Mrs. Todgers. "There never was a joint that could yield as much gravy as the young gentlemen expect."

Before the enactment of the law of 1891, the mass of English fiction of what may be called the "third" or "fourth grade" which came into print for American readers without the necessity of any payment to the authors, constituted a very serious hindrance to the publication and sale of American fiction of the same grade.] It is undoubtedly true that since the law of 1891 the American writers who address themselves to the wider popular circles, circles whose literary standard is not very high, have secured a fuller measure of consideration in the publishing offices, and much more substantial successes with the public at large than was possible when their books had to compete with literary productions that had not been paid for.

It is quite possible also that the development of this class of writing on our side of the Atlantic, (and the market for fiction is, I may say, in an overcrowded and unsatisfactory condition,) has, since the enactment of the law, stood in the way of the production of American editions of a large number of perfectly reputable English novels which are deserving of coming into print, but which do not possess what the publishers call a "commanding interest." There is in fact more than enough of such material produced on both sides of the Atlantic, and, to put it frankly, there is no present need, as far as the literary wants of our American readers are concerned, for any large additions to the mass.

It is doubtless true, therefore, that the literary agents who have such books to dispose of, have been obliged to advise a number of English authors that it was not practicable to secure from the American market the rates of royalty and the cash advances for which these authors were hoping.

The authors of the first class, however, (I am using the term here in the publishing or commercial sense,) whose books are fitted to secure a world-wide reputation and which possess a commanding interest, have a larger assured market in the United States than had ever before been possible, and, as suggested, this market is, in the case of a number of books, sufficiently remunerative to produce larger returns than could be secured from the same books on the other side of the Atlantic.

There is also, as ought naturally to be the case, an increasing sale in Great Britain for the works of American authors, and particularly of American writers of fiction which possess, (to use the publishing phrase before quoted,) a "commanding interest." These writers belong, (speaking still from the point of view of the publishing office,) to what might be called the first group. It is, however, the experience of American publishers that it is by no means easy to secure the favorable attention of English bookbuyers, and particularly of English readers of fiction, for American books of the lesser degree of importance, using the term "importance" either in the literary sense or as expressing the quality which secures a popular appreciation.

From my own knowledge of conditions on both sides of the Atlantic, I doubt whether there is any adequate evidence for the statement that American books are being "dumped" in large quantities on the English market, or that the English market is being "swamped" or even interfered with to any material extent by such importations. The interest on the part of English readers of American books is increasing, and ought to increase, but the increase is very much slower than had been hoped for, and by no means rapid enough to meet the very general expectation on the part of American writers that they were going to secure large transatlantic returns.

The imposition of a tariff duty on books, (and, I may add, although not directly pertaining to the present discussion, a duty on works of art,) which has come into force in our Dingley system of protection is in my judgment an inexcusable barbarism. Such duties are not required as income for the treasury. They are certainly not asked for on the part either of the American publishers or of American authors. They are the result of the contentions of the labor unions and of certain manufacturers that they are entitled to their share of the spoils of the public treasury, [which, under a protective system are divided not with regard to the interests of the community, but in proportion to the greed of the claimants and to the effectiveness of their organization.]

The duty on the materials required for the production of books is, of course, a still more serious burden upon the higher educational interests of the community than is the duty on the books themselves. Such duties cause an unnecessary increase in the cost of nineteen-twentieths of the books sold in this market, while the duty on the books themselves affect the selling price only of the remaining twentieth.

[According to my understanding, however, the inevitable tendency of the system of protection that originated with the taxes of the Civil War, and that has been retained with steadily increasing rates and irrespective of the requirements of the national income, to the present day, is an increasing disregard on the part of the legislators for the interests of the consumer. Under the protective system legislation is dictated and controlled by the well organized business interests that secure, or that believe they secure, a direct advantage to themselves through the shaping of legislation.]

I may add that the Authors' Copyright League and the Publishers' Copyright League have now in train a plan for the revision of the American copyright statute by means of a commission to be appointed for the purpose under an act of Congress. We believe that through the labors of such a commission composed of experts, who shall be given the necessary time for the collection of information and for the sifting of opinions, it ought to prove practicable to secure a more consistent and satisfactory copyright measure than that which is now on the statute book. It is intended that this commission shall comprise from eleven to thirteen members, and shall include, in addition to representatives from both Houses of Congress, representatives of the authors, the artists, the publishers, the book manufacturing interests and the other interests that have a direct concern with copyright, or that, under the present system, have established a claim to be heard in connection with copyright.

We should be glad to learn that by the time we have in train a satisfactory revision of the American statute steps are being taken to secure for Great Britain also a more consistent and effective law than that which now controls copyright for the British Empire.

I am in accord with your correspondents in the conclusion that the United States could have no legitimate ground for complaint or for criticism if Great Britain might decide to place upon American books a duty similar to that which is imposed on this side on English books, or if the British copyright law might be so amended as to impose a manufacturing restriction similar to that in force on this side. The only question that English men have to consider in regard to such a radical change from the British policy, is whether the change would be likely to prove of any direct service to English readers or to English authors and publishers.

[My apology for the length of this report is the fact that it naturally takes longer to give information in regard to the matters complained of than to state the complaint.]

Trusting that the suggestions here submitted may prove of some service in connection with the interesting discussion that has taken shape in your columns, I am, sir,

Your obedient servant,

GEO. HAVEN PUTNAM.

AN IMPORTANT BIBLIOGRAPHIC UNDERTAKING.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish, probably in July, the first volume of a work of great importance to all interested in the sale and purchase of old books, entitled "Auction Prices of Books: a representative record arranged in alphabetical order from the commencement of the 'English Book Prices Current,' in 1886, and the 'American Book Prices Current' in 1804 to 1904, and including some thousands of important auction quotations of earlier date." The work, which will be in four large octavo volumes, printed in double columns, will be under the able editorship of Luther S. Livingston, who has had charge, from the beginning, of "American Book Prices Current."

While prices paid at auction are not, as many deluded dealers and collectors seem to think, an infallible guide to the value of our of print books in general, they are nevertheless a safe enough approximate guide. Certainly the annual records of sales at auction so ably presented by Mr. Slater in the "English Book Prices Current," and by Mr. Livingston in the "American Book Prices Current" for the last twenty-nine and eleven years respectively, have been a vast improvement over the old and uncertain way of consulting the priced catalogues of sales.

This new compilation will prove a corresponding advance in convenience and in saving of time. The four volumes include nearly one hundred thousand records of slightly less than twenty thousand different books and editions. The arrangement is the simplest and most usable, that is, in alphabetical order by authors, and under authors by title, with a chronological arrangement of the different editions of the same book and of the sales. $5.00 in America and £1 in England has been chosen as the minimum price, and prices given are for the lot.

The period from the beginning of the English "Annual Book-Prices Current" in 1886, and the "American Book-Prices Current" in 1894, is fully covered by very copious records. In addition thousands of records have been incorporated from sales of earlier date. For example, the more famous American sales, such as those of the Brinley (five parts), Menzies, Rice, Barlow, Ives, and other collections have been included. Selections have been made from other sales including copious extracts from the catalogues of many famous English sales, such as those of George Daniel, the Sunderland, Beckford, Syston Park, Corser and Tite collections, etc. These earlier records furnish quotations on a very considerable number of books which cannot be found in any of the annual volumes. For example, many interesting items of Americana are found in the Brinley catalogues which have not since appeared upon the auction market. A complete copy of the Brinley catalogue alone is now worth $25.00. Similarly, a number of English books were sold in the Daniel, Corser or other early sales which have never since come up at auction.

The convenient arrangement in one alphabet does away with the necessity of consulting the twenty-eight annual volumes, if not the catalogues of earlier sales. Again, as the earlier volumes of both series of "Book Prices Current" are out of print, this new work will recommend itself on the side of economy to those who are not owners of the annual volumes.

In the nature of the case not every book sold at auction can be included. The scope of the work, however, within the set limit of price, is, briefly, as follows:

1. All books in the English language, or printed in England, from Caxton's time to the present day. This is the scope of Lowndes' "Bibliographer's Manual" but brought down to date.

2. All books relating to America wherever printed and in whatever language. This is the scope of Sabin's uncompleted "Bibliotheca Americana."

3. All important Incunabula printed on the Continent of Europe together with a large number of Continental works of a later date than 1520.

Most books of the seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth centuries printed in Continental countries in languages other than English and not relating to America have been excluded. Most extra-illustrated books whose value lay in the inserted matter (prints and autographs) have been likewise excluded.

When it is considered that the eighteen volumes of the English "Book Prices Current," which has the same minimum limit of price as this forthcoming work, contains on an average only 7128 records per volume, the scope and utility of the four volumes of "Auction Prices" with their nearly one hundred thousand records, will be apparent.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE ELEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Booksellers' League of New York was held at the rooms of the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, on Wednesday evening, March 8.

After the customary dinner the Secretary, Francis Gilman, read the report of the Board of Managers as follows:

During this year the League has accomplished much, the membership having increased from 134 to 180. This is in part due to the growing habit of "pushing the buttons," the League having awarded to each member who introduced five new members one of its gold buttons. Six members have thus far won this prize, viz: C. A. Burkhardt, two; W. H. Parker, S. F. McLean, Samuel Reis and J. B. Pratt.

Your Board has held numerous and well-attended meetings, and our thanks are due to Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co. and to the American Baptist Publication Society for the use of their offices.

At the monthly dinners we have entertained a number of distinguished guests whose remarks have been entertaining and instructive. A brief review may not be amiss.

At the April dinner Charles Sprague Smith, author of "Barbizon Days," spoke of the contrast between scholastic life and life in the open; and John R. Anderson gave some reminiscences of the Civil War and incidents of the early booktrade.

At our May dinner, which was combined with the annual dinner of the American Booksellers' Association, we listened to Lieutenant R. E. Peary, of Arctic fame; John S. Wise, who told many amusing stories; Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady spoke on books and reading, Nixon Waterman made a plea for poetry, W. H. Drummond, an old friend, author of "The Habitant," read from his works, and W. J. Long, another good friend, spoke on animal life.

October's dinner brought us Mr. Conger, an advocate of scientific salesmanship, and Mr. Merriam, who gave an interesting account of the growth of Webster's Dictionary.

The Ladies' Night came in November, and, in addition to our fair guests, there was present "Joe" Mackay, who entertained us with some of his unique and original specialties. Some selections from "Wee MacGregor" were read by James McArthur; Joseph Lincoln, author of "Captain Eri," spoke about Cape Cod, and Professor C. K. Gains discoursed upon the Periclean age.

The January dinner was made memorable by the presence of Sidney L. Gulick, author of "The Evolution of Japan," who described much that was new about the Japanese and their attitude toward Russia; and H. H. Jackson gave us a good-natured straightforward talk on the shortcomings of the trade and on the advantages of combination.

At the annual banquet—which is still fresh in our minds—the speakers were Arthur Brisbane, of the New York Evening Journal; Cass Richardson, who was our representative at the annual dinner of the Pittsburgh Booksellers' Association in Pittsburgh; Dillon Wallace, who described Labrador as he had found it, and J. R. Buchanan, author of the "Story of a Labor Agitator," and the Rev. Thomas B. Gregory.

During the year our Employment Bureau, thanks to the efforts of C. E. Bonnell, has maintained its position of usefulness, as the following report will show:

REPORT OF LABOR BUREAU.

Number of applicants for positions wanted. 66
Number of applicants for clerks, etc. 41
Received from applicants.....$7.25

As many take places and do not pay, I am not able to tell how many positions have been secured for the applicants.

C. E. BONNELL.

In this connection the Treasurer's Report, too, is most gratifying, our finances being in the very best of condition:

On the evening of February 9, 1895, about thirty members of the book and stationery trade met to organize, with what result you can see as you look about this evening.

But what of the future? Let us not rest satisfied with our past record, nor yet with our present condition, however good it may be. Let us look to the future, "figure to ourselves the thing we like, and then build it up."

Fellow members, it is in your power to help us with suggestions as well as with your hands to make The Booksellers' League of the future the success it has been in the past.

FRANCIS GILMAN, Secretary.

The election for President of the League for the ensuing year resulted in the unanimous choice of Frederick D. Lacy, while the ballot for six members of the Board of Managers to serve for three years, elected the following candidates: Charles A. Burkhardt, A. Growoll, Francis Gilman, A. Wessels, T. E. Schulte and Miles Standish.

While the tellers were engaged in their count, former Senator Burton, of Brooklyn, gave an interesting address on the lights and shadows of legislative life, illustrated with a number of fitting stories.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of The Booksellers' League, held February 24, 1905, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The Board has heard with regret of the death of Mr. James Pott, founder of the firm of James Pott & Co., for over fifty years connected with the bookselling business in this city, and whose career was one of extreme usefulness to the trade, be it Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to convey the sympathy of the League to his family, and that this resolution be entered on the minutes and sent to the trade papers.

FRANCIS GILMAN, Secretary.

T. E. SCHULTE, President.

JOURNALISTIC.

The Genealogical Magazine, edited by Stephen P. Sharples and Eben Putnam, formerly published as a quarterly from 26 Broad Street, Boston, Mass., has now become a monthly.

THERE is another Searchlight in the field—a semi-monthly periodical "for genealogical, topographical, antiquarian and heraldic research of American families and individuals." It announces itself as the "modern successor of the 'Salon international,' an exclusive organ for the intimate affairs of society, originated 1852 in St. Petersburg." The periodical is edited and published by Armand C. Fouché, at 108 W. 96th Street, New York, at $2 a year, single copies ten cents.

Gunter's Magazine for April has the concluding paper on the "Stories of the Rivers," entitled "The Crossing of the Platte," as related by an old trapper. Archibald Clavering Gunter's stirring serial, "A Prince in the Garret," is also finished in this number, while the same author tells "The Forbidden Story," which was interdicted by the Russian government. There are verses by Ethel Watts Mumford and by Maurice Smiley. An old resident of Utah describes "Domestic Scenes Among the Mormons," and an attractive collection of short stories makes up a very interesting number.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. announce that the entire 50,000 copies of the limited popular edition of "Merchant's Letters" was sold out within four weeks of the announcement. They can now supply only the regular $1.50 edition.

HENRY MALKAN, 1 William Street, New York City, has purchased the entire stock of John Knox McAfee, of 150 Nassau Street, comprising several thousand choice volumes of Americana, first editions, fine sets, rare items, etc.

JENNINGS & GRAHAM, Cincinnati, have just issued "Twenty-One Years in India," by J. L. Humphrey, telling of the planting and development of Methodism there; and "The Changeless Christ," a volume of sermons by Rev. Robert Forbes.

RICHARD G. BADGER has just issued four volumes of poetry entitled respectively "Poems," by Egbert Willard Fowler; "A Pageant of Life," poems by Gamaliel Bradford, jr.; "Pipes and Timbrels," by W. J. Henderson; and "The Harem and Other Poems," by Aloysius Coll.

W. A. HESTER, San Francisco, Cal., publishes a book by S. P. Elias, of the San Francisco bar, on "The Law of Theatre Tickets," which is new, up-to-date, covering all possible questions involved and stating the law as found in decided cases, with a complete citation of authorities to the date of publication.

A NEW "Automobile Register and Tourists' Guide" is about to be issued by the Hall Publishing Company as an encyclopædia of automobiling in New York State. It will contain an official registry, a gazetteer of cities and towns, touring routes, State laws, ordinances, stations, hotels, automobile clubs, selling agents and repair stations.

HARPER & BROTHERS issued on March 9 "The Marriage of William Ashe," Mrs. Ward's great novel of high-class England, which has had such a successful career in Harper's Magazine. It has still some months to run as a serial and many are just waiting to make sure as soon as possible what the artistically veiled ending of Mrs. Ward's latest work will prove.

THE JOHN CRERAR LIBRARY, of Chicago, publishes a "List of Cyclopedias and Dictionaries, with a List of Directories," (272 p. 8°,) covering this class of publications as found in its own collection. The arrangement is chronological under classes, but the usual chronological order is reversed, the latest works being put first. A full index is a useful appendix.

AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY will issue Arthur W. Marchmont's "The Heritage of Peril," as No. 23 in the Library of Popular Fiction, in which No. 22, issued last week, covered "The King of Diamonds," by Louis Tracy. This library holds its own as a series of stories full of life and interest, and every book added to it is chosen with trained appreciation of the popular taste.

JOHN LANE will publish March 24 "A Prince to Order," by Charles Stokes Wayne, a novel full of exciting situations. Other books now ready or forthcoming include "With the Pilgrims to Mecca," with introduction by Prof. A. Vamberg; "Life and Letters of Robert Stephen Hawker;" and "Life of Cervantes," by Albert F. Calvert, the Don Quixote tercentenary memorial.

THE HOME PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York City, has just issued "A Prince in the Garret," by Archibald Claverling Gunter, a story of Paris in 1867, devoted to the fortunes of a young American girl left stranded alone in the great capital by the death of her father and the supposed loss of her capital. She meets with great kindness at the hands of a "Bohemian," who afterwards proves a prince.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY have just issued "Prison Life of Jefferson Davis," by Lieutenant Colonel John J. Craven, embracing incidents and details of his captivity, particulars concerning his health and habits, together with many conversations on topics of great public interest. The author was surgeon to Jefferson Davis during his confinement in Fortress Monroe from May to December, 1865.

CASELL & COMPANY, Limited, have just ready "Russia, the Land of the Great White Czar," by E. C. Phillips, (Mrs. Horace B. Looker;) "The Navy as I Have Known It, 1849-1899," (English navy,) by Sir E. A. Fremantle, Rear-Admiral of the United Kingdom; and "Strategy Illustrated by British Campaigns," by Captain C. E. K. Macquoid, inspecting officer of Hyderabad and Mysore Imperial Service Troops.

THE NEW AMSTERDAM BOOK COMPANY will publish about March 25 an interesting monograph on "Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry, and the War on the Lakes," by Olin L. Lyman, the well-known author of "The Trail of the Grand Seigneur," etc. Mr. Lyman has spent much time in original research on this subject and has produced a graphic and readable account of the greatest, perhaps, of all the American naval commanders.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just issued "The Chief Virtues of Man," consisting of addresses by Rev. Dr. A. G. Mortimer on the seven last words, which are specially designed for Good Friday services. This publisher is doing well in keeping before the public the life of Robert Stephen Hawker, entitled "The Vicar of Morwenstow," of which reprints are frequently announced. Baring-Gould is at his best in depicting this more than eccentric character, whose curious idiosyncrasies have been the wonder of several generations.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON have just ready "The Life of Hugh Price Hughes," by his daughter, Dorothea Price Hughes. Dr. Hughes, though an earnest Methodist, believed specially in a union of all sects, and thought these all could meet in worship of Christ and frequent communion. He studied all creeds unceasingly, and though often misunderstood, his courage, zeal and lofty motives were acknowledged of all. The same publishers have also ready Dr. Joseph Parker's "The Epistle to the Ephesians" in the Practical and Devotional Commentary on the New Testament.

THE OPEN COURT PUBLISHING COMPANY, Chicago, have just ready in their Religion of Science Library books 2 and 4 of Locke's "Essay Concerning Human Understanding," selected by Mary Whiton Calkins; and "The Metaphysical System of Hobbes," also selected by the same editor from his "Elements of Philosophy Concerning Body," his "Human Nature" and his "Leviathan." A very original and interesting book by Maurice Bloomfield, Professor of Sanskrit and Comparative Philology of Johns Hopkins University, is entitled "Cerberus, the Dog of Hades: the history of an idea."

A. S. BARNES & Co. announce for early publication Arthur Henry's "The Unwritten Law," a story of American life in our big cities as seen by one who has been closely associated with political and social effort. Dr. Henry C. Rowland, the author of another of the Barnes's successful spring books, "The Wanderers," is now in New York, prior to sailing with Mr. George Lauder on his schooner yacht Endymion in its ocean race for the Kaiser's Cup. "The Right Life," by Henry A. Stimson, is highly commended as a simple, practical guide book for young people, by President Northrup of the University of Michigan.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY are publishing a new edition of the works of William Hickling Prescott, edited by Dr. Wilfred H. Munro. The new issue is to be known as the Montezuma edition, and will be presented in two bindings, one of vellum handsomely decorated, and the other of buckram with paper label. Volumes I., II., III. and IV., being the story of "The Conquest of Mexico," are now ready. "The Conquest of Mexico" was first issued in 1843 and scored a notable success. The new edition is a limited one, and in addition to the complete notes of John Foster Kirk has a large amount of new material supplied by Dr. Munro, who occupies the chair of history at Brown University. "Cadets of Gascony," by Burton E. Stevenson; "Mistress of Brae Farm," by Rosa N. Carey; and "Magic Wheel," by John Strange Winter, have been added to their list of popular novels in cheaper form.

E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY are about to publish "The History of the Victoria Cross," by Philip A. Wilkins, being an account of the 520 acts of bravery for which the decoration has been awarded, and portraits of 392 recipients. The decoration of the Victoria Cross was instituted in 1856 and the award made retrospective to the commencement of the Crimean War. It has been granted to men who served with particular valor and merit in Crimea, Persia, India, China, New Zealand, Canada, Africa, Egypt, the Boer War, Somaliland and elsewhere from 1854 down to 1903. They will also publish at once "A Dictionary of Slang and Colloquial English," by Farmer and Henley. It is an abridgment, in one volume, of the seven-volume work by the same authors, which was published privately in England, and received with much appreciation. The present edition retains the important features of the first issue.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co have just secured several hundred of the orchid drawings of the late William Hamilton Gibson, which they will bring out this spring in a book entitled "Our Native Orchids." The text will be furnished by Mrs. Jelliffe, who will edit the notes made by Mr. Gibson. Mr. Gibson was perhaps the most eminent authority on orchids in this country. He was noted for his intimate flower pictures, and the best of these will be reproduced in the forthcoming book, which will be issued uniformly with the Little Nature Library, which has had a wide circulation and which includes books by Neltje Blanchan and A. Radclyffe Dugmore. They have accepted the manuscript of a new Russian novel by Ezra S. Brudno, the author of "The Fugitive." It is to be called "The Little Conscript," and is a picture of Russian military life revealing the full horror of conscription. Incidentally it gives an inside view of the rottenness in the Czar's army. The book may be looked for early in the summer.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready several works of unusual interest. "Chatham," Frederic Harrison's biography of the great statesman, is a notable contribution to English historical biography; under the title "What is History," are presented five lectures in the science of modern history, by Professor Karl Lamprecht, of the University of Leipzig; "The Art of the Musician," by Dr. Henry G. Hanchett, is a guide to the intelligent appreciation of music, by the well-known pianist, teacher and lecturer; while Dr. Emile Javal's "On Becoming Blind" is a remarkable little volume of wise and sympathetic counsel, written by the eminent French oculist after he himself had become totally blind. There is a new garden book by Mrs. Alfred Ely, called "Another Hardy Garden Book," giving the results of practical experience in raising vegetables, fruits, and simple garden craft. Among the new novels are Mrs. Sara Shafer's "Beyond Chance of Change;" and Robert H. Fuller's romance of the days of Alexander the Great, "The Golden Hope;" while Phillpotts's recent book, "The Secret Woman," still keeps its place as one of the strong and picturesque novels of the year.

✉ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

✉ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. Religion and the Higher Life

By President William R. Harper

President Harper discusses the practical questions of the religious life which the youths of both sexes are compelled to consider, whether they will or not. He says in his preface: "I have in this way discharged, in a measure, a responsibility which has weighed upon me more heavily than any other connected with the office which I have been called to administer."

The Progress of Hellenism in Alexander's Empire

By John P. Mahaffy, Sometime Professor of Ancient History at the University of Dublin.

There is probably no one more competent to write a compendium of the spread of Greek culture during its most flourishing epoch than Professor Mahaffy. He has for more than twenty years made a close study of the period, and has in this book epitomized the ripe conclusions of careful and painstaking research in the literature and other records of ancient Greece. Its popular style renders the book suitable for a very wide circle of readers.

Studies in General Physiology (In two volumes.)

By Professor Jacques Loeb, of the Department of Physiology at the University of California.

These two volumes, in which Professor Loeb has collected the results of his experiments in general physiology during the past twenty years, will be sure to attract a great deal of attention among physicians, biologists, and others interested in the phenomena of physical life. Doubtless many will be glad to have at their disposal the facts of Professor Loeb's experiments with salt solutions, the most notable result of which was his discovery of artificial fertilization (parthenogenesis.)

The Messianic Hope in the New Testament

By Shailer Mathews, Professor at the University of Chicago.

The author, proceeding along historical lines, seeks to establish a criterion for determining to what extent the concepts of the New Testament Writers were essential and to what extent formal: or, in other words, to determine whether these concepts were of universal or of local application. The argument is built around the Messianic concept, occurring in the New Testament perhaps more frequently than any other, and quite obviously local and ethnic. The book is an interesting and instructive example of the historical method of studying the New Testament, although confined to quite distinctive element in the narrative.

The Higher Life of Chicago

By Thomas James Riley, Ph.D.

Mr. Riley's work on the culture agencies of Chicago ought to be in the possession of every leader of thought and action in the city. It is not a gratifying exhibit of organizations for humanizing and enriching the life of Chicago, but it is an index of larger things remaining to be done. The book will also have more than a local value. It should stimulate comparison with other cities and should lead to larger interests in promoting concerted movements for progress.—ALBION W. SMALL.

His writings have contributed, perhaps, a greater fund of information concerning the American Indians than has been contributed by any other work in any other language. He has added new facts concerning the water courses, the mountain ranges, the boundless resources of the country, and of the wonderful opportunities it offered to settlers," etc.

A very timely book. Should be extremely interesting now that the U. S. Government has started to investigate the workings of this gigantic trust.

"In the mass of books printed every year there are comparatively few which left unread would leave a man mentally the poorer. And there are still fewer books of which it may be said that to read them is a duty of good citizenship. By MARY BOYKIN CHESNUT. Being her Diary from November, 1861, to August, 1865. Edited by ISABELLA D. MARTIN and MYRTA LOCKETT AVARY. Illustrated. 8vo, ornamental cloth, $2.50 net. Postage additional.

MRS. CHESNUT was the most brilliant woman that the South has ever produced. She was the wife of James Chesnut, Jr., who was United States Senator from South Carolina from 1859 to 1861, and acted as an aide to President Jefferson Davis, and was subsequently a Brigadier-General in the Confederate Army. Thus it was that she was intimately acquainted with all the foremost men in the Southern cause. No other memoirs or reminiscences that have ever been written equal these in charm. They afford an intimate view of a patrician, high-bred, refined, charitable woman of the world, with a delightful sense of humor and an artistic appreciation of all that is good in literature and in men.

ALICE MacGOWAN and GRACE MacGOWAN COOKE'S

RETURN

A Story of the Sea Islands in 1739

With six pictures by C. D. WILLIAMS. $1.50

The heroine of "Return," Diana Chaters, is the belle of the Colonial city of Charles Town, S. C., in the early 18th century, and the hero is a young Virginian of the historic name of Marshall. Like "The Last Word," "Return" is first of all a love story, and shows exceptional strength in the purity and finish of its literary style as well as in its warmly human and spontaneous tone. "Return" is full of intense vitality, and crowded with telling characters. The authors' firm, bold handling of their subject is a notable achievement.

Undoubtedly the best work yet done by Miss MacGowan and Mrs. Cooke

By the author of "The Spoilsmen."

ELLIOTT FLOWER'S

SLAVES OF SUCCESS

With twenty illustrations by artists of repute. $1.50

It throws new and even stronger lights upon the inside workings of American business and political graft. The present beginnings of National legislation against Trusts, and recent exposures of illegal business and political combinations, make this a book of which a large sale is assured.

(Ready March 30th)

Colonel ANDREW C. P. HAGGARD'S

SILVER BELLS

With cover design and frontispiece by CHARLES LIVINGSTON BULL. $1.50

An unusual and intensely interesting nature romance of the vast Canadian forests.

The author of "Hannibal's Daughter" and "Louis XIV. in Court and Camp," tells us in this charming tale of the love of a young Englishman for an Indian maiden, "Silver Bells," the Daughter of the Crees. Reminiscent of Leather Stocking tales, but with a modern touch and a nearness to Nature all the author's. "Silver Bells" will thrill its readers with its humanness and the striking scenes which fill its pages.

DILLON WALLACE

"One of the most graphic and moving stories of adventure that we have ever read. The story tells itself, and is as dramatic and devout as it is pathetic. Here is a record that holds one, as fiction never would, of suffering faced and heroism shown, for an ideal that failed, by men who did not fail each other."—New York Evening Sun.

"The romance of exploration has, perhaps, seldom been so fascinatingly presented. It is the chronicle of high, noble purpose and achievement, and it appeals to the finest, best, and most virile in man."—Review of Reviews.

"A remarkable story, and we are much mistaken if it does not become a classic among tales of exploration."—New York Sun.

"Possesses in its naked truth more of human interest than scores of volumes of imaginative adventure and romance of the wild."—Chicago Evening Post.

The conclusions presented in this volume were gained from extended intimate acquaintance and conversation with Japanese men of affairs, with whom the author was in daily contact. MR. EDWARD UFFINGTON VALENTINE'S

Hecla Sandwith

"An old-fashioned love story of the kind that delights us all. An excellent study of character also, and a thoroughly charming picture of life in the fifties in a Pennsylvania town.

"In 'Hecla Sandwith' we have a work of art, finished in detail and beautiful in color. To the graceful touch of the poet are added the strength of the realist and the imagination of the romancer."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

MARCH 18, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK.

THE book business for some years past has been so continuously good, with the exception of rare and short intervals, that there has been more or less fear that one of the exceptions might prove the rule and an ill season be presently at our doors. But the pessimistic prophets of evil have found no basis for prognostications of ill, and no good reason is in sight why the present year should not be as good as, or better than, the good years of the recent past. There is abundant reason, indeed, for a hopeful outlook. The war cloud in the East, which has spread its shadow over industrial Europe and reduced the general volume of business in countries not generally affected, has had no effect in this country, except to stimulate interest in the countries which are the theatre of action, and thus to increase the sales of books regarding Russia and Japan. At home, agricultural production has kept close to high water mark, and although there has been a lull in certain manufacturing and engineering lines, the railroads have continued to be prosperous, and the extraordinary demand on their freight facilities shows that the business activity of the country is, on the whole, greater than ever. Perhaps there has been no presidential election in recent years which has less disturbed the current of business or diverted trade from its usual channel; and its result has been received in all quarters as indicating the continuance of prosperity. The new year really opens with the coming of spring, and for this new year the spring outlook was never more cheerful.

There is new confirmation, in fact, for the belief which we expressed last year that the bookbuying and bookselling seasons are becoming less marked as seasons, and the book business is becoming more and more continuous throughout the year. Certainly this has been true again in the early months of the present calendar year. Not only is the population of the country increasing as each year passes, but illiteracy is being driven out, and the number of readers increases in larger ratio than the growth of population. The phenomenal growth of libraries, and even the incursions of the Sunday newspaper, do not prevent a growing demand for books, and indeed that demand is much greater than the sales of the regular booktrade imply. Enormous quantities of books are sold under the advertising coupon system, which has in a large measure taken the place of the book agent, and better organization of the booktrade and greater enterprise should corral more of the public patronage for "regular" books. The progress of reform methods, the better support of booksellers by publishers, ought to be an effective factor in increasing the prosperity of the trade. There is yet a large margin within which the booktrade may increase its business, if it will develop the hopefulness and energy to make the best of its opportunities. Publishers are planning this spring to give the retail booktrade sufficient grist for their mills, and even when no great works of the first rank can be promised there is abundant offering in books that the public will be ready to buy, either for interest or for information. Our Spring Announcement Number will be found to schedule a very large number of books for which there should be excellent and profitable sale.

THE historical novel has again come to the front, and many authors have chosen very ancient history as their background for new fiction. A marked feature of the announcements is the great increase in books of ethical and religious thought. The great vogue of Charles Wagner's books has inspired many writers to call a halt in the reckless methods of modern life, and to criticise severely the manners and morals of modern society. In fiction also the great corruption of large municipal governments has been specially well handled. Great attention is also given to Shaw, Oscar Wilde, Watts-Dunton and the many others who have spoken bluntly to their contemporaries on their hurry, superficiality and unrest.

ANSWER TO MR. BURKHARDT'S LETTER.
(P. W., March 4.)

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I am more than pleased that my recent letter had the salutary effect of arousing the apathy of some of the "shepherds of the reading public," to wit: The booksellers.

I would advise my esteemed contemporary, Mr. Burkhardt, to read again my letter, from the fact that he has drawn the erroneous inference I was particular to avoid. I tried to make the point as strong as possible that I was writing "from a commercial standpoint only," and was not in favor of either the buying or the selling of the immense amount of rot that issues annually from our presses. Mr. Burkhardt rather seeks to leave the impression that I counselled the marketing of erotic literature, because a greater profit would accrue, in which connection I desire to say that we do not offer for sale any literature which does not come strictly within the limits of the social and legal boundaries. Apropos of this, I might say that if all books were of the same calibre as those published by the firm with which he is connected, there would be no necessity for making distinction between so-called "good" and "bad" books; they would all be of the former variety.

Why do these editors who are "doers of the word," and who ostensibly believe that "the booksellers are the shepherds of the reading public," print serially such classic (?) stories as "Wolves of New York" and "Scarlet Lies"? Why don't we have some of the sapient sayings of Marcus Aurelius, and other good books along that line? For the painfully patent reason that these "doers of the word" are shrewd enough to realize that it would be "commercial suicide" to do so. I have held in my hand papers which contained lengthy articles, deploring the practice of cruelty to animals, and at the same time have seen a miserable looking equine specimen belabored nearly to a pulp, in order that the edition of the paper might be first on the market. Verily the mentors of "the shepherds of the reading public" put forward some strange arguments. On one of the pages of your valuable publication of March 4 appears a list of the six best-selling works of fiction, and among them is one in which the moral is said to be in question, and certainly one in which an impossible condition exists. This work has been largely advertised and reviewed, and in consequence is in large demand. Am I to understand that when my customer who has read these reviews inquires for this book I am to attempt to induce him to buy the "Discourses of Epictetus" because a moral tone exists therein? "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink."

This reminds me of a story I once read of a jury who were unable to agree on a verdict. On being importuned by the trial judge as to why they could not fix on a verdict, the foreman arose and said, with a nasal twang, "Jedge, ez fur ez I am personally concerned, I am perfectly satisfied what this verdict should be, but here sets eleven of the stubbornest men ever created."

I admit "the public has a right to ask a bookseller's opinion of a book," but I believe that if a bookseller is looking forward to a successful business career he will be diplomatic to the extent of reserving his opinion, which in the majority of cases if expressed leads to a non-convincing argument with his customer.

I have not been as long in the business as Mr. Burkhardt by half, but I have been sufficiently long enough in the business to discern that the condition of "innocuous desuetude" existing among many of our retail booksellers arises from blind worship of antiquated idols and customs which have held sway for decades in our chosen profession. Let us impregnate ourselves with new vigor, new ideas, and rise to the demands of the times. If publishers of standing see fit to put forth literature, the sale of which is permissible by the courts, and advertise and create a demand for it, let us sell it. I grant you there are many "frenzied freaks of fiction," but I ask you, do you think from a commercial standpoint the booksellers should turn censor?

I am glad to see these disagreements among dealers. It bespeaks an awakening that in the end is bound to result in good. I am

Yours fraternally,

R. E. SHERWOOD.

ACCURACY OF STATEMENTS ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

BOSTON, MASS., February 25, 1905.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

INASMUCH as occasional criticisms, unkindly and misleading sentences, and sometimes lengthy attacks on Christian Science are being woven into books and pamphlets, purporting to have been written on other subjects, we deem it but just to publishers that we should call their attention to this fact. In writing on other subjects it is not necessary to include an attack on Christian Science, and such an attack cannot but interfere with the mission of the book containing it, while at the same time it undoubtedly jeopardizes the good name of the publisher.

We believe all publishers will agree with us that it is only fair and just that all incorrect allusions to Christian Science should be eliminated from manuscript intended for books and periodicals, and we would suggest that Christian Scientists would gladly assist publishers in determining the accuracy of matter relating to Christian Science. Christian Science is comparatively new, and many write, not after a correct knowledge of the subject, but from a mere cursory reading and from data carelessly gathered from flippant critics.

The body known as Christian Scientists is largely recruited from the intelligent and educated classes, and the number is rapidly increasing, and we assume that all publishers desire to extend the same courtesy to Christian Scientists that is accorded to members of other denominations, that they will welcome the information which this letter is intended to convey, and will accept it in the same friendly and brotherly spirit in which it is written. Yours sincerely,

ALFRED FARLOW.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

COMMUNICATION ON FURTHER PROTECTION OF FOREIGN AUTHORS.

PHILADELPHIA, March 9, 1905.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: In your comments on the Act for the amendment of Section 4952 of the Revised Statutes, in regard to copyrights, (March 4,) you say:

"However inadequate it may appear to those striving after the ideal, the amendment undoubtedly furnishes a law with a practical working basis." . . . And you add: "It should furthermore emphasize the desirability of the appointment of a commission of experts for the revision of the entire statute relating to copyright."

Kindly spare us from the infliction of "a commission of experts for the revision of the entire statute relating to copyright," those strivers after the "ideal," for these gentlemen are always prepared to grant to foreigners privileges not enjoyed by ourselves. In the present case, the pernicious hand of the "idealist" is distinctly seen, for the foreigner is permitted, without fee, to enjoy a probation of twelve months, while the American is obliged to take out his copyright and deposit his copies on or before the date of publication, or forfeit all his right and be subjected to a penalty. For this great concession of twelve months' protection the foreigner should pay his fee at once. If he cannot or will not do this, his book is not worth the trouble it entails upon the copyright office. In practical operation the new law would result in a mere game of bluff on the part of the foreigner, a game which the American himself cannot play.

In Great Britain, where the taxes exceed the rental of the land, where agriculture pays 15 per cent. of its gross product in taxes, where estates are practically confiscated by succession taxes, under the rule of the "idealist," the barbarians of the whole world are permitted free access to its markets, in competition with these sorely taxed natives, and this practice is claimed to be based upon a science! Save us, Mr. Editor, from the domination of the "idealist," for "if an empire were made of adamant he would grind it to powder."

HENRY CAREY BAIRD.

CLAIMS U. S. GOVERNMENT VIOLATED COPYRIGHT LAW.

A HEARING of the suit of Welker Given, of Des Moines, vs. Frank Palmer, government printer, is expected to begin at Washington shortly. The case is one of the most remarkable in the history of the copyright law, the allegations in the suit being to the effect that the government printer annulled the law by carrying out the instructions of the Senate and making copyright matter part of the proceedings printed in the Congressional Record. Mr. Given, a well-known Iowa newspaper man, who while at Washington attained considerable fame as a political writer, in 1896 entered into a contract with the National Republican Central Committee to furnish several treatises on the tariff which should be issued in pamphlets for the education of the voters on the attitude of the party to protection.

The matter was copyrighted, and Mr. Given was to receive a royalty of so much per for each copy distributed.

The articles had been printed prior to the time, and Senator Lodge incorporated them as a part of his speech on the tariff question, asking to have it reproduced in the Congressional Record, Mr. Given being given due credit.

Then the National Republican Central Committee refused to pay for the articles. They claimed that its publication in the Congressional Record annulled the copyright and made it public property. Given did not receive a cent of the royalty promised him, and later begun the suit which will shortly come up for hearing.

The Senate at once appointed a committee to investigate the matter, the action there being termed "an infringement on the copyright law" instead of an annulment of it.

Mr. Given could not begin suit against the government, his only recourse being the government printer, Mr. Palmer. The case is awaited with great interest.

SOUSA ON ENGLISH MUSIC PIRATES.

JOHN P. SOUSA has written to the London Times a strong protest against the British Government permitting open piracy of his copyright compositions. He declares that music piracy does not exist in any other country where the international copyright law is enforced, and that national honor and pride might demand that immediate steps be taken to fulfil Great Britain's treaty obligations.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY'S WORK.

THE meeting of the American Tract Society was held at Washington on March 12, in the Grace Reformed Church. Justice Brewer, honorary vice-president, presided, and made a brief address, setting forth the important work carried forward by the society. President Roosevelt delivered the address, and the Rev. Judson Swift, field secretary, made a report.

The last annual report shows that the society has published the "Gospel Message" in 160 languages or dialects, and that ninety new publications have been added. These were in eight different languages. The total number of separate and distinct publications, including volumes, tracts and leaflets issued from the home office during the history of the society was 8588, and the grand total of all publications printed reached 750,781,513 copies. The total number of periodicals circulated for the year amounted to 3,036,400 copies.

The call for the Tract Society's special and unique work, the report says, is greater than ever before in its history, and its resources are greatly overtaxed. The society is wholly dependent on donations and legacies and, says the report, some of its most important work of necessity will be curtailed unless there is a more generous response on the part of evangelical churches and individual donors. A most earnest appeal is made for increased gifts.

POSTAL MATTERS.

SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

AN Act of Congress approved March 2 amends a section of the Revised Statutes relating to second-class publications sent through the mails. In order to call the attention of all publishers to the clause, Postmaster General Cortelyou has issued an order quoting the amendment. It follows: "Any person who shall submit or cause to be submitted to any postmaster or to the Post Office Department or any officer of the postal service any false evidence relative to any publication for the purpose of securing the admission thereof at the second-class rate for transportation in the mails shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and for every such offence, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500."

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE fifth annual convention of the American Booksellers' Association will be held in New York City, May 16 and 17, at a place to be determined upon later. Plans are under way towards making this convention one of the largest and most important thus far held. It is hoped that every member of the Association, wherever he may be located, will make an effort to be present, either in person or by proxy. The secretary, Harry F. Davis, requests the members to communicate with him at his Pittsburg address, signifying their intention of being present. A large and determined gathering next May will be able to do much good work under the able direction of President Palmer.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

At the meeting of the Board of Managers of The Booksellers' League, on Wednesday, March 15, the newly-elected president, Frederick D. Lacy, occupied the chair. Five new applicants were accepted as members. The following officers were elected:

1st Vice-President, Samuel Reis.

2d Vice-President, W. G. Preston.

Treasurer, E. G. Laurance.

Secretary, Francis Gilman.

The new entertainment committee appointed by the president consists of T. E. Schulte, A. Wessels, Francis Gilman and Myles Standish.

OBITUARY NOTES.

TYRUS BRAINERD, a bookseller and art stationer in Brooklyn, died at his home, No. 250 Putnam Avenue, March 9. He was born in Haddam, Conn., sixty-eight years ago, and for many years was a bookseller in Hartford. For twenty-eight years he had been in business in Brooklyn.

DR. DAVID MURRAY, the well-known educator, died at his home in New Brunswick, N. J., on March 7, at the age of sixty-five. Dr. Murray was born in Rovina, Delaware County, N. Y., in 1830. He graduated from Union College in 1852 and was principal of the Albany Academy from 1857 to 1863, when he went to Rutgers College as professor of mathematics and astronomy, and where he was a trustee at the time of his death. The embassy from Japan which visited America and Europe in 1872 invited him to become the adviser to the imperial Minister of Education. This position he held from 1873 until 1879. On leaving that country in 1879 the Emperor bestowed on him the decoration of the Rising Sun in appreciation of his services. He was then made secretary of the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York. Ill health obliged him to resign this position after a service of ten years. He wrote many treatises on education and local history, and also "The Story of Japan," in The Story of the Nations series.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE REV. DR. JOHN WATSON, (Ian Mac-laren,) has resigned the pastorate of the Sefton Park Presbyterian Church at Liverpool. In his farewell address Dr. Watson says he is worn out and cannot go on. He has never been strong, and has had to do his work with hindrances from bodily weariness, and now his strength is nearly exhausted.

MARCH 26 is to be Fanny Crosby Day in scores of churches of all denominations, to celebrate the eighty-fifth anniversary of the well-known blind composer and author of "Rescue the Perishing," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Blessed Assurance," "Saved by Grace," and about 8000 other hymns. Fanny Crosby, whose maiden name was Frances Jane Van Alstyne, was born on March 24, 1820, and has been blind since childhood. For a number of years she was a teacher in the New York Institute for the Blind. Then she married a music teacher named Crosby, who died some years ago.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

HEREAFTER The Reader Magazine will be the only periodical that can show the work of Howard Chandler Christy, an arrangement to this effect having recently been completed. An early number of that enterprising magazine will contain several Christy drawings in colors.

Harper's Weekly for March 11, under the heading of "Perception and Reflection," gives an excellent criticism of the literature of the day and its total lack of individuality and reflection. The writer says "the present-day output depends on a mere enumeration. Perception is well enough and necessary, but only when it strikes deep into the soul and mixes itself with the soul's habitual tenor of thought, its reflective habit, have we literature."

The Book Monthly, the latest comer in the field of literary journalism, is published by Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & Co., London, and is intended as "an illustrated record, guide and magazine for booksellers, librarians and publishers, for bookbuyers, readers and writers. The March number opens with literary views and gossip, with many portraits and illustrations, and contains short articles on "Lubbock on Books," "What Greater Britain Reads," and "Harrison Ainsworth as the Real Father of the English 'Penny Dreadful.'" There are lists of new books, reviews and announcements.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have just published "Castel del Monte," a romance of the fall of the Hohenstaufen dynasty in Italy by Nathan Gallizier.

W. D. HORD COMPANY, Indianapolis, Ind., have just issued "The Travelling Man as I Found Him," by a hotel stenographer, who tells a few of the many experiences gleaned along a pathway seldom shadowed by petticoats.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just published "The Ravanel," a novel of Southern life of to-day, by Harris Dickson, who is the author of "She Who Hesitates" and "The Black Wolf's Breed." "The Ravanel" has four spirited illustrations by Stone.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS has just ready "The Priestly Element in the Old Testament," by President William R. Harper, a volume taking its place in the series of Constructive Bible Studies, now being issued in reply to the demand for better text-books for use in religious work.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have just issued "Thoughts of the Spiritual," by the Rev. Arthur Chambers, associate of King's College, London, and author of "Man and the Spiritual World;" and "Our Life After Death." The new book is the outcome of a far-reaching correspondence about the other two.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready "What Frances Willard Said," a collection of extracts from the published and unpublished writings of this widely known woman. The work of collecting and editing has been done by Anna W. Gordon, Miss Willard's intimate friend, coadjutor and secretary.

JAMES B. CONNOLLY'S new book, to be published shortly by A. S. Barnes & Co., is to be entitled "On Tybee Knoll," instead of "The Dredgers," as was first announced. The scene is laid at the mouth of Savannah harbor, in Georgia, a region as familiar to Mr. Connolly as Gloucester. He was for a time an inspector in the government engineer office at Savannah.

BRENTANO'S announce the purchase by them of the stock of books and stationery of the Charterhouse Book Shop, of West 33d Street, New York City, D. B. Wallace, proprietor. The business of the Charterhouse Book Shop has been discontinued. They have also purchased the Charterhouse Press edition of Oscar Wilde's "Picture of Dorian Gray," which will in future bear their imprint.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just added to their series Popular Editions of New Fiction John H. Whitson's "Barbara: a Woman of the West;" Mary Catherine Crowley's "The Heroine of the Strait;" and "Love Thrives in War," and Lucy M. Thruston's "A Girl of Virginia." This house also has ready the new National edition of Dr. Edward E. Hale's "The Man Without a Country."

JOHN W. LUCE & COMPANY will issue shortly "Epigrams and Aphorisms," by Oscar Wilde, a fine collection of the gems of thought and brilliant witticisms of this lamented author, together with many of his whimsical criticisms on art. A second printing of Bernard Shaw's "On Going to Church" was made necessary before publication day, and the third edition is now making ready by this house.

HARPER & BROTHERS' spring publications are almost all overshadowed by Mrs. Ward's "Marriage of William Ashe," of which there is also an autograph edition in two volumes, in which will appear a portrait of Mrs. Ward by Albert Sterner, who has illustrated the book. The portrait has vitality and character, and friends unite in saying that it is the best which has ever been made of her. Mrs. Ward herself was so well pleased with it that she has purchased it for her own house.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready "The Art of the Musician," by Henry G. Hanchett, the outgrowth of a course of popular lectures intended to give persons fond of music, but not thoroughly versed in its intricacies, an idea of the reasons which prompt musical critics to approve or disapprove of compositions. It is designed to emphasize the distinction between the real study of music and the study of the arts of playing and singing which have so long been mistaken for it.

THOMPSON & THOMAS, Chicago, are making the following announcements: "How to Hustle," by J. P. Johnston, a guide for travelling salesmen, auctioneers, clerks, etc.; "Buffalo Bill and Story of the Wild West," a narrative including the story of Carson, Wild Bill, Daniel Boone and the Clark and Lewis expedition; "The Up-to-Date Letter Writer," by E. J. Strong; "Uncle Josh's Punkin Centre Stories," very funny tales by the talking machine man; and "Webster's School and Office Dictionary, revised to date by L. B. Vaughn.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day "My Lady Clancarty," by Mary Imlay Taylor, author of "The Rebellion of the Princess;" and "The Freedom of Life," by Anna Payson Call, author of "Power Through Repose," now in its 28th edition. On the 25th they will issue "A Prince of Lovers," by Sir William Magnay; and "An American Girl in Munich: impressions of a music student," by Mabel W. Daniels; and on April 8 Lilian Whiting's new book, "The Outlook Beautiful," will be ready in time for the Easter season.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will bring out during the month "French Songs of Old Canada," pictured by W. Graham Robertson, with translations into modern English verse; the first volume of "A History of Rome During the Later Republic and Early Principate," by A. H. J. Greenidge; "The Ancient World," by E. M. Wilmot-Buxton; "The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin, edited with bibliographical preface by William Macdonald, which appears in the Temple Autobiographies; and new editions of George Gissing's "Veranilda;" and Rowland E. Prothero's "The Psalms in Human Life."

C. E. GOODSPEED, Boston, will publish the large etched portrait of President Roosevelt, upon which Sidney L. Smith, the Boston engraver, is now at work. This portrait is surrounded by an engraved border which is a recall of French 18th century work, for which the President has given the artist an opportunity of working directly from life. As there is no good engraved likeness of President Roosevelt available, this is an excellent opportunity for Mr. Smith to display his peculiar talent in working after the manner of the great 18th century French engravers, in which he has been remarkably successful.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready "At Close Range," a collection of short stories by F. Hopkinson Smith, all written to point the author's theory "that at the bottom of every heart-crucible choked with life's cinders there can almost always be found a drop of gold." They also publish "The School of Life," by Henry Van Dyke, the school in which we learn lessons not included in any college curriculum. Dr. Van Dyke points out the best lessons are taught by "the simple life," which is not a matter of low ceilings, loose garments and absence of bric-a-brac, but is within us and can be lived in a palace as well as in a hut.

THE first folio Shakespeare that has been missing from the Bodleian Library since 1623-4 was brought up to be examined at the Bodleian on January 23 last by G. M. R. Turbutt, of Magdalen College, a son of the owner. Strickland Gibson, the one authority on Oxford bindings, recognized that the book was in an Oxford cover, and comparison with other books sent to be bound by William Wildgoose with the sheets of the first folio on the 17th of February, 1623-6, showed beyond all doubt that the Bodleian copy was before him. The copy, with the owner's permission, will for the present remain in care of F. Madan, of the Bodleian Library.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish on March 20 "Return, a story of the Sea Islands in 1739," by Alice MacGowan and Grace MacGowan Cooke; on March 25 they will have ready "Slaves of Success," by Elliott Flower, author of "The Spoilsman," which is said to deal with State and national issues as his former book did with municipal affairs; on March 30 there will appear "Silver Bells," by Colonel Andrew C. P. Haggard, a nature romance of the vast Canadian forests; "A Captain of Men," by E. Anson More, a tale of ancient Tyre; and on March 31 will come "The Fair Land of Tyrol," by W. D. McCrackan, an authority on Switzerland and its charms.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have ready "The Corrected English New Testament," prepared with the assistance of eminent scholars by Samuel Lloyd, to which the Bishop of Durham has contributed a preface; and "The Life of James Lawrence," by Commander Arthur Gleaves, who writes a spirited account of the sailor who first said, "Don't give up the ship." A fourth edition is ready of George Cary Eggleston's "A Rebel's Recollections" and second editions of Oscar Wilde's "De Profundis" and Meredith Townsend's "Asia and Europe." The anonymous novel of contemporary American life, which has been diverting the readers of The Critic, will appear shortly under the title "Our Best Society."

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co., Boston, announce that "Broke of Covenen," by J. C. Snaith, is in its second edition. The first sold itself by recommendation from one to another. The house has in preparation "Science and a Future Life," an argument by James H. Hyslop, based on data collected by the Society of Psychical Research; "The Bishop's Niece," by George H. Picard, a tale of the order of L'Abbé Constantin with a Cape Breton setting; "The Hundredth Acre," by John Cecil; "The Ethics of Imperialism," by Albert R. Carman, a defence of imperialism by an author connected editorially with several of the leading Canadian newspapers; and "The Charm of Youth," by Alexander Jessup, a collection of verse by the author of "Little French Masterpieces."

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in press "The Crisis of the Confederacy," a history of Gettysburg and the Wilderness by Cecil Battine, captain 15th King's Hussars; "International Law," a treatise by L. Oppenheim, of the University of London; "Modern Constitutions in Outline: an introductory study in political science," by Leonard Alston; "Lynch Law," an investigation into the history of lynching in the United States; "Historic Martyrs of the Primitive Church," by Rev. A. J. Mason, of Pembroke College, Cambridge; "The Grace of Sacraments," treatises on baptism and the eucharist by Alexander Knox, (1737-1831,) edited by William Dalrymple MacLagan, Archbishop of York; and "My Communion," twenty-six addresses by Rev. G. Congreve, author of "Praeparatio."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on March 25 "A Madcap Cruise," a novel by Oric Bates, telling of a romantic voyage to the Mediterranean in a stolen yacht by two young college students in quest of a "golden girl;" "Essays in Puritanism," in which Andrew McPhail presents in a fresh light such familiar figures as Jonathan Edwards, Margaret Fuller, Walt Whitman and others; "Ireland's Story," a compact chronicle of Irish history, by Charles Johnston; "A Short History of England's Literature," by Eva March Tappan; and an important new work by Professor Charles Sprague Sargent, a "Manual of the Trees of North America," profusely illustrated by Charles E. Faxon. On the same date they will have ready the 1905 edition of Rolfe's "Satchel Guide for the Vacation Tourist in Europe."

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish next Saturday, March 25, "The Golden Flood," by Edwin Lefevre, financial editor of the New York Commercial, the story of a manufacture of gold which pours in appalling volume into the United States Assay Office; "The Troll Garden," by Willa Sibert-Cather, containing a collection of stories dealing with life among the artists and the high Bohemians in New York and vicinity; and "Little Stories of Courtship," also short stories, by Mary Stewart Cutting. On the same date will be brought out "The Yellow War," by one who writes under the pseudonym "O," giving dramatic descriptions of the romantic side of the Japanese conflict; "The Orchard and Fruit Garden," by E. P. Howell, the second volume in the Country Home Library series; and "Religion: a Criticism and Forecast," by G. Lowes Dickinson, who makes an acute analysis of the religion which is called orthodox.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish a wonderfully interesting book of most important memoirs by Mary Boykin Chesnut, being her diary from November, 1861, to August, 1865, edited by Isabella D. Martin and Myra Lockett Avery. Mrs. Chesnut was a brilliant woman, the wife of James Chesnut, Jr., United States Senator from South Carolina from 1859 to 1861, and subsequently a brigadier-general in the Confederate army. Mrs. Chesnut was thus intimately acquainted with all the foremost men in the Southern cause. The "Memoirs" afford an intimate view of a patrician, charitable woman of the world, with a delightful sense of humor and an appreciation of all that is good in literature and humanity. The house also has ready a volume of short stories by Maarten Maartens, entitled "My Poor Relations;" and "Langbarrow Hall," by Theodora Wilson Wilson, an Irish novel of great charm. A helpful book also is "Modern Advertising," by Ernest E. Calkins and Ralph Holden.

REES WELSH & Co., law publishers, Philadelphia, will complete their Pepper and Lewis's "Digest of Decisions of Pennsylvania," in a few months. There are twenty volumes now ready, and it is estimated that it will be completed in twenty-two volumes, digesting over one thousand volumes. They have now announced, on the same plan, with improvements, a digest, in about ten volumes, entitled "Law and Facts Digest of the United States Reports," being a digest of the law and facts in all reported decisions of the United States Supreme, District, Circuit Court, Circuit Court of Appeals, Court of Claims, etc., from 1790 to 1905, with references to all United States statutes that have been before the courts for judicial construction, by a corps of editors of ten years' experience in digesting on that plan. The phenomenal sale of Pepper and Lewis's "Digest of Decisions" in Pennsylvania and sister States is an evidence of what they will do in the United States. They will sell this work by subscription only through the law trade. Exclusive territory will be allotted on application to all law book-sellers and publishers on terms to be agreed upon.

DODD, MEAD & Co. publish to-day "Art Thou the Man?" by Guy Berton; "Brothers," a novel by Horace A. Vachell, author of "John Charity;" and "The Verdict of the Gods," a novel by Sarath Kumar Ghosh, who writes her story in English, although a native of India of high caste. In books of greater importance they have also issued "Venice Described by Great Writers," prepared by Esther Singleton and fully illustrated with full-page half-tone plates; and "Beethoven, a Character Study," by G. A. Fischer, an important contribution to musical biographies. On March 25 four more novels will be ready: "The Heart of Hope," by Norval Richardson; "Amanda of the Mill," by Marie Van Vorst, author of "The Woman Who Toils;" "The Apple of Eden," by E. Temple Thurston, the husband of Mrs. Thurston, author of "The Masquerader;" and Trollope's "Orley Farm," the first of a new series of Manor House Novels. On that date will also be ready a new edition of Lucy M. Michael's "A History of Ancient Sculpture," which will appear in a cheaper one-volume edition; and the seventh volume of Modern English Writers, devoted to Charles Harold Herford's book on "Robert Browning."

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY, who recently took over the business of Henry T. Coates & Company, of Philadelphia, are entering the trade this spring with several new and notable books. They announce for publication April 1 "The Quakeress," by Charles Heber Clark, who has written under the pseudonym of Max Adeler "Captain Bluit" and "Out of the Hurly Burly," books which have had over a million sale. The book is illustrated with colored pictures drawn by George Gibbs. Other publications to be issued are "An Embarrassing Orphan," by W. E. Norris, with illustrations by Steeple Davis; "Sawdust: a Polish Romance of the Carpathian Timberlands," by Dorothea Gerard, illustrated with frontispiece; "A Forest Drama," by Louis Pendleton, with illustrations by McBurney; and "The Tu Tze's Tower: a Tale of Tibet," by Louise Betts Edwards, with illustrations by Sloan. Among the juvenile publications to be issued this summer they announce a new series by Edward S. Ellis, the popular writer for young people. It is called the New Deerfoot series, and takes the hero of the Old Deerfoot series through three new books, entitled "Deerfoot in the Forest," "Deerfoot on the Prairie" and "Deerfoot in the Mountains." Another publication of interest to older people as well as the young folks is "Hurlbut's Story of the Bible," which will appear April 1 in a popular trade edition. It is magnificently illustrated with color plates by a distinguished artist, and with numerous half-tone engravings.

THE first book on the market by the new publishing house, Moffat, Yard & Company, will be Richard Barry's "Port Arthur." The author is the young San Francisco journalist who went to Port Arthur last autumn with only $200 in cash and no overcoat, and has, since he reached New York on December 6 last, made literally an international reputation by his vivid descriptions, studies and word pictures of that unparalleled siege in the reviews, magazines and illustrated weeklies of many countries. His article in the current Century created wide interest, as did his "Wat is Hell" in the March 11 number of the Saturday Evening Post. An important article from him will appear as the leader in Everybody's for April. Besides these, he has been featured in Collier's and other American magazines, and in London has had leading articles in the Westminster Gazette, Fort- nightly Review, Black and White, Sphere, London Illustrated News and others. In Paris, L' Illustration and Le Monde Illustré have featured him. The Berlin Tageblatt has published much of his matter, and even the St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya has printed some of it, much censored, of course. Few reputations so wide and spectacular have been made so quickly. He started again for Manchuria last week under contract to Collier's Weekly. It is safe to say that Mr. Barry's book, like his magazine articles, is radically different from any other book on this or any other war, so far as we know. It is described as not only a penetrating and eloquent review of a tremendous contemporary event, but a piece of world literature that will command the widest attention. It is to be put out illustrated and with a popular cover. It will be published early in April.

PERSONAL NOTE.

L. C. PAGE, of L. C. Page & Co., has just sailed for London on his usual spring trip. The relations of L. C. Page & Company with the English publishing houses are particularly cordial, and in his annual trips abroad Mr. Page is always fortunate enough to secure the American rights to some of the most important English novels, and to place English editions of his own publications.

BUSINESS NOTES.

GOWANDA, N. Y.—On April 1 the Oriental Mission Book Concern, wholesale and retail business, will be removed from Harvard Square, Cambridge, Mass., to Gowanda, N. Y., not far from Buffalo. This change was necessitated by the removal of the Oriental Seminary, training missionaries and consuls, to that beautiful place. As heretofore they will aim to become the largest importing concern for books on the Orient, on foreign missions and on the consular service.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.—The book and stationery store of Miss L. M. Taylor was burned in a destructive fire which caused great damage in the business section of that city last week.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Davis bookstore has removed from No. 35 to No. 59 West 42d Street.

TRINIDAD, CAL.—F. D. Goodale, dealer in books, stationery, etc., is succeeded by E. E. Learned.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—Clarkson & Cooper, of Chicago, have opened a bookstore at 254 West Federal Street, where they will expose for sale the entire stock of the Dominion Company.

AUCTION SALES.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW placed it in its holiday list of "100 Favored Books."

THE BOOKMAN: "The author has stepped at once to the front rank among American writers of detective tales."

. . . A yarn with genuine thrills," and comparing it with some of the most popular detective stories, says "the English is better and cleaner cut, the love passages are never maudlin, there is throughout more dignity and sense, and the book shows a far wider knowledge of the logical technique of detective fiction."

THE CRITIC: "Told by a man who knows how to write. . . The vivacity of the telling is inexhaustible."

N. Y. TRIBUNE: "'The Holladay Case' was a capital story of crime and mystery. . . In 'The Marathon Mystery' he shows that he is in even firmer command of the trick."

N. Y. SUN: "Distinctly interesting; the reader will not want to lay it down before he goes to bed."

N. Y. GLOBE: "A story to be read not only at one sitting, but almost at one breath."

BOSTON TRANSCRIPT: "The excellence of its style."

BOSTON HERALD: "The author is as exhilarating a companion as Conan Doyle or Anna Katharine Green."

PHILADELPHIA LEDGER: "There is not a dull page in the book."

CHICAGO TRIBUNE: "Absorbing excitement in every page."

Attractive Spring Fiction.

THE MATRIMONIAL BUREAU

By CAROLYN WELLS and HARRY P. TABER.

The whole world as a matrimonial bureau works very well, but when a well-meaning spinster in a small suburban town takes things into her own hands and arranges matters for her friends and relations, Cupid at once resents the infringements of his rights. He works overtime to reassert himself, and "the killing" is likely to be humorously brisk and disastrous.

Such is the gist of this summer romance in which Miss Wells has outdone herself as a fun-maker. The rapid fire of conversation, the quick action of the four or five complicated love passages, and the thoroughly bewildered match-maker, give the reader—who is of course behind the scenes—two hours of steady enjoyment.

Illustrated by Charles M. Relyea. $1.50.

THE OPAL

When a novel is issued anonymously, there is often an added charm in the thought that in this romance lies a hidden truth. "The Opal" represents a circle of Boston society, and tells of people and events in an amusing and winning fashion. The story moves briskly and is full of bright, entertaining conversation. It is a book which is sure to provoke discussion. With a striking frontispiece in tints by J. H. Gardner Soper. $1.25.

"THE OPAL"

ISIDRO

By MARY AUSTIN

This tale of love and spring-time in Old California, with all its stirring action is essentially an out-of-doors romance, delightful in its appreciation of nature, and told with power and distinction. Very few writers have understood the Mission times, the border Indians, and the California country as Mrs. Austin does. Illustrated in color by Eric Pape. $1.50.

OUT OF BONDAGE

By ROWLAND E. ROBINSON

Stories of the Green Mountain country, written with a woodsman's knowledge of the country, a love of sport, and the keen observation and sympathy characteristic of the author of "Uncle 'Lisha's Outing" and "Danvis Folks." $1.25.

A MADCAP CRUISE

By ORIC BATES

The tale of a stolen yacht, a pretty American girl and a cruise in the Mediterranean, which provide two young college men with an exciting and romantic summer, is well worth reading. $1.50.

THE OUTLET

By ANDY ADAMS

"The Outlet" tells of the struggle of the cattlemen to find a market for the enormous herds that had been accumulating during and after the civil war in the vast grazing lands of Texas. It is an exciting personal account of an old-time cattle drive, and is as full of incident, action and adventure as Mr. Adams's first great success, "The Log of a Cowboy." Illustrated in tint by E. Boyd Smith. $1.50.

Orchard and Fruit Garden

This second volume in the Country Home Library deals with the choice, planting and cultivation of fruit-bearing trees and bushes. Every known variety of fruit that grows in America is considered, each in a separate chapter. Cloth, 12mo. Illustrated. Postpaid $1.62; net $1.50.

The Color Line

By Prof. SMITH

The race problem has, unfortunately, been dealt with rather in a spirit of rancorous debate, than with the thoughtful consideration due to a phase of American life so tremendous in its import. BROKE OF COVENDEN

By J. C. SNAITH, is in its Second Edition. The First Edition sold itself by one reader recommending it to another. It is worth your time to read the following press opinions, as the book holds its own beside those of Meredith, Hardy, Dickens, and Thackeray.

Price, $1.50

"There is no living writer in England or this country to whom it would not be a credit."—Springfield Republican.

"He will prove a revelation to that portion of the American public in search of imagination combined with substance and literary finish."—San Francisco Bulletin.

"The American publishers of this book are to be congratulated on having secured one of the most talked of and entertaining English novels in the last few months."—The Critic.

"Out of the ordinary—so much so that it has been reserved from the holiday rush for a more careful reading—the truth is that it is one of those stories that must be read."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"It is an unusual book—one may define it with confidence as a rather big book."—Bookman.

"Mr. Snaith has given us a delightful heroine, a wholly original hero, and a great deal of entertainment, for which we offer him our hearty thanks."—London Spectator.

"Reading the book will make the memory sneer over hundreds of late novels that have been boomed and lobbied over as 'absorbing,' 'powerful,' 'refreshingly simple,' 'full of interest' and 'the best of recent fiction.' In the present case recourse must be had for comparison with the older authors, leaving the present gelatinous literature to boast of its aniline local color and its oft-breathed 'atmosphere.'"—Brooklyn Eagle.

OF THE GUESTS

BY

KATE GERTRUDE PRINDIVILLE

12mo. Gilt top. $1.25.

Here is a little love story, distinctly a book "without a purpose," but which may therefore serve one, the purpose of entertainment. "Two of the Guests" is the history of a week's end party and the love affair resulting. The characters of the story are people one likes and will remember. The heroine, one of those girls who does not confine her interests strictly to men, is all the more the centre of attraction to them. The always fascinating incidents connected with a country house party—ball, dinners, driving, riding, are the framework for the story of Margaret Exeter and Arnold Gresham.

DOLLY WINTER

12mo. Gilt top. $1.25.

This collection of letters merits attention for a number of reasons. They are written in a most graceful style and with an ease which makes their reading a positive recreation. The story, romantic and keen with wit, introduces the reader to a bit of country life combined with the doings of an experienced man of the world temporarily seeking simplicity of life. So much for the actual literature. Many people will find much to interest them in the circumstance that these letters are not fiction, but an exceedingly rare correspondence between real people.

TWO BOOKS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE ON TOPICS OF NATIONAL INTEREST

(For Sixteen Years Financial Secretary of Howard University.)

With an Introduction by THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON

12mo, cloth, gilt top, 400 pp. Net, $1.50; by post $1.62

The first book by one of the black race which gives a comprehensive account of the conditions of the American negro since his emancipation. Written by one of the best educated and most widely traveled colored men of our time, this volume contains just the information that the American voters and readers need to enable them to understand the present-day burning questions concerning the negro.

Colonel Higginson says of it in his introduction: "It is in almost all respects admirable, and shows much more thoroughness in dealing with both sides than any book recently produced."

PARIS AND THE SOCIAL REVOLUTION

By ALVAN FRANCIS SANBORN

With seventy-two Illustrations (25 full page) drawn by VAUGHAN TROWBRIDGE

8vo, cloth decorative, gilt top, 480 pp. Net, $3.50; by post, $3.75

An exhaustive and intensely interesting study of the revolutionary element as exemplified in all the strata of Parisian society, from the anarchist laborer to the leading writers and artists of France, many of whom, while in no way classified as socialist or anarchist, are just as truly revolutionary in spirit.

In this book Mr. Sanborn tells who and what the revolutionist is, what he wants and how he expects to get it, and how he gets himself heard. He shows what part in the revolutionary movement is being taken by the laborer, the criminal, the student, and by the literature and the art of to-day. While the work is thoroughly scientific in its spirit, the treatment is such as to make the book of great popular interest; and although the study is of foreign life, its appeal has no national limitations. In portraying conditions in Paris, the very centre of revolutionary thought and action, it discloses the principles of human nature that underlie feelings of unrest which are world-wide in their manifestation, and its interpretation of these principles will prove full of suggestion to the thinking American reader who wishes to understand the trend of radical thought in his own country.

The superb illustrations add greatly to the value of the book. Mr. Trowbridge, who accompanied the author during his journey of observation in the preparation of the book, shows rare appreciation of his subject. His drawings are truthful and they possess all the charm of the French School and of Parisian life.

Something Distinctly New in Verse

THE NORSK NIGHTINGALE

BEING THE LYRICS OF A "LUMBERYACK"

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

16mo, uniquely bound in wood, illustrated, net 75 cents, by post 80 cents.

Nearly every type of homely American life, native or imported, has already been given an opportunity to sing its own dialect. One character, by no means the least picturesque, has heretofore been mute. It has remained for Mr. Kirk to show that the Norwegian laborer of the Northwestern forests is no less amusing and no less fitted for expression in verse than was Mr. Drummond's "Habitant" or Mr. Riley's "Hoosier."

The poems in this little book include pictures of the "Lumberjack's" workaday life and of his joys, his loves, and his sorrows. In addition to his lyrical expression of his own experiences, the "Norsk Nightingale" recites his versions of many of the romantic tales of history, and translates into his own vernacular, often with amazing results, many of the great poems of English and American literature.

Many of the poems, first printed in the Milwaukee Sentinel, have been copied by newspapers in all parts of the country, and the host of readers who have thus seen specimens of this original verse will find many new pieces which make the book as a whole fully as good as the samples.

THE HUMAN TOUCH

A Tale of the Great Southwest

By EDITH M. NICHOLL

Here is a novel of uncommon power and strength, as well as heart interest. The scene shifts at an early period from New York to the ranch of the cattle king hero in the wilds of New Mexico. The story is one of affinity; of the "human touch" that draws man and woman together wherever it appears in its might, regardless of any obstacles. The social problem involved in the story is handled no less boldly than the rugged scenes of life in a new country into which the delicately reared heroine is plunged, and in which she acquits herself so nobly as to deserve the happiness which a strong man is at last able to win for her. This is a thoroughly American story, full of good red blood and life, enlivened with humor, and rich in an unusually large number of such characters as win and hold the attention of readers.

Those who only want a good story, full of rich humor and character study, will find it here, and those, of whom there are many, who like to see what energy and tact can do in the way of improving streets and homes in those sections most in need of it, and general social uplift, will be charmed with the story of what one irrepressible young woman accomplished in a neighborhood almost as unpromising as the celebrated "cabbage patch." The names of Miss Billy, her family and neighbors will be household words before the book has been long published.

THE LEADING SPRING JUVENILE At the Fall of Port Arthur

Or, A Young American in the Japanese Navy

By EDWARD STRATEMEYER

Mr. Stratemeyer has followed his popular "Under the Mikado's Flag" by another spirited war story. It relates, primarily, the adventures of Larry Russell, who is so well known to the thousands of readers of the famous "Old Glory Series." Larry is on board his old ship the Columbia, and after many thrilling experiences he joins the Japanese navy, and under Admiral Togo assists in the bombardment of Port Arthur. Life in the Japanese navy is described in detail, and also life in Port Arthur during the siege and bombardment, which has few parallels in history.

Also just Published by HENRY FROWDE.

CHAUCER.—Facsimile Reproduction of the First Folio of Chaucer, 1532. Edited, with Introduction, by the Rev. Professor SKEAT. Litt.D., etc.

A Collotype Facsimile of the collected edition of Chaucer's Works (together with many Chaucerian pieces) edited by W. Thynne and printed in the year 1532, has just been issued.

As in the case of Shakespeare, there are four Folio editions of Chaucer. Of these four, Thynne's edition of 1532 is the only one of real value, as all the rest are derived from it. It is of special value as an original authority. There is no other known source of Usk's Testament of Love, or for the Ballads entitled The Flower Curtesye, To my Sovereign Lady, or A Goodly Ballad. Of the Testament of Cresseid the only other authority is the later (but independent) edition of 1593. Of Gower's Praise of Peace and the Romaunt of the Rose, there is no other authority except one MS. In the case of the Romaunt, Thynne's text is better than that of the MS.; and supplies many missing lines, inclusive of lines 1-44. Thynne is also an authority for the Ballad of Good Counsel, the Envoy to Bukton, and the Assembly of Ladies, of which there are two other copies; and for the Envoy to Scogan, and the Book of the Duchess, of which there are three MSS. For lines 31-96 of the last mentioned, which are missing in two of the MSS., Thynne is the best authority. In other cases, the text of Thynne is also, in general, well worth consulting; notably, in the case of Troilus and Cressida. And it is well to bear in mind that from 1532 to 1597, the text of the Canterbury Tales was most easily accessible to readers in one of the four Folios.

The copy to be used as the original for this reproduction is that in the British Museum Library. It is taller and in better condition than the Bodleian copy, and is complete.

The edition will be limited to 1,000 copies, of which the greater number have now been subscribed for. The price will be $50.00 net bound in Antique boards, or $60.00 net in rough calf.

STUDIES IN GENERAL PHYSIOLOGY (In two volumes)

By PROFESSOR JACQUES LOEB, now of the Department of Physiology at the University of California. These two stately volumes will comprise 810 pages, with 162 illustrations and an adequate index. In them are summarized the brilliant results of the author's researches in the fundamental problems of life during the past twenty years; Professor Loeb's name will always be associated, for example, with the epoch-making discovery of 1899 of the method of artificial fertilization (parthenogenesis) herein described.

THE MESSIANIC HOPE IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

By PROFESSOR SHAILER MATHews, of the Department of Theology at the University of Chicago. The messianic hope of the Pharisees is formulated as a criterion for historical interpretation. With its aid a study is made of the messianic ideas of Jesus, the New Testament doctrine of judgment, and justification through faith; the messiahship of Jesus as the basis of the apostolic theodicy; the messianic age and its forerunner the gift of the Spirit; the resurrection of the body; the coming of the Kingdom; the "consummation." As a conclusion there is shown the distinction between the essential and the formal elements of historical Christianity made possible by such an investigation.

THE PROGRESS OF HELLENISM IN ALEXANDER'S EMPIRE

By PROFESSOR JOHN P. MAHAFFY, Sometime Professor of Ancient History at the University of Dublin. The eminence, great learning, and literary reputation of the author assure the value and interest of this book. The spread of Greek Culture throughout the eastern and other portions of Alexander's empire forms the basis of the narrative, in which Professor Mahaffy has epitomized the influence of this culture upon the life of its own and succeeding times, especially upon Christianity. He has rendered valuable service to both student and more casual reader.

STUDIES IN LOGICAL THEORY

Edited by PROFESSOR JOHN DEWEY, of Columbia University, New York City. "It is my opinion that these 'Studies' in an effective way embody a view that is bound to have attention; they raise questions in philosophy that no student to-day can afford to neglect; and whatever one's own standpoint may be or whatever may prove true of the validity of their contentions, they make a book that cannot fail to be decidedly useful."—ALFRED H. PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY IN THE SERVICE OF THE SCIENCES

By JACOBUS H. VAN 'T HOFF, Professor at the University of Berlin. English version by ALEXANDER SMITH, Professor at the University of Chicago. "The volume before us is an unusually elegant one, which makes a strong appeal to the booklover as well as the chemist. From the fact, probably, that the lectures were originally given in English, this version reads more smoothly than does the German, and the former possesses a charm which one does not find in the latter."—Journal of the American Chemical Society.

A HISTORY OF MATRIMONIAL INSTITUTIONS (In three volumes)

By GEORGE E. HOWARD, Professor of Institutional History at the University of Nebraska. "His work, based on the investigations of all accessible literature, historical, scientific, and legal, touches upon every problem involved in marriage and divorce, and its optimistic conclusions are quite in harmony with the true interpretation of evolutionary facts concerning the social development of mankind. It would be well if the extreme advocates of 'divorce reform' and the Mormonophobics could give it careful perusal. For even the general public Professor Howard's volumes cannot fail to be both interesting and instructive, for they deal attractively with the most human of all institutions, and contain a mass of facts nowhere else obtainable."—The Nation.

A really forceful and original story, dealing with the hitherto neglected field, Dunker life and experience. The wonderfully strong and beautiful motif by which the power of self conquest is illustrated with much striking and life-like power, gives its title to the work, as suggested by the promise, "He that overcometh . . . I will give him the Morning Star." A great novel, written in an attractive and poetic style, and maintaining its interest to the end.

New Novel

A PRINCE IN THE GARRET

A Laugh or a Tear in Every Paragraph

This remarkable story of Paris in 1867, just at the close of the great French Exposition, is devoted to the fortunes of a young American lady who had been left stranded alone in that great capital by the death of her father and the supposed loss of her property.

In her misery she is succored by a devil-may-care French Bohemian called Ambigue, who laughs with starving lips, yet sighs when he is drinking champagne.

The closing chapters of the novel in a garret on the Rue de Provence, where the young lady discovers that her protector is a Prince and that she is an heiress, are among the most touchingly pathetic yet laughable scenes in fiction.

The basis of the plot is found in the determination of a man to obtain a large fortune which has passed from him by his own fault; and the story records the outcome of this resolve—its effect on the lives of two charming lovers; how it acts as a boomerang on the schemer and his son; the failure of his plot and the ultimate triumph of true love. It will be at once surmised that material is thus provided for a dramatic and exciting work, and the development of the story fully justifies this assumption.

The Library of Popular Fiction is the best and most attractive series of books ever offered at the price.

"It is a passionate outcry against the wrongs, the cruelties, the pharisaisms of our present civilization. It is bold almost beyond precedent. Intensely interesting as it is, it is powerful in the hold it takes upon the reader. It will be condemned, it will be praised; it will be denounced, and it will be applauded. It must be discussed."

The title is

“FOR THE WHITE CHRIST

By ROBERT AMES BENNET

WHEN “The Thrall of Leif the Lucky” appeared three years ago nothing so striking had ever been seen before. This idea of bringing out “regular price” fiction in a beautifully decorated form has been developed through several successful novels and now reaches its highest point in “For The White Christ.”

¶ The illustrations have been made from paintings in oil by the Kinneys, who are known to excel in the portrayal of mediæval settings.

¶ The book is printed in two colors, each page having a characteristic border in tint.

¶ Every detail of ornamentation has been planned to conform to a consistent scheme of decoration representative of the period.

¶ Finally, as has been stated, the story selected for so beautiful a presentation is in every way worthy of its setting. Its heroes are Roland and Oliver, and the action centers around the great King Charlemagne. For largeness of scene and dramatic intensity it can only be compared to the wonderful legends of the mediæval romancers.

Some Facts About

MY LADY OF THE NORTH

A few months ago we published this Civil War romance—the love story of a Virginia captain and a fair Northerner.

The first edition was a very large one, but we felt confident that there was in this book every element of a popular success.

This has proved to be the case.

Thousands have been glad to read so exciting and vigorous a story, with a heroine of such decided charm, and seven large editions have now been printed.

It has been serialized in about twenty large papers.

Editions have been made for Canada, England, and the Continent—and the second Canadian edition has just been ordered.

Out of the first one hundred reviews, ninety-five were enthusiastically favorable.

We are spending $340 to impart this and other information to the 700,000 readers of the Saturday Evening Post, in their issue of April 8. Have you plenty of "My Lady" in stock?

The present volume is a collection of four tales of considerable length—"The Heart's Key," "Buondelmonte's Saga," "Brazenhead the Great," and "The Love Chase"—each characteristic of the author's rare genius and distinctive style. The tales are afire with passion and full of the color and poetry of medieval romance.

The present volume is a delightful succession of the comedies and tragedies of quaint corners of the Southland. The stories include "Tobe Taylor's April Foolishness," "Milady," "Minervy's Valentine," "The Second Wooing of Salina Sue," and other inviting titles.

Judith Triumphant

By Thompson Buchanan

Author of "The Castle Comedy."

The author has produced a stirring romance and a vivid historical picture. The basis of the story is the well known tale of the Hebrew maiden who risked both life and honor to save her city from Holofernes and the Assyrians. The story deals with elemental passions, rousing a deep interest in the personality and fortunes of Judith and marvellously reflecting the spirit of the age.

NOTES IN SEASON.

EDWARD J. CLODE, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City, has issued "A Mysterious Disappearance," by Gordon Holmes, a detective story which brings in two diametrically opposite characters in the two detectives employed on the case—the Scotland Yard man and the amateur. These detectives and the reader receive about the same clue, and their different speculations make an ingenious story.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready Mary King Waddington's new volume, "Italian Letters of a Diplomat's Wife," a companion to her "Letters of a Diplomat's Wife," and abounding in interesting reminiscences of distinguished persons; "Iconoclasts, a book of dramatists," in which James Huneker gives brilliant studies of the revolutionary continental playwrights of the day; and Quiller-Couch's new novel, "Shining Ferry," a romance of life in Cornwall.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready Maurice Hewlett's new volume of short stories, "Fond Adventures," mediæval romances full of his characteristic vitality and color; "The Second Wooing of Salina Sue," quaint comedies and tragedies of Southern life, by Ruth McEnery Stuart; "The Courtship of a Careful Man," a book of clever tales of New York life to-day by E. S. Martin; "The Club of Queer Trades," original and fantastic short stories reminiscent of Stevenson, by Gilbert K. Chesterton; and a vivid romance of ancient Hebrew life in "Judith Triumphant," by Thompson Buchanan, who has taken the fall of Holofernes as the central incident in his stirring narrative.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY publish to-day "After the Divorce," translated from the Italian of Grazia Deledda by Maria Horner Lansdale, turning upon the law which frees a wife when her husband is a convict; "Belted Seas," by Arthur Colton, the humorous adventures of a captain on his voyages to strange places in South America and elsewhere; and "Harvest of Chaff," by Owen Seaman, a series of parodies of Kipling, Richard Wagner, Wordsworth, Browning, Byron, Morris and many others who have had their place in the front rank of popularity. Two noteworthy books for young people are also ready—"The Boys of Bob's Hill," by Charles Pierce Burton, and "Nut-Brown Joan," the story of an "ugly duckling," by Marian Ames Taggart, author of "Miss Lochinvar." They also call attention to Mrs. Rankin's "Dandelion Cottage," of which the sales are steadily increasing.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. publish to-day "The Religion of Duty," by Felix Adler, head of the Ethical Culture Society in New York City; "Alaska and the Klondike," by J. S. McLain, who accompanied the Senatorial Commission that went to gather information about our great northern possession; on April 5 "The Orchard and Fruit Garden," by E. P. Powell; and on April 15 "The Wing of Love," by Katherine M. C. Meredith, the story of a child who brings comfort and happiness to a group of actors, artists and musicians who live with her in a garret; "Marriage and Divorce," by Dr. Felix Adler; and "Russian Literature," by Prince Kropotkin. On April 25 will appear "Pardners," stories of Alaskan life by Rex E. Beach; "The Girl from Home," by Isobel Strong; "The Troll Garden," by Willa Siebert Cather, a story of New York Bohemian life; and "Lady Noggs—Peeress," by Edgar Jepson, the story of a delightful girl who gets her own way generally.

Alston, Leonard. Modern constitutions in outline: an introductory study in political science. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1905. 8+72 p. O. cl., 90 c.

Students and the busy general reader will find this equally serviceable. It first points out specific and similar constitutional features under "Federalism and the Bicameral system," "The parley system; Government by cabinet, and "The demarcation of powers." Then takes separate constitutions of France, the United States, Switzerland, Prussia, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Scandinavia, other European States and the British Empire—and carefully analyzes them.

Altshuler, Jos. Alex. The candidate: a political romance. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [Mr.] c. 3+429 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

From the moment James Grayson is nominated for President of the United States until he is elected five months later, the story winds its way through true-to-life pictures of a Presidential Candidates' campaign, in which appears a charming romance. In Grayson's western tour of speech-making he is accompanied by Mrs. Grayson, his niece, a dashing girl from Idaho and the correspondent of a leading New York daily—the two latter of course fall in love with each other. The narrative is said to be founded upon the political experience of a prominent public man.

Bennet, Rob. Ames. For the White Christ: a story of the days of Charlemagne; having pictures and designs by Troy and Margaret West Kinney. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1905. [Mr.] c. 10-474 p. O. cl., †$1.50. The real Roland and Oliver around whom dieval romance has woven so many wonderful legends are the leading characters in a story of the court of Charlemagne in the 8th century. The Danes and the Vikings in sea fights are the center of vivid descriptive scenes, while the court of Charlemagne, where gather many brilliant figures of Pagan and Christian is the background to tales of love and intrigue in which the figure of "the white Christ" and the influence of his beautiful teachings on the Norseman brought there, are picturesquely depicted. Charlemagne himself is an imposing figure, his personality pervading the story. The book is unusually rich in binding and printing. The pages are enclosed in a characteristic frame printed in a tint—and there is a frontispiece in colors. The title-page is in red and black.

From 1194 till 1266 the German dynasty of Hohenstaufen oppressed Sicily. The historic events of this period, the death of a great pope and the final overthrow of the dynasty are mirrored in a love-tale of many trials. The Provençals of France hit the final blow, which ten years later was avenged in the extermination of every Frenchman on the island. Many battles and the great valor and devotion of women make stirring chapters.

When the harrowing tale had ended happily, the king was better and knew that "one in the grip of death may yet escape." The author is a high cast Indian, who writes in English.

Medieval romance and Greek mythology are charmingly and wittily blended in this story. A French prince of the 14th century travelling through an enchantingly beautiful forest meets a dryad. She tells him her story—that she is the daughter of a dryad, but that her father was a mortal and that she is endowed with immortal youth. The Prince woos her, but the penalty she pays, if she weds him, it is to lose her immortality. Many picturesque events occur before the tale is brought to a successful ending, in which Simon of Rouen, a soldier of fortune, takes a vigorous part.

Diana Chaters, the beautiful, dashing belle of Charles Town, S. C., in the early years of the eighteenth century and Robert Marshall, a young Virginian, are the figures in the love story which is here depicted. Diana had been jilted at the altar in Charles Town, and in her despair and shame had moved her home and household to Savannah. Marshall appears as an officer in the Colonial army and they quickly learn to love each other. There are many battles with the Indians, and a vigorous picture painted of the sea-islands of Georgia. General Oglethorpe the English philanthropist is a leading character.

"For a Captain of Indian Cavalry," says the author in his introduction, "to write on strategy may at first sight appear an undertaking at once too ambitious and too presumptuous. The author hastens therefore to say that this work is not intended for students of military history and literature who have advanced beyond the initial stages of this branch of the art of war; but it is an elementary work on the principles which govern the strategical movements of troops by land, compiled by a regimental officer for the use of regimental officers."

Mitchell, Silas Weir, M.D. Constance Trescott: a novel. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. [Mr.] c. 3+384 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

A young Northern officer just after the close of the Civil War, settled in a Southern city with his bride. They were from Boston and both had pronounced views regarding the war, and found themselves up against prejudices equally as strong as their own. The young man is a lawyer, and in the settlement of some land claims he is shot—"murdered" his wife says. This tragedy is the motive of the book; the fierce vendetta it generates in the woman's character, her bitter revenge and strange mental development are analyzed and described as only a physician of Dr. Mitchell's standing and research could portray them.

A tale of love and daring in the days of William of Orange. The heroine is the daughter of Lord Sunderland, a political turncoat who even in those days excelled his fellows in duplicity and craft. This man had married his daughter at the age of eleven to an Irish lord of fifteen, exiled from England as a Jacobite and he has never seen his wife since the wedding-day until the day the story opens, fourteen years later. An Irish love story full of ballads, dreams and many heart aches, with joyful ending.

The brothers are Archie and Mark Samphire two English boys, whose history begins at Harrow. Archie the elder boy is a strong, handsome fellow but without any trace of great gifts; Mark physically weak and lacking his brother's good looks is a genius, and as the author says "a born fighter," but ready to give and to sacrifice everything for the elder brother. Further on, after college days, they both love the same woman. With these conditions, a most interesting story has been evolved, that has its scenes among refined and highly educated people.

Frederic Villiers is an English war correspondent who arrived at the Japanese headquarters at Dalny to report the progress of the Russo-Japanese war on August 4 of last year. He remained with the army for three months, using both his pen and camera to record the passing events. Mr. Villiers is the author of "Pictures of many wars."

Ward, Mrs. Mary Augusta, [Mrs. Humphry Ward.] The marriage of William Ashe; il. by Albert Sterner. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [Mr.] c. 4+563 p. D. cl., $1.50.

It is easy to trace a resemblance between Mrs. Ward's characters and a notorious group of English people of the eighteenth century, although presented in the environment of a later period and with changed names and appearances. Lady Kitty Bristol who becomes the wife of William Ashe displays many of the eccentricities, brilliant talents and personal beauty that made Lady Caroline Lamb famous. Madame d'Estrees is certainly a portrait of Lady Blessington and Geoffrey Cliffe's career is suspiciously like Byron's in some details. William Ashe only presents the finer side of William Lamb's character—who later became Lord Melbourne and Prime Minister of England. Politics and love, with charmingly lifelike scenes from English high-life are the substance of the novel. William Ashe's unhappy marriage parallels that of William Lamb. His political career is also similar.

spirit of the story. Many family relations work together to fret the soul of the lord in possession. Money and debt play decisive parts, at first leading to tragedy. The women of the story play the stronger parts for good or evil.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

MARCH 25, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the Publishers' Weekly solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the Publishers' Weekly is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

QUESTIONABLE MEANS OF SELLING BOOKS.

It is important that the book-trade, and through it, the book-buying public, should be from time to time informed as to the "many inventions" and devious devices by which high-priced books are foisted upon unwary purchasers. Whether it is fair to class in this way the limited editions de luxe, at a few hundred dollars per copy, of which we have heard more or less in the courts, is perhaps a matter of opinion. But, indeed, most of these enterprises are not to be condemned from the point of view of the law, but rather as a matter of practical ethics—though some overstep the mark and accomplish their purpose by means more than questionable legally. One of the most extraordinary of these enterprises, of which the book trade itself never hears, turned up at such places as Newport and Lenox a couple of years ago in the shape of a hundred-dollar publication on the great operas of which the solicitors showed advance pages—the profits from which, it was stated, were to be used in lobbying through Congress a bill for the establishment of a National Opera. Whatever became of the book and the scheme, the National Opera has not so far been established.

It is a favorite device of subscription book publishers to revamp an old line of books perhaps in bettered shape, and by help of advertising, more or less misleading, to place these on the market, with great flourish of trumpets, through agents or through the coupon system. Among such enterprises perhaps the most notable is the reissue of Dr. John Lord's antique "Beacon Lights of History," popular volumes a generation ago, but scarcely up to present-day views of the writing of history. Another was the reissue, at a net price of $40 for 33 volumes, of the venerable Abbott series of popular histories, including, besides the single volumes still issued by the Harpers at a reasonable price, the biography of Napoleon by J. S. C. Abbott, which formed a feature of the earliest volumes of Harper's New Monthly Magazine. The Outlook Company is utilizing its imprint and its advertising pages to market a series more worthy of respect in the "Historians' History of the World," an English compendium, with introduction by living scholars of the works of the great historians from Herodotus down; but unfortunately it seems to have lent itself to the usual buncombe in the statement that "more than $350,000 has been spent on the work," a statement that scarcely seems justifiable, except by reckoning possible payments years and centuries ago to long since dead authors.

Another favorite device is the establishment of so-called "societies" which have for their stated purpose some altruistic aim, but for their real purpose too often the sale of a book by subscription. It is to be feared that among these is to be reckoned the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association of the United States, of which General Miles became President, and whose Board of Governors included distinguished gentlemen from several States who either had nothing to do with the society or were even ignorant of the use of their names. To these was attached the Jeffersonian Society, and these organizations have been issuing and selling a memorial edition of Jefferson's writings with introductions to the several volumes by distinguished writers. The profits on this edition, which was scarcely necessary, in view of the monumental edition edited by Paul Leicester Ford, were to be used for the establishment of a Jefferson memorial. Latest among these enterprises seems to be the "National Alumni," "incorporated with 300 charter members," "to solidify the college interests of America." A circular letter signed by John Rudd, as secretary, announcing "a unique production of great historical importance" led to inquiries as to these charter members, among whom President Hadley of Yale and President Butler of Columbia were mentioned. Both disavow any knowledge of the organization or its "unique production," and President Hadley writes: "I believe it is good law that no person is made a charter member of a corporation without his consent, and in any event I have not given my consent to the use of my name in connection with any such project, nor do I remember having even been asked about it."

Another abuse is the use of misleading names for societies which suggest, though they do not copy, the names of well-known organizations. Thus the Grolier Club is a well-known organization of booklovers, which has published many important volumes, with which the "Grolier Society," which is engaged in publishing "secret memoirs" has no relation whatever. A "Cambridge Society," incorporated, which emphasizes its relations with "King Edward's Book of Common Prayer," is just now exploiting an edition of Disraeli's works to buyers who may perhaps be induced by its name to suppose that it has some connection either with the university at Cambridge, England, or that at Cambridge, Massachusetts, neither of which is the fact.

It is a favorite device of such merchants of books to offer to send complimentary copies or some other valuable gift, to members of the Authors' Club or distinguished scholars or other well-known people, either as bait for their own subscriptions or to bait hooks for the unwary public with their testimonials. The use of agents of the Ancient Mariner type, who hold their victim with glittering eye and a more glib tongue is no longer so general a nuisance as of old; but in place of him has come the delusive circular with its elusive enticements, and the coupon system, under which, for the modest sum of one dollar, and succeeding dollars whose total is kept somewhat in the background, book-buyers are enticed to part with their well-earned dollars. We do not mean to suggest that the coupon system has not been a valuable and worthily-used means of selling books, but its abuse has been almost as general as its worthy use.

It is good to get good books widely circulated among the people; but most of these devices give the people less for their money than the regular trade can do with so-called regular books. The local bookseller should keep a sharp eye out for schemes of this sort which appeal to his local constituency and which divert from him the dollars of customers to whom he could give for their money much better return.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Times is perplexed at the delivery through the American Express Company of books mailed from England with English postage stamps affixed to pay carriage. The explanation is very simple. Until now, (when happily arrangements for parcels post with Great Britain, as per the treaty signed by the President February 17, to take effect April 1, and with France are in process,) our own post office has been so old-fogyish that the British and French post offices could not make the parcels post arrangements with America that they had made with most other countries. Consequently an arrangement with the American Express Company was made by the British post office for the delivery and receipt in America of parcels post packages from or for Great Britain. Our postal authorities are gradually waking up to the desirability of bringing our postal facilities up to the standard of other postal systems, and it is gratifying to know that the parcels post with Great Britain and France as well as with Germany will presently be in effect.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF COPYRIGHT IN CONGRESS, 1789-1904.

THE Library of Congress is issuing as Copyright Office Bulletin No. 8, under the title of "Copyright in Congress, 1789-1904," a bibliography and chronological record of all proceedings in Congress in relation to copyright from April 15, 1789, to April 28, 1904, (First Congress, 1st session, to Fifty-eighth Congress, 2d session.) In fact, during the printing of the bulletin the record of Congressional action has been brought down to January 27, 1905, inclusive. It is to be regretted that it was not practicable to bring it to the close of the present session, March 3, when the recent amendment regarding translations became law. This important work, a large octavo of 468 pages, has been prepared by Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights, whose enterprise in preparing this and preceding bibliographies in connection with the Copyright Office will have important bearing in connection with the revision and codification of copyright law, which will presently be set under way at the initiative of the Librarian of Congress, in accordance with the suggestion in the Senate report. Mr. Solberg gives credit for the work of compilation to his assistants, Mrs. Harriet deK. Woods and Miss Kelton and Miss Goodman, and for the excellent index to Miss Laddon, and he also pays a deserved tribute to Amzi Smith, Superintendent of the Senate Document Room, whose careful record of Congressional documents and personal knowledge of them has much facilitated the present work.

The scope of the work may be seen from the statement that pages 29-73 record with full title and notes the bills introduced into

Congress from that introduced June 23, 1789, which as amended became the first copyright law May 3, 1790, to the amendment introduced in December last, with an added note on patent and trade-mark bills; pages 74-83 the printed reports; pages 83-84 the resolutions; pages 84-96 the measures which became laws, twenty-five being public laws, the last providing interim copyright in connection with the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and nine private laws for the "relief" of specific persons; pages 96-111 the petitions, memorials, messages and miscellaneous printed copyright documents. This constitutes the first, and in a sense the most important, part of the work. Pages 112-377, the body of the work, are given to the chronological record, laboriously compiled from the official records of Congress, 1789-1904, giving succinctly every reference to copyright on the floor of either house, as recorded in the Journals, from the First Congress up to the end of 1904, with notes covering pages 378-387. A very full index, covering pages 389-468, refers not only to bills, petitions, etc., in general, but to the individual name of each person, organization, or institution appearing or represented at committee hearings or in petitions. The activity of the typographical unions, for instance, is suggested by the three pages occupied in the index by the petitions from local unions, mostly in connection with the manufacturing clause. The work in its details is formal rather than descriptive; it gives facts as to names of bills, etc., rather than as to their contents. Within these limitations it is a useful work, evincing alike patience and skill. In an interesting introduction of twenty pages Mr. Solberg discusses briefly the revision of the copyright laws, schedules proposed legislation, and gives the full text, and then pending copyright bills, of which only one, that affecting translations, has since become law. The fact that no less than five distinct copyright measures were brought forward at the last session is cited as proof that our copyright laws need revision, and it is wisely suggested that "the subject should be dealt with as a whole, and the inefficient and antiquated laws now in force be replaced by one consistent, liberal and adequate in statute."

"The laws as they stand," Mr. Solberg continues, fail to give the protection required, are difficult of interpretation, application and administration, leading to misapprehension and misunderstanding, and in some directions are open to abuses. During more than a century of legislation upon this subject a highly technical copyright system has been developed, under which valuable literary and artistic property rights have come to depend upon exact compliance with statutory formalities—"a necessity distinguishing our copyright legislation from that of all other countries." This is but plain common sense, and now that the Copyright Office, through the authorization given to the Librarian of Congress by the Senate report, has opportunity to prepare a draft for consideration, it is to be hoped that this may be promptly done.

GERMAN-AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.

THE importance of the copyright amendment approved March 3 is emphasized by an incident in the German Reichstag on March 15, which doubtless occurred in absence of knowledge as to the bearing of this amendment. D. Mueller, of Meiningen, referred to the copyright arrangement between Germany and the United States, characterizing the agreement of January 15, 1892, as "nothing less than a free gift of German intellectual property to Americans." He said a volume of Georg Ebers's novels sold in the United States for five cents and in Germany for $2.50 to $4.12. An entire book by Wilhelm Busch, given gratis as a Sunday supplement of a German-American newspaper, cost in Germany 75 cents. "German industrial art," the speaker said, "is exposed to the danger of suffering great losses in the United States. Present conditions are wholly untenable, and must be completely overhauled. Either the United States must accede to the Berne Convention or we must have not merely a formal, but material guarantee of legal protection. The principle of noblesse oblige must be respected."

Vice Chancellor Posadowsky-Mehner, in replying, said the Government in arranging for the protection of German exhibits at St. Louis discovered how extraordinarily difficult it is to deal with the United States on this subject.

"When we take up negotiations with the United States for a new commercial treaty," he said, "the copyright question will receive exhaustive consideration from the standpoint of the Berne Convention and German interests."

TRADE-MARK LEGISLATION.

ONE of the most important acts of the late session of Congress was the passage of a trade-mark law which puts trade-marks on a much more satisfactory basis than heretofore. A trade-mark duly registered is protected for twenty years, and the fee is reduced from $25 to $10. Applications for registration are to be published in the Patent Office Gazette before certificates are issued, to permit the filing of protests, and appeals from the decisions of the Commissioner of Patents may be taken to the federal courts, as in the case of patents. "Old marks," which have been in exclusive use in the United States for ten years or more, are specifically entitled to registration. Trade-marks are assignable, but only in connection with the goodwill of the article on which the mark is used. The trade-mark must carry notice of registration. The new law in general follows the precedent of the law relating to patents.

Complaint is made that great injustice is done to American trade-marks in Cuba under the precedent of Spanish law permitting registration of a trade-mark, which is misused, it is stated, by the registration of well-known American trade-marks, so that their proper owners cannot make use of them on their goods.

FIRE IN STREET & SMITH'S PUBLISHING HOUSE.

EARLY Sunday morning, March 19, a fire broke out in the bindery of the publishing house of Street & Smith, No. 38 Rose Street, New York City, and practically everything on the sixth and seventh floors was destroyed. The fire had gained dangerous headway before it was discovered. A great quantity of dime novels and other publications were scorched and water-soaked before it could be brought under control. The publishers claim a loss of $15,000.

A PUBLISHERS' BOWLING LEAGUE.

FOR some time past efforts have been making to form a Publishers' Bowling League, which aside from the pleasure and recreation derived from this popular sport might be the means of making the employers and employees of the publishing trade better acquainted. The Oxford University Press has been specially active in organizing a team for its house, and on Thursday, March 16, the first of what promises to be an interesting series of bowling contests was decided on Thum's White Elephant Alleys, New York City, between five men teams organized by the employees of the Oxford University Press and Ginn & Co., in which the Oxford team came out ahead. The remaining two series will be hotly contested, as the teams are evenly matched and ambitious for title of champion. It is hoped that with the beginning of next season teams will be organized throughout the trade to form the desired Publishers' Bowling League.

A NEW STANDARD BIBLE DICTIONARY.

WITHIN a year it is expected that Funk & Wagnalls will put on the market "The Standard English Bible Dictionary" in a single volume of about 700,000 words. The work is to be prepared under the editorial direction of Melancthon W. Jacobus, Dean of Hartford Theological Seminary and Professor of New Testament Literature and Criticism, Edward E. Nourse, Professor of Biblical Theology in Hartford Theological Seminary, and Andrew C. Zenos, Professor of Ecclesiastical History in McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago—men of comprehensive and active scholarship, evangelical yet fully abreast of the best scientific Biblical learning of the age. In association with them as contributors to the articles will be American and German scholars of the first rank.

"The Standard English Bible Dictionary" will not in any sense be a composite book secured by adaptation from other publications, but will contain first-hand material especially written for this work. It will be concise in form yet comprehensive in extent of subjects treated. It will confine itself to Biblical matters, avoiding extraneous material. In other words, it will be an evangelical, scholarly, and scientific work, yet popular. It will be extensively and carefully illustrated.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MRS. CHARLES BRAY, so intimately connected with George Eliot for so many years, died on February 21 at the great age of ninety years. Mrs. Bray wrote "Physiology and the Laws of Health," "The British Empire," "Our Duty to Animals," and several short stories, the best remembered of which are "Richard Barton" and "Paul Bradley."

REV. LEWIS GROUT, missionary to Natal for the American Board, a graduate of Yale University, and author of a Zulu grammar and various philosophical works, died at his home at West Brattleboro, Vt., at the age of ninety. He took a leading part in providing a standard alphabet and uniform orthography of the Zulu language, and wrote numerous essays concerning the African languages for the American Oriental Society.

SEABURY BREWSTER WILEY, son of Charles Wiley, of the firm of John Wiley & Sons, died in Birmingham, Ala., March 12, at the age of forty. Mr. Wiley was for years connected with the Blauvelt-Wiley Paper Company of New York, of which he was one of the incorporators and a joint owner. Later he sold out his interest in that concern and became identified with the Toledo Pipe-Threading Company, of Toledo, Ohio.

TYRUS BRAINERD VENTRES, one of the veterans of the book and stationery trade in Brooklyn, N. Y., died at his home in that city on the 9th inst. Mr. Ventres was born at Haddam, Conn., May 21, 1837, and began business in Hartford, Conn., in 1856. Two years later he came to New York City and entered the house of the American Sunday School Union, where he remained for eight years. He then removed to Brooklyn and started in business for himself at 62 Court Street, in the front part of a store occupied by C. C. Mudge, as an agency of the American Bible Society. His stock then consisted chiefly of tracts and Sunday-school supplies. Five years later he bought from Mr. Mudge his interest and good-will, and with a largely increased stock occupied the entire store until 1894, when he removed to 597 Fulton Street, where the business has since been carried on. Mr. Ventres was active in the management of his business until four years ago, when illness compelled him to turn over to his son, O. S. Ventres, the greater part of the detail work. The business will be carried on by his son on somewhat broader lines than heretofore.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MARTIN S. VILAS, of Burlington, Vt., five years ago wrote an estimate, extended and critical, of Charles Brockden Brown, the first American novelist, which he now has had published by the Free Press Association of Burlington. The book begins with a description of the condition of American literature when Brown wrote, followed by a biographical sketch and a detailed review of "Wieland," "Ormond," "Arthur Myrwin," "Edgar Huntly," "Clara Howard," and "Jane Talbot," his six best-known novels. There is then a general estimate of the influence of European writers on Brown, the influence of Brown on Shelley, and the influence of Brown on American literature, notably on Cooper, Irving, Hawthorne and Poe.

CHARLES DEXTER ALLEN is busy on a "Supplemental List of Early American Book Plates," in which he hopes to give a fairly complete and correct list and description of the plates in this class which have been discovered since his book was published eleven years ago. The book cannot be made complete and useful to the collector and student without the generous assistance of all who have material that should be included. No one person has all the plates or all the information. Mr. Allen, whose address is 1063 Eighty-fifth Street, Dyker Heights, Brooklyn, N. Y., will welcome any contributions to this work from reliable sources. Descriptions of plates sent in should follow the form used in "American Book Plates," as the proposed new book is a continuation of the numbered list therein. It is hoped to have this ready for distribution during the coming fall or winter.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Publishers' Circular (London) of March 4 contains the Spring Announcements of the English publishers.

Harper's Weekly for March 18 contains a reproduction of the portrait of Mrs. Humphry Ward, for which she recently sat to Albert Sterner, and an essay on her fine novel, "Marriage of William Ashe," by C. H. Gages.

Books and Bookplates in its forthcoming quarterly issue will contain an article on "The Treasures of the Royal Library" in Dresden, and an extended bibliography of Oscar Wilde. Among the bookplate designs presented will be reproductions of plates by DeRéquier Macoy Stone, and a fine colored frontispiece reproducing a bookplate by Girardet.

The Burlington Magazine for March contains an interesting article on the Whistler Memorial Exhibition, by Bernhard Sickert, with three reproductions of some of Whistler's characteristic portraits; a description, by May Morris, of the Ascoli Cope, supposed to be of English workmanship, with three illustrations; the identification of two painters' portraits, viz., the portrait of Antonio Palma by Titian, described by Herbert Cook, and the portrait of Lorenzo Lotto, by himself, described by J. Kerr-Lawson, with two illustrations; "A Knight's Armor of the Early xvth Century," by Francis M. Kelly, with three illustrations; "The Quaratesi Altarpiece," by Gentile da Fabriano," by Lionel Cust and Herbert Horne, with two illustrations; "François Duparc," an 18th century Painter, by Phillippe Auguier, with two illustrations. Besides these there are notes on various works of art, illustrated; letters to the editor, bibliography, foreign correspondence and a list of new art books. The American publisher of this very excellent magazine is Robert Grier Cooke, 307 Fifth Avenue, New York.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY publish as No. 42 in the People's Library "That Mainwaring Affair," by A. Maynard Barbour, a thrilling story of crime and intrigue.

THE edition of Louis Tracy's story, "The King of Diamonds," which was issued without E. J. Clode's authorization, has been withdrawn, as it was an infringement of his copyright.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have already printed seven large editions of Parrish's "My Lady of the North," the Civil War story which has found favor in Canada, England and on the continent.

WILLIAM R. JENKINS has just ready the second edition, revised, of Dr. William S. Gottheil's "Manual of General Histology," a subject which is the basis of the physician's art as anatomy is the foundation of the surgeon's science.

EATON & COMPANY, Chicago, have published in the New Era series "History of the United States," by Alma Holman Burton, with maps of the scene of action and portraits of the actors in wondrous human drama of the western hemisphere.

THE Agnew bill to protect trade lists, lists of subscribers or customers, etc., from unlawful taking or using, supported by the periodical publishers, has had a hearing before the Assembly codes committee of the New York Legislature, and is likely to have favorable report.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Pioneer," by Geraldine Bonner, who has lived her life in the mining camps of Colorado and California. Her first book, "Tomorrow's Tangle," gave her standing as a delightful literary artist, and she has again given us a sane, warm-hearted novel full of dramatic action.

DODGE PUBLISHING Co. call attention to their large supply of decorated passepartout motto cards, so popular for Easter and holiday remembrance, and to the suitability of their "Guest Book" for wedding gifts or as a souvenir to mark removal to a new home. They have just printed another edition of "A Cynic's Meditations," to meet the spring sales.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have issued a cheaper edition of Owen Kildare's "My Mamie Rose—the Story of My Regeneration," of which the sheets and illustrations remain practically unchanged, but the first edition will also be kept in stock. Although an autobiography, this book has had the success of fiction, and eight large editions have already been put on the market.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just issued Book 3 of Young and Jackson's "Arithmetics," which has already been acknowledged a most successful series of text-books in leading a child to think. Much oral work precedes the written work in each topic. The order of topics has been determined to meet the needs of the child mind, and the fine illustrations are eminently fitted to teach through the eye.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will bring out on April 2 the memorial edition of Hans Christian Andersen's "Fairy Tales" to mark the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of this writer, who has delighted two generations. These world renowned fairy tales are newly translated by H. L. Braekstad, and are illustrated with 250 characteristic pictures by Hans Tegner, the most distinguished of Danish artists.

G. E. STECHERT & Co. have just brought out the second edition of W. Carew Hazlitt's "Schools, School-Books and Schoolmasters," a contribution to the history of educational development in Great Britain. Although the basis of the volume is literary and not bibliographical, there is a select list of works or editions by William Carew Hazlitt, of the Inner Temple, chronologically arranged, which fills five pages.

THE three prize essays in the contest on the origin and history of the Bible in the English language which Miss Helen Gould instigated and financed have been published under the title "Roman Catholic and Protestant Bibles Compared," by the Bible Teachers' Training School, 541 Lexington Avenue, New York City. Two hundred and sixty-five essays were submitted, and the prize winners were awarded $1000, $500 and $250, respectively.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY have just ready "The Black Motor Car," by Harris Burland, telling of a machine of wonderful speed and endurance which defies the pursuit of the best police in England; "Reuben Larkmead," by Edward W. Townsend, of "Chimmie Fadden" memory, in which the world of polite society "grafters" is exposed with startling detail; and "When Love is King," by Margaret Doyle Jackson, in which a girl is forced to choose between two intimate friends in selecting her husband.

ROBINSON, LUCE COMPANY have just issued "Little Burr, the Warwick of America," a tale of Revolutionary days, by Charles Felton Pidgin, whose "Quincy Adams Sawyer," "Blennerhassett," etc., attained such popularity. Since publishing the latter book the author has collected a great supply of material on Aaron Burr, who was its hero, and embodies much of it in this new story. He is preparing an exhaustive history of Aaron Burr, and in studying for material he has struck the romantic facts which he embodies in the present tale.

GINN & COMPANY, Boston, have issued a volume on "Trusts, Pools and Corporations," edited, with an introduction, by William Z. Ripley, Professor of Economics at Harvard University, which is the first of a series to be known as Selections and Documents in Economics. It will be followed by "Trade Unionism and Labor Problems," by John R. Commons, of the University of Wisconsin; "Sociology and Social Problems," by Thomas N. Carver, of Harvard University; and by "Taxation and Public Finance," by Charles J. Bullock, also of Harvard University.

DAVID MCKAY, Philadelphia, has just issued the third edition, revised and enlarged by expert engineers, of "The Traction Engine, Its Use and Abuse," by James H. Maggard, including instructions on gas and gasoline engines, with special chapters on threshing machines and how to run a threshing rig. The author's preface says that this book is intended for engineers of farm and traction engines—"rough and tumble engineers," who with the same engine do eight-horse work one day and sixteen-horse work the next, use well water, creek water and stagnant water and are useful everywhere.

THE DIAL COMPANY, Chicago, has undertaken a familiar experiment in the publication of "The Trade Book List," in imprint editions for the use of booksellers. The lists are published monthly in compact small pamphlet form, and give classified record of recent publications. They bear the cover title "List of the Latest Books," and are sent out to reach dealers two or three days before the first of each month. The dealer's name and address in full are printed on the cover of his imprint edition, and the purpose is to supply booksellers at moderate rates with individual sales catalogues of current publications.

THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY has just issued its first innovation of a long-established custom to print and circulate only the King James or "authorized" version of the Holy Scripture. It has ready for publication an edition of the Standard American Revised Bible with its own imprint and binding from the plates of, and by arrangement with, the owners of the copyright, Thomas Nelson & Sons. The book is a handy 24mo in minion type, and is neatly bound in cloth with red edges, the selling price being twenty-five cents. An edition of the New Testament, 32mo, is also issued at twelve and eighteen cents per copy, according to the binding. It is said that the American Revision Committee offered their version for publication originally to the society, who declined it.

DODD, MEAD & Co. publish to-day "The Heart of Hope," a novel by Norval Richardson, a story of war times; "Amanda of the Mill," by Marie Van Vorst; "The Apple of Eden," an outspoken, dramatic novel by E. Temple Thurston; and "Browning—a Biography," by Charles Harold Herford, the seventh of the series of Modern English Writers. During the month they will publish "The Trial of Jesus," by Giovanni Rosadi, translated from the Italian by Dr. Emil Reich. This is said to be already one of the most widely read books in Italy and Germany, and will be published in England at the same time that the American edition appears. Signor Rosadi, who is a famous Florentine lawyer, condemns the trial of Jesus by the standard of Roman law. His lecture on the trial, delivered in 1896, was assailed from many sides and created much discussion in Italy.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will shortly bring out "A Publisher's Confession," containing the articles which have appeared anonymously in the Boston Transcript and have led to much discussion of their frank revelation of facts and figures in regard to the making of books. On April 6 they will bring out an anniversary edition of Henry George's "Progress and Poverty," to mark the 25th anniversary of the appearance of this famous book, of which 2,000,000 copies in many languages are abroad in the world. The second large edition of "The Opening of Tibet," by Perceval Landon, is just ready; and new editions of "The Clansman," "The Lion's Skin," "Hurricane Island" and "Tommy Carteret." The house has also just ready "The Indifference of Juliet," by Grace S. Richmond; and "The First Book of Farming," by Charles L. Goodrich. Doubleday, Page & Co. have also purchased the stock and publication rights of Andrew Carnegie's "The Gospel of Wealth."

If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word (Cash).

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Deledda's AFTER THE DIVORCE

Translated by MARIA HORNOR LANSDALE. $1.50

With this Sardinian novel Signora Deledda, already much admired in Italy and France, makes her American debut. The tale commences with a dramatic murder trial, and turns on the law which makes divorce possible to the wife whose husband is a convict. The episodes that follow the trial are very striking, and are intensified by the picturesqueness of the scenes.

Colton's BELTED SEAS

The Bookman has called Mr. Colton "an author who recalls the old tradition that there were once such things as good writing and good story telling," and his earlier books have been highly praised by high authorities. In the "Belted Seas" he strikes out into a new vein of rollicking humor. His irrepressible Captain Buckingham, and the amusing verses with which the captain constantly interlards his yarns, will linger in the memory. Mr. Colton has never shown more humor, nor more imagination than in this story of the captain's wild adventures on his voyage to strange places in South America and elsewhere.

Owen Seaman's HARVEST OF CHAFF

$1.25 net
(By mail, $1.50)

A highly amusing collection of parodies in verse by one who probably has no superior among living parodists. Among his victims are Kipling, Richard Wagner, Austin, Wordsworth, Browning, Byron, Morris and others. The author's prose burlesque, Borrowed Plumes ($1.25), are already in their third edition.

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

A Detective Story

Gordon Holmes has a happy method in the way he talks to his readers. He takes something for granted instead of spinning out to a fine point every single idea.

He gives us two diametrically opposite characters in his two detectives—the Scotland Yard man and the amateur. Then he gives his readers the same clues the detectives have in Lady Dyke's disappearance.

No reader can resist the subtle invitation to speculate as to what has happened and is going to happen. It is a most involved tangle.

About May 1st, Louis Tracy's "THE GREAT MOGUL" will be out.
